PHILLIPS ACADEMY

Phillips Academy is not a private school, but an endowed academy, controlled by a Board of Trustees and administered under the written constitution of its founders. By the terms of this Constitution, or Deed of Gift, signed April 21, 1778, Esquire Samuel Phillips (1715-1790) of North Andover and his brother, John Phillips (1719-1795) of Exeter, New Hampshire, set aside tracts of about 141 acres on Andover Hill and 200 acres in Jaffrey, New Hampshire, together with the sum of 1614 pounds, as a foundation for a school. This document, outlining the broad principles upon which the proposed institution was to be conducted, was composed by Esquire Phillips's son, Samuel Phillips, Jr. (1752-1802), with the advice and aid of his friend, Eliphalet Pearson (1752-1826). Samuel Phillips, Jr., was afterwards Judge of the Massachusetts Court of Common Pleas, President of the Senate, and Lieutenant-Governor of the Commonwealth.

Although Judge Phillips derived many of his educational theories from the writings of John Locke and from the English nonconformist schools with the scheme of which he was familiar, his plan was nevertheless highly original. The purpose of the academy was specifically stated in the following words:—

“And, in order to prevent the smallest subversion of the true intent of this Foundation, it is again declared, that the first and principal object of this Institution is the promotion of true Piety and Virtue; the second, instruction in English, Latin, and Greek languages, together with Writing, Arithmetic, Music, and the Art of Speaking; the third, practical Geometry, Logic, and Geography; and the fourth, such other of the liberal Arts and Sciences, or Languages, as opportunity and ability may hereafter admit, and as the Trustees shall direct.”

The chief emphasis was laid on the development of character, and the Master was to take pains "to regulate the tempers, to enlarge the minds, and form the Morals of the Youth committed to his care". It was stipulated, also, that the school "shall be ever equally open to youth, of requisite qualifications, from every quarter". The government was placed in the hands of a self-perpetuating Board of Trustees. In order to prevent sectarianism and provincialism, it was specified that a majority of the members should be laymen, and that more than half must not be residents of the town in which the academy is located. The Trustees were hampered by no vexatious or trivial restrictions, but were given sole authority over the institution. By the provisions of the Act of Incorporation, passed by the General Court, October 4, 1780, their number was fixed at never more than thirteen or less than seven, and they were permitted to possess real estate with an income not exceeding five hundred pounds and personal property with an income not greater than two thousand pounds. These holding powers have since been considerably enlarged by legislative enactments, as the school has grown.

The first meeting of the Board of Trustees was held on Tuesday, April 28, 1778. Of the twelve original members, four were members of the Phillips family: Esquire Samuel Phillips, John Phillips, William Phillips of Boston, and Samuel Phillips, Jr. These men became in turn the first four presidents of the Board. The other members, all relatives or close friends of the Phillips family, were John Lowell and Oliver Wendell of Boston, Rev. Josiah Stearns of Epping, Rev. Elias Smith of Middleton, Rev. William Symmes of North Andover, and Rev. Jonathan French, Nehemiah Abbot, Esq., and Eliphalet Pearson of Andover.

Phillips School, as it was called until its incorporation, was opened for instruction April 30, 1778, in a remodeled carpenter's shop on Andover Hill, thirteen pupils being present; before the year was over, fifty-two had registered. The first principal was Eliphalet Pearson, a stimulating teacher and stern disciplinarian, who established high standards of instruction and supervision. Shortly before he resigned in 1786 to become a professor at Harvard, a new wooden building was erected to meet the demands of the rapidly expanding school. Pearson was succeeded by Ebenezer Pemberton, a polite and scholarly master, who devoted much attention to the manners of his pupils. When he left in 1793, he was followed in office by Mark Newman, in whose administration the Andover Theological Seminary was founded, largely through the efforts of Dr. Pearson. This seminary, which was opened September 28, 1808, was placed under the jurisdiction of the Board of Trustees of Phillips Academy, and remained in Andover almost exactly a century.

The fourth principal, John Adams, who replaced Newman in 1810, raised the prestige of the school, increased the attendance, and enlarged the faculty. He published the first catalogue and made the first revision of the curriculum; but his primary interest was in the moral welfare of the boys. The second Academy building was burned on January 28, 1818, and a new brick, colonial edifice, designed by the famous architect Bulfinch, was erected within a year; this "classic hall", described in Oliver Wendell Holmes's poem, The School Boy, is now in use as the Dining Hall. In 1830 the Teachers' Seminary, a new institution made possible by a bequest of His Honor, William Phillips (1750-1827) of Boston, was opened in a massive square structure, commonly known as the Stone Academy, built for that purpose. This Teachers' Seminary, combining the aims of a normal school and a scientific school, was the second of its kind in the United States. After twelve years of existence with only moderate success it was finally, in 1842, merged with Phillips Academy as the "English Department", a name which was changed in 1892 to a more nearly accurate title, "Scientific Department".

In 1832 John Adams resigned at the age of sixty and Osgood Johnson was elected principal. Unfortunately he died in 1837, of consumption, in his thirty-fifth year. During his administration the "Commons", dormitories known to so many generations of Phillips boys, were built under the direction of Samuel Farrar, Esq., Treasurer of the Trustees.

Samuel H. Taylor, whose reign of thirty-four years was the longest in the school history, became principal in 1837. The word "reign" is used advisedly, for he was an autocrat, severe in his methods of government and prompt to punish offenders. "Uncle Sam", as he was familiarly called, was a relentless drill-master in the classics and gained a well-deserved reputation for thoroughness and accuracy. He was a strong and vigorous personality, who made an enduring impression on all who came under his influence. In 1864 the Stone Academy was destroyed by fire, and was replaced by the Main Building, which has since been twice reconstructed. In 1865 Mr. George Peabody gave $25,000 to found the Peabody Instructorship in Natural Sciences, first filled by the late William B. Graves. Dr. Taylor, on January 29, 1871, dropped dead in the vestibule of the Main Building. For the next two years the office of principal was held by Frederic W. Tilton, who, however, could do little in that short period.

The modern era of development began in 1873 with the arrival of Cecil F. P. Bancroft, who was principal until his death in 1901. Dr. Bancroft, working in a quiet, tactful, but persistent way, brought about many needed reforms. He first made a complete revision of the curriculum, thus enabling the school to meet the entrance requirements of any college, classical or scientific, and greatly broadening the range of studies. In his effort to gather about himself a larger and more efficient body of teachers he was entirely successful. The attendance also increased: in 1873 there were 252 pupils; in 1895 this had grown to 524, and after 1892 it never again dropped below 400. Dr. Bancroft also strove to secure additions to the plant, especially by providing dormitories in which boys could live under the direct supervision of instructors. He was aided in this aim by Melville C. Day of the class of 1858, who, in 1892, gave $8000 for a new dormitory, Taylor Cottage (now Pemberton Cottage), which was the beginning of the present extensive system of houses for students. Mr. Day continued his gifts, providing in all six dormitories which to-day furnish rooms for 168 boys, besides the teachers in charge. At his death in 1913 Mr. Day made Phillips Academy his residuary legatee. His gifts to the school amount in all to over $800,000.

On June 5 and 6, 1878, Phillips Academy celebrated its centennial anniversary with elaborate exercises, including an historical paper by Rev. William E. Park, an oration by Rev. Alexander McKenzie, a poem by Oliver Wendell Holmes, and speeches by Phillips Brooks, Josiah Quincy, Gustavus V. Fox, and other distinguished men associated with the school. At this time a fund of $100,000 was raised, partly for the endowment of a principalship and a professorship in Latin.

Dr. Bancroft's period was marked by both progress and expansion. He was a man of clear vision and foresight, firm will, and shrewd discrimination, who had the good sense to be patient until circumstances were favorable for pressing his projects. His policy has been maintained by his successor, Alfred E. Stearns, during whose administration Phillips Academy has grown in material equipment, in numbers, and in efficiency. In 1908, when Andover Theological Seminary was moved to Cambridge, the Trustees acquired the entire Seminary plant on Andover Hill at a cost of $200,000, thus more than doubling its property in land and buildings. In 1901 two generous benefactors of the school, Mr. R. Singleton Peabody of the class of 1857, and his wife, Margaret Peabody, established the Archaeological Department and provided for it a large endowment for instruction, publication, and research, and for the care and housing of collections in American Archaeology.

The official installation of Principal Stearns into office happily coincided with the celebration of the 125th anniversary of the founding of the school, held on June 16, 1903. The guest of honor was His Excellency, Sir Chentung Liang Cheng, Minister Plenipotentiary from the Chinese Empire to the United States, who was a student at Phillips Academy in 1880 and 1881. At the exercises in the new Borden Gymnasium the speakers were Dr. Alexander McKenzie, Hon. Robert R. Bishop, Sir Chentung Liang Cheng, and Mr. Stearns. On the same day Brothers' Field was dedicated with an address from the principal donor, Mr. George B. Knapp.

Concerning the significant developments of recent years, important though they are, little need be said here. At his death in 1917, Colonel Oliver Hazard Payne, of the class of 1859, bequeathed to the academy the sum of $500,000, this being the largest single gift yet made to the Trustees. In 1919, at the instigation of an alumni committee, a nation-wide campaign for a Building and Endowment Fund of $1,500,000 was opened, and has resulted in the securing of about $1,600,000. The income of two-thirds of this amount will be devoted to the salaries of teachers and officers.

In the World War, Phillips Academy played a distinguished part. Its Ambulance Unit, which sailed overseas in April 1917, was the first to be sent from any American school, and its battalion, formed in February, 1917, prepared many young men for the army. At least 2400 of its alumni were enrolled in the military or naval service of the United States or its Allies; and eighty-seven gave their lives in the cause of their country. A Memorial Bell Tower, erected on Andover Hill, commemorates their loyalty and sacrifice.

LOCATION

Andover is a town of nine thousand inhabitants, situated on the Portland Division of the Boston and Maine Railroad, twenty-three miles north of Boston.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY is national in its representation and democratic in its life and spirit, and is "equally open to youth of requisite qualifications from every quarter". It aims to attract students of serious educational purposes and high moral standards.

The Academy is not a suitable school for boys who are idle, insubordinate, or lacking in self-control; nor is it adapted for those who require the constant supervision of teachers in the preparation of school work. Students who are found to be unable or unwilling to meet the requirements, and those whose influence is injurious, must be withdrawn from the school. As maturity is not always to be measured by years, the school has no specific regulation as to the age of the candidate. In general, however, it has been found that boys of fourteen are able to meet the responsibilities of life in the Academy.

The school provides accommodations and surroundings for its students which enable them to pass by gradual and natural stages from the paternalism of home life to the freedom that awaits them in college. Williams Hall, with its close supervision, special hours, and home life, offers attractive and helpful surroundings to the young boy just leaving home for his school career. A natural and progressive development is provided for subsequent years in the houses and halls which are in charge of married instructors. The regulations which obtain in all dormitories are here in force, but there is in them the atmosphere of home. The later life of the dormitories is designed to develop a larger sense of responsibility and to prepare for the community life of college. Boys in the dormitories are under the supervision of instructors and are required to observe fully the regulations of the school. In the judgment of the school authorities the average boy will secure the best results intellectually and morally by following out this gradual change in residence.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

The requirements for admission to Phillips Academy consist in evidence of good character and of a satisfactory school record. The Academy being unable to receive all who apply for admission, even when they can meet its minimum requirements, is obliged to discriminate among the applicants on the basis of their school records. It asks each candidate for admission to take certain specified examinations, in part to enable it to discriminate fairly among the applicants, but chiefly to enable it to properly classify those who are admitted. The school record already made by an applicant — interpreted to some extent by these examinations — determines largely the Academy's decision on each applicant.

Students in the Academy arrange their work in accordance with the Course of Study as outlined on pages 50-51. This outline exhibits the work which is done each year by a student who is neither behind nor ahead of his class in any subject. It is not required that all the studies of the student shall be in the class in which he is rated; he is permitted to take individual subjects below or above that class, if his preparation in the prerequisites of those subjects justifies such action. But a student ordinarily is not permitted to take courses in one class to the exclusion of uncompleted courses in a lower class except in subjects continuing through successive years.

Applicants for admission to any of the three lower classes are asked to take entrance examinations set by the Academy on the work of such courses in its curriculum as they have completed. (In some subjects the examinations of the College Entrance Examination Board should be taken.) Each candidate should take the examinations for which his previous work fits him, irrespective of the class groups in which the subjects are listed below.

*Junior
Class*

To enter as a normal Junior (first-year class) a candidate must have completed an approved grammar school course. He must pass satisfactorily examinations (1) in the following topics of Arithmetic: common and decimal fractions, denominate numbers, percentage, interest, and square root, and (2) in such essentials of formal English grammar as are treated in Kittredge and Farley's Concise English Grammar (Ginn & Co.). The examination in English grammar will be combined with a test in spelling and composition. It is strongly recommended that candidates for the Junior Class become familiar with the declensions and conjugations of either Latin or French or German before entrance to the Academy.

Lower Middle Class

For those who wish to enter as normal Lower Middlers the Academy sets papers on the work done in its Junior year as outlined on page 50. These examinations cover

one year's work in Algebra, as described on page 59.

one year's work in French or German, as described on pages 54-55.

Upper Middle Class

Those who wish to enter as normal Upper Middlers should take examinations on the work of the Academy's first two years, as outlined on page 50. These examinations cover:

*At least one year's work in Algebra (see note below).

*Candidates for the Upper Middle Class in Courses B and C should have completed Elementary Algebra (Mathematics A, as defined by the College Entrance Examination Board) and should secure credit for this subject at the college for which they are preparing. Those who cannot secure this credit should take the Academy's examination covering its first year's work in Algebra, described on page 59. Candidates who pass that examination study Algebra² in the Academy.

Normal candidates for the Upper Middle Class in Course A are required to take the Academy's examination on its first year's work in Algebra, described on page 59. If the candidate can secure credit at college for Elementary Algebra Complete (Mathematics A, as defined by the College Entrance Examination Board), he should do so, and the Academy's examination in Algebra is waived.

two years' work in English, as described on page 57.

two years' work in Latin, as described on pages 53-54.

two years' work in French (or German) as described on pages 54-55.

one year's work in German (or French) or Greek, as described on pages 55-54-53.

As a substitute for any of its examinations the Academy will accept grades of 60% or higher obtained on a corresponding examination of the College Entrance Examination Board. It will also accept credits already established (by examination or certificate) at the college for which the candidate is preparing. Candidates who have completed a subject which they do not wish to continue should obtain credit at college for that subject instead of taking the Academy's examination. The Academy's examinations are designed to determine a candidate's ability to do further work in a subject and ordinarily do not give credit for a subject that is not to be continued.

Senior Class

Each Upper Middler in the Academy at the end of his Upper Middle year takes preliminary college examinations. Candidates for admission to the Senior Class, therefore, should secure credit, at the college for which they are preparing, for the work of the Academy's three lower years or its equivalent. These credits are obtained by passing college entrance examinations, or, in the case of those colleges which admit on the certificate plan, by presenting to the college such certificates as it requires.

The Academy occasionally admits to its Senior Class candidates for admission to college by the so-called "new plan". No candidate will be accepted on this basis unless he has completed an approved equivalent of the three lower years in the Academy, and has made an especially good record in scholarship. He must pass entrance examinations set by the Academy in those subjects already studied which he will continue.

Students are not admitted to the Senior Class later than the beginning of the winter term.

Classification Candidates who are admitted to the Academy and secure credits in the ways indicated in the preceding paragraphs are rated as

Juniors, if credited with fewer than 11 hours of the Academy's courses;

Lower Middlers, if credited with 11 to 28 hours;

Upper Middlers, if credited with 29 to 45 hours;

Seniors, if credited with 46 hours.

Procedure in applying In making application for admission to the Academy the form in the back of this catalogue should be used. It should be filled out carefully, and completely and forwarded to the Principal of the Academy. Testimonial letters may either accompany it or be sent later.

Certificates of standing in schools formerly attended are required. At the close of the school year, in June, the Academy sends to these institutions for complete official records of the candidates' work.

Each candidate should take in June such examinations as the requirements outlined on pages 19-20 demand. Candidates should not count on qualifying by means of September examinations without definite assurance from the school authorities of the possibility of their admission in this way. The pressure for admission in recent years makes such procedure difficult. Those who take college examinations or secure certificate credits at college should forward official returns to the Academy as soon as they are received.

Present members of the school are allowed first choice in room reservations for the following year. Rooms are assigned to incoming students about August 1, and in the order in which their admission applications are filed. Space for indicating room preference is provided on the admission application form.

*Entrance Examinations
Dates and Places*

Phillips Academy entrance examinations for candidates for the Junior, Lower Middle, and Upper Middle classes, and "new plan" candidates for the Senior class will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 16 and 17, 1925. The schedule of hours is announced in May. The examinations will be given in Andover: Phillips Academy, Graves Hall.

New York: Room 309, School of Business Building, Columbia University.

Examinations will be held in other large cities, in June only, if the number of candidates in any locality is sufficient.

For examinations held in Andover on these regular dates no fees are charged. For examinations held outside of Andover a fee of $5.00 is required.

Specimen examination papers will be supplied upon request.

The examinations of the College Entrance Examination Board are held in a large number of cities in the United States and abroad, during the week of June 15-20, 1925. Application to take these examinations should be made to the Secretary of the College Entrance Examination Board, 431 West 117th Street, New York City, in general before the middle of May.

On Tuesday, September 15, 1925, the Academy examinations will be held at 9.30 A.M., in Andover only, according to a schedule of rooms and hours announced at that time.

Special Students

No special students, except foreigners, are received in the Junior or Lower Middle year, and the Academy makes no provision for special students who are not candidates for graduation or for entrance to college or scientific school.

Special courses may be arranged in the Upper Middle and Senior years, only at the written request of parents and by special Faculty vote.

Diploma Requirements To receive the diploma of the Academy a student must have secured passing grades:

- (a) in all required subjects in the course selected,
- (b) in subjects which amount to at least 69 hours of the curriculum,
- (c) in a sufficient number of the subjects recognized by the College Entrance Examination Board to complete 15 units, and (d) in all subjects pursued in the Senior year.

Examinations and Promotions Written examinations are held in each study at least once a term, but the term grading is based on the results of both written examinations and daily work. A student who is guilty of dishonesty in an examination may be suspended or dismissed. At the close of each term, a report of the student's scholarship and attitude towards his work is sent to his parents or guardian. Mid-term reports are also sent for all students whose work is below the passing grade, 60%, and for those who obtain grades of 80% and above.

Class Officers Each student is assigned to the special care of a member of the faculty who is known as his Class Officer. This officer arranges the schedule of studies for each member of the class under his charge, and recommends such subsequent changes as seem desirable.

Division Officers The entire school is divided into groups of approximately twenty students each. Each group is assigned to the special charge of an instructor whose duty it is to familiarize himself with the previous history and present standing of the several members, and to serve as their counselor.

APPOINTMENTS

7.45 A.M. Morning chapel.
Daily 8.07 A.M. to 1.00 P.M. { Recitation Appointments 4.07 P.M. to 6.00 P.M. { and study hours.
8.00 P.M. Evening study hours begin.
10.30 A.M. and 5.15 P.M. Sunday chapel services.
Wednesday and Saturday afternoons are half-holidays.

Study Hours Students are expected to occupy themselves with their studies or other school work during all study hours.

Absences Every absence of the student from recitation, morning chapel, Sunday service, or from his room during study hours, must be accounted for. The accumulation of eight unexcused absences involves suspension from school. In all cases of illness, notice must be sent at once to the Medical Adviser, who investigates daily all cases reported.

Special importance is attached to meeting all appointments immediately preceding and following vacation and recess periods. A failure to meet such appointments must be regarded as a very serious offence and may necessitate withdrawal from school.

Out-of-Town All out-of-town excuses must be obtained from Excuses the Principal's office. On half-holidays and on special holidays such excuses are granted occasionally to those whose school standing is good. The student who goes out of town without permission forfeits his connection with the school.

Religious Students are required to be present at morning Exercises chapel. The Sunday services in the Chapel and the religious work of the school is conducted in connection with the Academy Church, an undenominational organization. Distinguished clergymen are frequently invited to preach to the school. Voluntary communion services are held in the Chapel during the year. The Society of Inquiry (the Christian Association of the school) holds a voluntary meeting on Sunday evening, which is often addressed by an invited speaker.

Upon written request from their parents, students may be excused to attend the morning services of the Protestant Episcopal, Baptist, or Roman Catholic churches.

EXPENSES

Parents can estimate approximately the expenses of their sons at the Academy, and they are particularly requested not to furnish money beyond what is necessary for modest expenditures. Pupils who are supplied with much spending money, or who are allowed to incur debts, often accomplish little in their studies, and are liable to form habits which require their withdrawal from the school. Parents are earnestly requested to refuse permission to their sons to contract debts.

The schedules below indicate the range of the school charges.

Tuition	$250.00	$250.00	$0 to 250.00
Room, light, and heat	100.00 to 350.00	225.00	0 to 50.00
Board	230.00 to 420.00	280.00	0 to 280.00
Athletic fee	20.00	20.00	0 to 12.00
	<hr/>	<hr/>	<hr/>
	$600.00 to 1040.00	$775.00	$0 to 592.00

Tuition Bills The tuition for the year is $250.00 divided as follows: three-fifths, or $150.00, payable October 1; two-fifths, or $100.00, payable on March 1. Each student is required to deposit with the Treasurer on entering the school the sum of $20.00 to cover breakage and other obligations which may be incurred during the school year. The balance remaining after such charges have been deducted will be returned, but not before the close of the fiscal year, June 30.

*For explanation of the items in Table 3 see pages 26 and 36.

An additional charge of $10.00 is made to members of the Senior class to cover the expenses of Commencement. A rebate of $1.50 from this charge is made if the student fails to secure his diploma. Students in Chemistry and Physics are charged for the supplies which they use. All bills are mailed to parents or guardians, but may be paid in person by the students. Classroom privileges will be denied to students whose bills are not settled on or before the dates mentioned above. As instructors must be engaged and other provisions for education must be made by the school authorities for the entire year in advance, tuition charges will not be refunded when students are suspended, dismissed, or withdrawn during the school year. Checks should be drawn in favor of the Trustees of Phillips Academy.

Infirmary Service A charge of four dollars a day to each student is made for infirmary service which includes room and board. Extra charges are made for nurses employed in addition to the regular nursing staff. Local physicians render their bills for services directly to parents or guardians.

Athletic Fee A charge of $20.00 is made for the maintenance of athletics, but for scholarship boys this charge is $12.00 a year which may be paid wholly or in part by the performance of special work assigned by the Bureau of Self-Help. Three-fifths of the total amount of this charge is payable October 1st, and two-fifths on March 1st. Students are not asked to contribute further to the financial support of the various school teams.

Room Rents Payments for student rooms in the school buildings are required as follows: three-fifths of the entire yearly rental on or before October 1; the remaining two-fifths on March 1. A deposit of $25.00, which will be credited to the first regular payment of room rent, is required when the contract for the room assigned is filed. When a room is assigned to a student, his parent or guardian agrees by contract to pay the entire rental of the room up to the close of the current school year, whether the student continues a member of the Academy or not. The right is reserved by the Trustees to transfer boys from room to room in the school buildings whenever changes seem desirable; such changes, however, do not relieve the original occupants from the obligation of meeting the entire year's rent unless newcomers are secured to fill the vacancies.

Each room is furnished with a rug, desk, chiffonier, two chairs, bed, mattress, pillow, sheets, pillow cases, and one pair of blankets. Towels are not included.

Room Scholarships About twenty "room scholarships" amounting to approximately $50.00 each are available for deserving boys. These scholarships will be credited to the regular room charges on the recipients' term bills and will be awarded by the Principal to boys whose circumstances compel them to keep their expenses at a low average.

Dining Hall The equipment of the Academy includes a well-appointed Dining Hall which accommodates two hundred and fifty boys. A fixed charge of $4.50 a week, payable one term in advance, has been made during the year 1924-1925 to cover light, heat, service, and food such as soups, vegetables, cereals, bread, butter, milk, coffee, tea, etc. Meats, fish, eggs, and desserts are served a la carte at cost and are charged against meal-tickets which are sold at $5.00 each. The average cost has been about $8.00 a week.

Private Houses About eleven private houses in the vicinity of the Academy, under license from the Trustees, provide board and lodgings for students, and no student may occupy any house not thus licensed by the school. Some of the houses provide furnished rooms only; others provide rooms and board, and some furnish board for students rooming in neighboring houses. The price of table board is $10.00 and $12.00 a week. Students rooming in private families may, if they desire, board at the Dining Hall. The price of furnished rooms, including ordinary service, is from $5.00 to $7.50 a week.

Engagements for table board may, on suitable notice, be terminated at the close of any term. Arrangements and payments for room and board in private houses must be made with those in charge of the houses.

BUILDINGS AND EQUIPMENT

*Williams Hall
A Dormitory
for Young Boys* Through the generosity of Prof. Edward H. Williams, Jr., of the class of 1868, the school in 1910 secured possession of a valuable piece of property for the housing and care of younger boys. The property, comprising several acres, adjoins the Old Campus and is within a short distance of the other school buildings.

Williams Hall has attractive accommodations for forty-two boys. The rooms are spacious, light, and airy, and are heated with hot water and lighted with electricity. On the main floor is a common reading and recreation room. Table board is furnished in the building to all occupants of the house.

It is the aim of the Trustees to provide in this building surroundings as helpful as possible for the best development of young boys, and to this end they have placed it in charge of a married instructor. Boys whose work is below standard may be required to report at seven-thirty each evening, when they work under supervision and are free to consult the resident instructor and his assistants in regard to their studies.

Williams Hall supplies a stepping-stone between the natural restrictions of the home and the somewhat freer life of a large school. Although the boys who live here have all the advantages that Phillips Academy offers, they are under somewhat closer supervision than is customary throughout the rest of the school. For the school year 1925-1926 the charge for room and board in Williams Hall, not including the regular tuition charge, will be $750.00. A limited number of room scholarships are awarded annually in this hall. A special circular explaining in detail the equipment and arrangements of Williams Hall, and containing both interior and exterior views of this building, will be furnished on request.

Faculty Houses The school provides for dormitory purposes twelve houses formerly occupied as private dwellings. These houses are suitable for younger boys, especially those who are members of the two lower classes. Each house is in charge of a resident instructor. The rooms are furnished, and the charges include heat, light, and care of the rooms.

The Abbot House provides accommodations for eighteen boys, the Blanchard House for eight, the Cheever House for twelve, the Churchill House for six, the Clement House for thirteen, the Farrar House for six, the Hardy House for five, the Park House for eight, the Pease House for nine, the Tower House for four, the Tucker House for seven, and the Woods House for five.

The America House provides accommodations for twelve and the Berry House for six students and table board can be secured in them.

Dormitories Through the generous gifts of Mr. Melville C. Day of the class of 1858, Mr. Warren F. Draper of the class of 1843, and a number of citizens of Andover, and by the purchase of the property formerly belonging to the Andover Theological Seminary, the Academy now possesses thoroughly modern dormitories providing at reasonable rates attractive accommodations for almost the entire student body. Below is given a brief description of these various buildings, and a list of the prices of rooms in each will be found on pages 27-28. With the exception of some of the Faculty Houses and Williams Hall these buildings are of brick. All are furnished, heated by steam, lighted by electricity, and equipped with shower-baths and the modern sanitary conveniences. Most of the study rooms have open fireplaces. Each building or entry is in charge of a resident instructor.

PHILLIPS HALL, erected in 1808, was entirely remodeled in 1912. It is divided by a fire wall into two separate entries and provides accommodations for seventeen boys in each entry.

BARTLET HALL was erected in 1820 and entirely rebuilt in 1915. This building also is divided by a fire wall into two separate entries, and contains both double and single suites, accommodating twenty-one boys in each entry.

PEMBERTON COTTAGE, erected in 1891, contains five double suites.

ANDOVER COTTAGE, erected in 1892, contains four double suites, one single suite, and two single rooms.

DRAPER COTTAGE, erected in 1892, contains five double suites.

EATON COTTAGE, erected in 1892, contains four double suites and two single suites.

BANCROFT HALL, erected in 1900, contains sixteen double suites. The building is divided by fire walls into three separate entries, each entry accommodating ten boys.

DAY HALL, erected in 1911, contains twelve double suites, two single suites, and twenty single rooms. The building is divided by a fire wall into two separate entries, each entry accommodating twenty-three boys.

BISHOP HALL, erected in 1911, is similar in its arrangement and appointments to Day Hall and accommodates the same number of boys.

ADAMS HALL, erected in 1912, is divided into two separate entries, each of which, like the Faculty Houses, is in charge of a married instructor. Each entry accommodates twenty boys.

TAYLOR HALL, erected in 1913, accommodates twenty boys in each of its two entries and is in charge of two married instructors.

JOHNSON HALL, erected in 1922, is similar in its arrangement and appointments to Taylor Hall and accommodates the same number of boys.

(For prices of rooms see pages 27-28.)

New	This latest and largest addition to the school
Recitation	plant was completed in 1924. The building,
Building	which contains twenty-six recitation rooms and two examination rooms and is thoroughly modern in every respect, was made possible through the activity and interest of the alumni of the school who generously provided the funds required for its erection.

Graves Hall Graves Hall, devoted to Science, contains in addition to the large and well-equipped laboratories for Physics, Chemistry, and Biology, two recitation rooms, a lecture room, and a drafting room.

Pearson Hall Pearson Hall, erected in 1817 and remodeled in 1878, and again in 1922, is used for recitation purposes. It contains four large recitation rooms and three conference rooms.

Archaeology Building This building contains rooms for the collection of the Department of Archaeology and a lecture room.

VI.

Peabody House Peabody House bears the name of the founders of the Archaeological department, with the funds of which it was erected. The building carries out the expressed wishes of Mr. and Mrs. Peabody that their benefaction should promote the social interests of the student body as well as further the study of American Archaeology. Quarters are provided for the Phillips Union and include a well appointed grill, a large and attractive reading room, and a memorial room used as an assembly hall for receptions, lectures, and meetings of the various organizations of the school.

Administration Offices and Library Brechin Hall is used for administrative and library purposes. The lower floor contains the offices of the Principal, the Treasurer, and the Registrar. A large hall on the upper floor is devoted to the library of about sixteen thousand volumes, which is in charge of a trained librarian and is open daily for the use of students.

The Chapel The Chapel, erected in 1875 and enlarged in 1920, provides accommodations for the religious exercises of the school. The daily morning chapel exercises and the Sunday preaching and vesper services are held in this building. The Chapel contains the William Couch Eggleston memorial organ.

*Borden
Gymnasium* The Academy has a large gymnasium, completely equipped with modern apparatus, and in charge of a Physical Director who is also the Medical Adviser. Students of all classes are required to take regular gymnasium work.

Swimming Pool The swimming pool, adjoining the gymnasium, is seventy-five feet long and thirty feet wide, and represents the most modern ideas in swimming pool construction. The elaborate filtration plant in the basement of the building assures the purity of the water used in the pool.

The swimming pool was constructed in 1910 with funds secured entirely by the efforts of the students themselves.

*The Case
Memorial
Building* The Case Memorial Building, erected in 1923, by Mr. and Mrs. George B. Case and family in memory of George B. Case, Jr., provides unusual facilities for all kinds of athletic activities and healthful recreation during the winter term and on stormy days when such activities are not possible on the regular playing fields.

Phillips Inn The school property includes a well-equipped hotel, situated near the centre of the grounds, under lease to a manager, and furnishing to parents and friends of the school quiet and comfortable accommodations.

*The Isham
Infirmary* The Academy maintains an infirmary, the generous gift of Miss Flora E. Isham, whose name it bears. The infirmary was completed in 1912, is thoroughly modern in all its appointments, and was carefully planned under the direction of experts in hospital construction. In addition to the general wards, it contains single rooms for those requiring special treatment, and an operating room. The contagious wards are completely separated from the ordinary wards, and at each end of the building there is a large sun parlor entirely encased in glass. Boys who are sufficiently indisposed to be unable to attend classes are sent to the infirmary for proper care. Except when special arrangements have been made in advance by parents or guardians, the following regulations will be observed in the conduct of the infirmary. Patients at the infirmary requiring medical attention shall call in local physicians approved by the school authorities. In cases requiring the attendance of specialists, the best men available in Boston will be called in consultation. In special emergencies, when operations seem necessary and parents cannot be consulted in advance, the Principal of the school assumes responsibility for authorizing such operations. The Medical Adviser may at any time examine and report upon individual cases.

Athletic Grounds Brothers' Field, comprising twenty-three acres, is in close proximity to the gymnasium and contains ample facilities for baseball, football, and track athletics. The Academy possesses other extensive grounds for various athletic sports, including baseball, football, soccer, and tennis.

Bulletin The Bulletin, a magazine devoted to the interests and history of the school and its alumni, is published four times a year and sent to all former members of Phillips Academy whose addresses are known.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Scholarship Aid

The sums granted as scholarships vary according to the excellence of the boys in their studies, a student of the highest rank receiving a sum equivalent to the full tuition fee and room rent. Every new applicant for a scholarship must pay on entering the Academy the sum of $50 toward his tuition. This sum is not remitted. At the close of each term scholarships are adjusted in accordance with the student's record in his studies during that term. Boys of limited means who possess scholarly ability and ambition are encouraged to apply for admission, and, if admitted, may be reasonably sure of financial assistance.

Special Provision for Scholarship Boys

Furnished rooms are set apart in various dormitories for boys who are obliged to keep their expenses within the lowest possible limits. A rental of $40 to $50 is charged each occupant of these rooms. Choice of room is determined by the scholarship rank of the applicant.

Self Help

Ample opportunities are afforded by the Academy to scholarship boys to earn a portion of their school charges. Service in the Dining Hall and boarding houses enables them to earn their board. Several agencies are assigned by the Bureau of Self Help and a number of students may earn a portion of the school charges by work in connection with the school offices. An energetic boy may find various other chances for remunerative work.

SYNOPSIS OF THE COURSES OF STUDY

As the subjects are taught with a view to the student's progressive development, it is desirable for him to take the entire course in the Academy. In recent years the Academy has been forced to limit rigidly the number admitted to the Senior class.

In order that the student may plan his work to the greatest advantage, it is important that he decide as early as possible upon the higher institution which he intends to enter. A proper choice of course and of elective subjects will furnish adequate preparation for any college or scientific school.

Physical Training (4 hours a week) is required of all students.

All Seniors must report to the Librarian for instruction in the use of the library.

In order to define the work of the pupil in his Senior year, Upper Middlers are required to take preliminary examinations for some college. June examinations, both preliminary and final, are held in Andover by the College Entrance Examination Board.

For references see footnotes on page 51.

G R E E K

The first year (Greek¹) is devoted mainly to forms and the most essential principles of syntax. Benner and Smyth's Beginner's Greek Book is used. To aid the memorizing of inflections and vocabularies there are daily exercises, both oral and written, enforced by incessant drill. During the second and third terms work in the grammar is supplemented by lessons from a very simple Greek Reader.

The second year (Greek²) is occupied with Xenophon's Anabasis, Books I-IV, or an equivalent, with sight reading, translation from English into Greek, and grammar reviews. Great effort is made to secure simple, idiomatic English in both oral and written work. Grammar and composition are studied throughout the year and occupy a part of every recitation period.

There is an elective course in the Greek Testament — one hour a week — open to both Upper Middlers and Seniors.

The third year (Greek³) is spent mainly in reading selected books of the Iliad and the Odyssey. After the dialect is mastered, more attention is given to the literary side of the poems and to the translation of Homer at sight, about 5000 verses being read during the year.

L A T I N

The first year (Latin¹) is occupied with the mastery of such vocabulary, inflexions, and syntax as the better manuals for beginners provide. There is constant practice in the reading and writing of simple prose, and in observing the relation of Latin to English words. The course aims at a thoroughly dependable foundation for subsequent reading and study. As the normal course is one of only four years, it is imperative that candidates should have a competent knowledge of the fundamentals of English grammar. It is desirable also that, before entering the Academy, they should be familiar with the ordinary forms of the Latin declensions and conjugations.

In the second year (Latin²) Books I-IV (or equivalent amounts in other books) of the Gallic War of Caesar, and five or six Lives of Nepos, or other prose, are studied, with emphasis upon subject-matter, syntax, and vocabulary. Twenty per cent of the total time allotted to the course is given to prose composition based upon the texts read. There is continual practice in sight translation and reading aloud.

In the third year (Latin³) the course aims chiefly to make the student familiar with the characteristics of Cicero's oratory. The work in Latin prose composition is devoted to connected narrative. The orations against Catiline, for the Manilian Law, for Archias, and for Marcellus (or equivalent amounts of other writings of Cicero or Sallust) are read. There is also sight reading and practice in reading aloud.

In the fourth year (Latin⁴) effort is made to cultivate a sympathetic appreciation of the essentials of good poetry. Books I-VI of the Aeneid, with selections from the Metamorphoses of Ovid, as required by the College Entrance Examination Board, form the basis of the reading. Topics in the private life and customs of the Romans are studied and illustrated.

F R E N C H

The first year's work (French¹) comprises the principles of pronunciation, drill in the fundamentals of grammar including the inflections of the regular and the more common irregular verbs, of nouns, of adjectives, of participles, of pronouns; the uses of pronouns, the simple uses of the conditional and subjunctive, and the elementary rules of syntax; abundant easy exercises for oral translation into French, and the reading of about two hundred pages of easy French prose. The following texts have been used. Kuhn's Reader, Super's Reader, Aldrich and Foster's Reader, La Tulipe Noire, L'Été de la Saint-Martin, Sans Famille, and Morrison and Gautier's French Grammar.

The second-year course (French²) of four hours completes the elementary work in French and prepares for the College Board examinations in Elementary French. It includes a review of elementary grammar and continued work in composition and translation. Such texts as Colomba, La Mère de la Marquise, Le Roi des Montagnes, Syntax of the French Verb, and Galland's Composition have been used.

The third year (French³) covers the requirement of the College Board in Intermediate French. Contes de Daudet, La Débâcle, Les Misérables, and similar texts furnish material for translation, and work in composition and grammar is done throughout the year.

The fourth-year work (French⁴) consists of easy conversation with reading. This course is for those who have passed the college examinations and who wish to continue their work in the language.

GERMAN

The first year's work (German¹) includes a constant drill in pronunciation and a thorough course in elementary grammar. Abundant easy exercises are translated into German and used as the basis of oral and aural practice. A limited amount of memorizing of German idioms and poetry, and translation from German into English are required. Bacon's New German Grammar and various easy texts are used in this work.

The second-year course (German²) completes the preparation for the College Board examination in Elementary German. It comprises a thorough review of the grammar and a considerable amount of more advanced translation and composition. Conversational work is continued by the use of such helps as Ballard and Krause's Short Stories for Oral German. Ham and Leonard's German Grammar has been used in this course and various texts like Wildenbruch's Das edle Blut, Heine's Die Harzreise, Burkhard's German Poems, Riehl's Der Fluch der Schönheit, and Schiller's Wilhelm Tell are read.

The third year's work (German³) prepares for the examination in Intermediate German as set by College Entrance Examination Board. Grammar is rapidly reviewed and advanced composition written throughout the year. Chiles' German Prose Composition and Whitney and Stroebe's Easy German Composition have been used in this connection. Oral work is continued, and such texts as Freytag's Die Journalisten, Goethe's Hermann und Dorothea, Keller's Kleider machen Leute, and Schiller's Der Dreissigjährige Krieg III are studied.

The fourth-year course (German⁴) of two hours a week is open to those who have secured credit for three years of German, and, upon consultation with the instructor, to others who satisfy him of their ability. The course will be adapted to the maturity of the students and their proficiency in German. Half the time will be spent in conversational practice on everyday topics and German life and institutions, the remainder in rapid reading and interpretation of some phase of German literature. Wagner's Tannhäuser has been studied and the original Middle High German poems of the old singers discussed and put into modern German. Students in this course are not recommended for additional college credits in German.

SPANISH

The first year's work (Spanish¹) is as follows: — (a) thorough drill in the principles of pronunciation; (b) rules of syntax and essentials of Spanish grammar including the inflection of verbs (regular and irregular), nouns, adjectives, pronouns, the uses of the conditional and subjunctive; (c) abundant easy exercises for translation into Spanish; (d) the translation of two hundred or more pages of easy Spanish prose, such as is contained in Hills' Spanish Tales, Bergé-Soler and Hatheway's Reader, Morrison's Tres Comedias, Alarcón's Short Stories, Isaac's María, and Asensi's Victoria; grammars such as De Vitis', Hills and Ford's, Crawford's First Book in Spanish, and Moreno-Lacalle's Elementos de Español.

The second-year course (Spanish²) completes the elementary course in Spanish, and prepares for the College Board examination in this subject. It consists of a complete review of Spanish grammar and continued work in composition and translation. Such texts as El Capitán Veneno, José, Zaragüeta, Espinosa and Allen's Spanish Grammar, and Umphrey's Spanish Prose Composition have been used.

ENGLISH

The work of English¹ in composition is based on themes, — simple narratives and descriptions — written in the class-room. Attention is given to the correction of grammatical errors in speech and writing, with necessary consideration of formal grammar; to elementary matters of the structure and the punctuation of the sentence; to spelling; and to the acquisition of a vocabulary. The work in literature consists in reading aloud and discussing in the class-room a few short works in verse and prose. Considerable emphasis is placed on enunciation and pronunciation. (Students planning to enter the Lower Middle class in English are advised to read St. Ives, Nicholas Nickleby, and Les Misérables, but equivalents will be accepted.)

In the teaching of composition in English², the general plan of the preceding year is continued, with a somewhat higher standard of requirement, the chief object being to secure plenty of practice. Themes are written outside of the class-room as well as during the recitation period. The study of some elementary matters of rhetoric is begun.

The textbook used for the work in composition is Ward's Sentence and Theme. The study of literature comprises the careful reading of some books and the rapid reading of others. Among the books prescribed are: Richard II, Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, The Woman in White, The Virginian, and English Narrative Poems (Fuess and Sanborn). Particular attention is given to oral English, each student being required to deliver two carefully prepared speeches each term and to read aloud in the class-room as frequently as possible.

In English³ the thorough study of formal rhetoric is begun. As many themes as possible are written outside of the class-room, and considerable writing is done in the class-room. The textbook used is Herrick and Damon's New Composition and Rhetoric. The course in literature includes the careful reading of six or seven books, selected in part from the list for reading (A) prescribed in the College Entrance Requirements; the lives of the authors; and the rapid reading, optional or required, of as many other books as possible.

In English⁴ the principles of composition-rhetoric studied in the preceding year are reviewed, with a higher standard of requirement in their application to writing. Herrick and Damon's New Composition and Rhetoric is used in this year also. Frequent themes and writing in the class-room are required. The course in literature includes the rapid reading of some books and the careful study of others; the life and times of the chief authors; and as much supplementary reading as possible. The work of this year completes the preparation for the comprehensive examination offered by the College Entrance Examination Board.

PUBLIC SPEAKING

Public Speaking is taken up as part of the Lower Middle English course.

An elective course in Public Speaking comprises training in the preparation and delivery of expositions, argumentative speeches and debates. There is some work in declamation and a considerable amount of extemporaneous speaking.

ENGLISH BIBLE

A two-hour course in the English Bible is offered as a Senior elective. The course is primarily a course in the life of Christ with sufficient attention to the books of the Old Testament to familiarize the student somewhat with the historical and didactic background of this life. The text-books used are: The Old Testament Narrative by Sheffield; The Prophetical Books in "Everyman's Library" from the four volumes entitled Ancient Hebrew Literature; and The New Testament.

ALGEBRA

Algebra¹. The study of Algebra is begun in the Junior year in a course occupying five hours a week throughout the year. Durell and Arnold's First Book in Algebra (enlarged edition) is completed during the year.

Algebra². This course provides a review of Algebra¹ and continues the subject through all the topics of Elementary and Intermediate Algebra named in the recently revised statement of requirements of the College Entrance Examination Board. Candidates for entrance to the Academy desiring credit for this course must present a college entrance certificate giving credit for both Elementary and Intermediate Algebra.

Algebra³. This course covers the topics in Advanced Algebra specified by the College Entrance Examination Board and meets the entrance requirements of all colleges and scientific schools. If not offered for admission it may be used to secure advanced credit at some colleges.

GEOMETRY

Demonstrative Plane Geometry is begun and completed in a single year. Four, or five, recitations a week are given to the subject. The chief aim of the instruction is to develop in each student the ability to reason clearly and logically. Accuracy, clearness, and completeness of statement are insisted upon. To develop originality and independence of thought, about two-thirds of the time is devoted to the solution of exercises of gradually increasing difficulty.

In the Senior year Solid Geometry is taught four hours a week during the winter term and two hours during the spring term. The course meets the entrance requirements of all colleges and scientific schools, and, when not offered for admission, may be substituted for Freshman work in the subject.

TRIGONOMETRY

A course in Plane Trigonometry meeting four hours a week during the fall term and two hours during the spring term, forms, with Solid Geometry, a full four-hour course for the Senior year. It meets the entrance requirements of all colleges and scientific schools, and may be substituted for Freshman work in the subject, if not used toward admission.

MECHANICAL DRAWING

Six hours each week are given to this course. It includes the use of drawing instruments, lettering, geometric constructions, orthographic and isometric projections, developments, intersections, sectioning, and working drawings. Especial stress is laid on a thorough mastering of the fundamentals. The course meets the requirements of the College Entrance Examination Board and in many instances so prepares the student that he can obtain advance credit for the subject on his entrance to college. Students of exceptional ability are given an opportunity to do more advanced work or are given problems in keeping with the course to be pursued after entrance to college.

PHYSICS

The instruction in Physics is given by the use of a text-book and by practical work in the laboratory. The text is accompanied with numerical examples and by qualitative experiments designed to illustrate physical laws and their application to practical life.

Forty or more quantitative laboratory experiments are required of each pupil. A careful record of the steps and results of these exercises is kept in a note-book which is submitted to the instructor for approval.

CHEMISTRY

BIOLOGY

The course in Biology covers the fundamental characteristics of living things; the nutrition, growth, and reproduction of plants and animals; the physiology and hygiene of the human body; the influence of bacteria, insects, trees, and birds on man's welfare; and the principles of heredity and evolution.

The class meets four times a week, twice for recitations and twice for two-hour laboratory periods. The work in the laboratory includes careful training in the use of the compound microscope and in the recording of observations made. The instruction meets the requirement of the College Entrance Board and counts one point for admission to college.

ARCHÆOLOGY

The work of the department is chiefly confined to the United States, and research in other subjects than American archæology is not extensively attempted.

At present the collections number about 120,000 specimens, all of which represent the stone age art.

The publications of the department number nine: — Bulletin No. 1, on the Exploration of Jacob's Cavern; No. 2, The Gorgets; No. 3, Field Work in Ohio, Tennessee, Kentucky, Arizona, and New Mexico; No. 4, The Exploration of Bushey Cavern and the Exploration of Fort Ancient; No. 5, A Study and Description of the Seven Prehistoric Earthworks found near Andover; No. 6, A Study of Hematite Implements found in the United States; No. 7, Archaeological Explorations in the State of Maine. Southwestern series, No. 1, An Introduction to the Study of Southwestern Archaeology. No. 2, The Potter's Art at San Ildefonso, New Mexico.

HISTORY

Courses are offered in Ancient History, English History, American History, and modern European History.

PHILOSOPHY

A two-hour Senior elective is offered in this subject, the object of the course being to present a general introduction to the field for those students who may wish to continue their philosophical studies at college or the university. The first term is devoted to talks on Greek Philosophy and the reading of Berkeley's Dialogues between Hylas and Philonous; the second to talks on Mediæval Philosophy and the reading of Hume's Enquiry Concerning Human Understanding; the third term to talks on Modern Philosophy and Psychology. The text-books used, in addition to those mentioned, are: Weber, History of Philosophy, and James, Shorter Course in Psychology.

PHYSICAL TRAINING

All students are required to take some form of exercise during the school year. Upon entering the school each boy receives a careful physical and medical examination, and a form of exercise suited to his peculiar needs is advised. Special attention is given to those who lack normal development. The school, club, and squad teams give all students an opportunity to compete in sports with those of their own relative ability. No student is allowed to compete on school teams unless permission indicating his fitness is received from the Physical Director.

MUSIC

Opportunity for the study of piano and organ is offered by the Department of Music. The piano instruction is in charge of Messrs. Felix Fox and Harrison Potter of Boston. The organ lessons are given by the Director of Music.

A two-hour course in Harmony is given as an elective.

Students who sing in the choir, every member attending two rehearsals a week, are offered one of three forms of compensation: (a) financial; (b) one athletic or chapel cut a week; (c) permission to count the choir work as one schedule-hour.

Serious attention is given the school orchestra which rehearses weekly and studies carefully both classical and modern compositions.

During the academic year 1924-1925 the following concerts were given: an organ recital by M. Dupre of Paris; a trio recital by Messrs. Fox, soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Burgin, concert-master of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Bedetti, cello soloist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; a vocal recital by Cora Chase of the Metropolitan Opera Company; the usual Christmas, Easter, and Commencement recitals, and, on the Sunday afternoons of the winter term a series of Historical Organ Recitals by the Director of Music; the annual performance by the combined musical clubs; the joint concert with Bradford Academy; a carillon recital by M. Lefevre of Malines, Belgium; and during the fall and spring terms carillon recitals by the Director of Music.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY

Phillips Academy is not a private school, but an endowed academy, controlled by a Board of Trustees and administered under the written constitution of its founders. By the terms of this Constitution, or Deed of Gift, signed April 21, 1778, Esquire Samuel Phillips (1715-1790) of North Andover and his brother, John Phillips (1719-1795) of Exeter, New Hampshire, set aside tracts of about 141 acres on Andover Hill and 200 acres in Jaffrey, New Hampshire, together with the sum of 1614 pounds, as a foundation for a school. This document, outlining the broad principles upon which the proposed institution was to be conducted, was composed by Esquire Phillips's son, Samuel Phillips, Jr. (1752-1802), with the advice and aid of his friend, Eliphalet Pearson (1752-1826). Samuel Phillips, Jr., was afterwards Judge of the Massachusetts Court of Common Pleas, President of the Senate, and Lieutenant-Governor of the Commonwealth.

Although Judge Phillips derived many of his educational theories from the writings of John Locke and from the English nonconformist schools with the scheme of which he was familiar, his plan was nevertheless highly original. The purpose of the academy was specifically stated in the following words:—

“And, in order to prevent the smallest subversion of the true intent of this Foundation, it is again declared, that the first and principal object of this Institution is the promotion of true Piety and Virtue; the second, instruction in English, Latin, and Greek languages, together with Writing, Arithmetic, Music, and the Art of Speaking; the third, practical Geometry, Logic, and Geography; and the fourth, such other of the liberal Arts and Sciences, or Languages, as opportunity and ability may hereafter admit, and as the Trustees shall direct.”

The chief emphasis was laid on the development of character, and the Master was to take pains "to regulate the tempers, to enlarge the minds, and form the Morals of the Youth committed to his care". It was stipulated, also, that the school "shall be ever equally open to youth, of requisite qualifications, from every quarter". The government was placed in the hands of a self-perpetuating Board of Trustees. In order to prevent sectarianism and provincialism, it was specified that a majority of the members should be laymen, and that more than half must not be residents of the town in which the academy is located. The Trustees were hampered by no vexatious or trivial restrictions, but were given sole authority over the institution. By the provisions of the Act of Incorporation, passed by the General Court, October 4, 1780, their number was fixed at never more than thirteen or less than seven, and they were permitted to possess real estate with an income not exceeding five hundred pounds and personal property with an income not greater than two thousand pounds. These holding powers have since been considerably enlarged by legislative enactments, as the school has grown.

The first meeting of the Board of Trustees was held on Tuesday, April 28, 1778. Of the twelve original members, four were members of the Phillips family: Esquire Samuel Phillips, John Phillips, William Phillips of Boston, and Samuel Phillips, Jr. These men became in turn the first four presidents of the Board. The other members, all relatives or close friends of the Phillips family, were John Lowell and Oliver Wendell of Boston, Rev. Josiah Stearns of Epping, Rev. Elias Smith of Middleton, Rev. William Symmes of North Andover, and Rev. Jonathan French, Nehemiah Abbot, Esq., and Eliphalet Pearson of Andover.

Phillips School, as it was called until its incorporation, was opened for instruction April 30, 1778, in a remodeled carpenter's shop on Andover Hill, thirteen pupils being present; before the year was over, fifty-two had registered. The first principal was Eliphalet Pearson, a stimulating teacher and stern disciplinarian, who established high standards of instruction and supervision. Shortly before he resigned in 1786 to become a professor at Harvard, a new wooden building was erected to meet the demands of the rapidly expanding school. Pearson was succeeded by Ebenezer Pemberton, a polite and scholarly master, who devoted much attention to the manners of his pupils. When he left in 1793, he was followed in office by Mark Newman, in whose administration the Andover Theological Seminary was founded, largely through the efforts of Dr. Pearson. This seminary, which was opened September 28, 1808, was placed under the jurisdiction of the Board of Trustees of Phillips Academy, and remained in Andover almost exactly a century.

The fourth principal, John Adams, who replaced Newman in 1810, raised the prestige of the school, increased the attendance, and enlarged the faculty. He published the first catalogue and made the first revision of the curriculum; but his primary interest was in the moral welfare of the boys. The second Academy building was burned on January 28, 1818, and a new brick, colonial edifice, designed by the famous architect Bulfinch, was erected within a year; this "classic hall", described in Oliver Wendell Holmes's poem, The School Boy, is now in use as the Dining Hall. In 1830 the Teachers' Seminary, a new institution made possible by a bequest of His Honor, William Phillips (1750-1827) of Boston, was opened in a massive square structure, commonly known as the Stone Academy, built for that purpose. This Teachers' Seminary, combining the aims of a normal school and a scientific school, was the second of its kind in the United States. After twelve years of existence with only moderate success it was finally, in 1842, merged with Phillips Academy as the "English Department", a name which was changed in 1892 to a more nearly accurate title, "Scientific Department".

In 1832 John Adams resigned at the age of sixty and Osgood Johnson was elected principal. Unfortunately he died in 1837, of consumption, in his thirty-fifth year. During his administration the "Commons", dormitories known to so many generations of Phillips boys, were built under the direction of Samuel Farrar, Esq., Treasurer of the Trustees.

Samuel H. Taylor, whose reign of thirty-four years was the longest in the school history, became principal in 1837. The word "reign" is used advisedly, for he was an autocrat, severe in his methods of government and prompt to punish offenders. "Uncle Sam", as he was familiarly called, was a relentless drill-master in the classics and gained a well-deserved reputation for thoroughness and accuracy. He was a strong and vigorous personality, who made an enduring impression on all who came under his influence. In 1864 the Stone Academy was destroyed by fire, and was replaced by the Main Building, which has since been twice reconstructed. In 1865 Mr. George Peabody gave $25,000 to found the Peabody Instructorship in Natural Sciences, first filled by the late William B. Graves. Dr. Taylor, on January 29, 1871, dropped dead in the vestibule of the Main Building. For the next two years the office of principal was held by Frederic W. Tilton, who, however, could do little in that short period.

The modern era of development began in 1873 with the arrival of Cecil F. P. Bancroft, who was principal until his death in 1901. Dr. Bancroft, working in a quiet, tactful, but persistent way, brought about many needed reforms. He first made a complete revision of the curriculum, thus enabling the school to meet the entrance requirements of any college, classical or scientific, and greatly broadening the range of studies. In his effort to gather about himself a larger and more efficient body of teachers he was entirely successful. The attendance also increased: in 1873 there were 252 pupils; in 1895 this had grown to 524, and after 1892 it never again dropped below 400. Dr. Bancroft also strove to secure additions to the plant, especially by providing dormitories in which boys could live under the direct supervision of instructors. He was aided in this aim by Melville C. Day of the class of 1858, who, in 1892, gave $8000 for a new dormitory, Taylor Cottage (now Pemberton Cottage), which was the beginning of the present extensive system of houses for students. Mr. Day continued his gifts, providing in all six dormitories which to-day furnish rooms for 168 boys, besides the teachers in charge. At his death in 1913 Mr. Day made Phillips Academy his residuary legatee. His gifts to the school amount in all to over $800,000.

On June 5 and 6, 1878, Phillips Academy celebrated its centennial anniversary with elaborate exercises, including an historical paper by Rev. William E. Park, an oration by Rev. Alexander McKenzie, a poem by Oliver Wendell Holmes, and speeches by Phillips Brooks, Josiah Quincy, Gustavus V. Fox, and other distinguished men associated with the school. At this time a fund of $100,000 was raised, partly for the endowment of a principalship and a professorship in Latin.

Dr. Bancroft's period was marked by both progress and expansion. He was a man of clear vision and foresight, firm will, and shrewd discrimination, who had the good sense to be patient until circumstances were favorable for pressing his projects. His policy has been maintained by his successor, Alfred E. Stearns, during whose administration Phillips Academy has grown in material equipment, in numbers, and in efficiency. In 1908, when Andover Theological Seminary was moved to Cambridge, the Trustees acquired the entire Seminary plant on Andover Hill at a cost of $200,000, thus more than doubling its property in land and buildings. In 1901 two generous benefactors of the school, Mr. R. Singleton Peabody of the class of 1857, and his wife, Margaret Peabody, established the Archaeological Department and provided for it a large endowment for instruction, publication, and research, and for the care and housing of collections in American Archaeology.

The official installation of Principal Stearns into office happily coincided with the celebration of the 125th anniversary of the founding of the school, held on June 16, 1903. The guest of honor was His Excellency, Sir Chentung Liang Cheng, Minister Plenipotentiary from the Chinese Empire to the United States, who was a student at Phillips Academy in 1880 and 1881. At the exercises in the new Borden Gymnasium the speakers were Dr. Alexander McKenzie, Hon. Robert R. Bishop, Sir Chentung Liang Cheng, and Mr. Stearns. On the same day Brothers' Field was dedicated with an address from the principal donor, Mr. George B. Knapp.

Concerning the significant developments of recent years, important though they are, little need be said here. At his death in 1917, Colonel Oliver Hazard Payne, of the class of 1859, bequeathed to the academy the sum of $500,000, this being the largest single gift yet made to the Trustees. In 1919, at the instigation of an alumni committee, a nation-wide campaign for a Building and Endowment Fund of $1,500,000 was opened, and has resulted in the securing of about $1,600,000. The income of two-thirds of this amount was devoted to the salaries of teachers and officers.

In the World War, Phillips Academy played a distinguished part. Its Ambulance Unit, which sailed overseas in April 1917, was the first to be sent from any American school, and its battalion, formed in February, 1917, prepared many young men for the army. At least 2400 of its alumni were enrolled in the military or naval service of the United States or its Allies; and eighty-seven gave their lives in the cause of their country. A Memorial Bell Tower, erected on Andover Hill, commemorates their loyalty and sacrifice.

LOCATION

Andover is a town of ten thousand inhabitants, situated on the Portland Division of the Boston and Maine Railroad, twenty-three miles north of Boston.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY is national in its representation and democratic in its life and spirit, and is "equally open to youth of requisite qualifications from every quarter". It aims to attract students of serious educational purposes and high moral standards.

The Academy is not a suitable school for boys who are idle, insubordinate, or lacking in self-control; nor is it adapted for those who require the constant supervision of teachers in the preparation of school work. Students who are found to be unable or unwilling to meet the requirements, and those whose influence is injurious, must be withdrawn from the school. As maturity is not always to be measured by years, the school has no specific regulation as to the age of the candidate. In general, however, it has been found that boys of fourteen are able to meet the responsibilities of life in the Academy.

The school provides accommodations and surroundings for its students which enable them to pass by gradual and natural stages from the paternalism of home life to the freedom that awaits them in college. Williams Hall, with its close supervision, special hours, and home life, offers attractive and helpful surroundings to the young boy just leaving home for his school career. A natural and progressive development is provided for subsequent years in the houses and halls which are in charge of married instructors. The regulations which obtain in all dormitories are here in force, but there is in them the atmosphere of home. The later life of the dormitories is designed to develop a larger sense of responsibility and to prepare for the community life of college. Boys in the dormitories are under the supervision of instructors and are required to observe fully the regulations of the school. In the judgment of the school authorities the average boy will secure the best results intellectually and morally by following out this gradual change in residence.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

The requirements for admission to Phillips Academy consist in evidence of good character and of a satisfactory school record. The Academy being unable to receive all who apply for admission, even when they can meet its minimum requirements, is obliged to discriminate among the applicants on the basis of their school records. It asks each candidate for admission to take certain specified examinations, in part to enable it to discriminate fairly among the applicants, but chiefly to enable it to properly classify those who are admitted. The school record already made by an applicant — interpreted to some extent by these examinations — determines largely the Academy's decision on each applicant.

Students in the Academy arrange their work in accordance with the Course of Study as outlined on pages 50-51. This outline exhibits the work which is done each year by a student who is neither behind nor ahead of his class in any subject. It is not required that all the studies of the student shall be in the class in which he is rated; he is permitted to take individual subjects below or above that class, if his preparation in the prerequisites of those subjects justifies such action. But a student ordinarily is not permitted to take courses in one class to the exclusion of uncompleted courses in a lower class except in subjects continuing through successive years.

Applicants for admission to any of the three lower classes are asked to take entrance examinations set by the Academy or by the College Entrance Examination Board, on the work of such courses in its curriculum as they have completed. Each candidate should take the examinations for which his previous work fits him, irrespective of the class groups in which the subjects are listed below.

*Junior
Class*

To enter as a normal Junior (first-year class) a candidate must have completed an approved grammar school course. He must pass satisfactorily examinations (1) in the following topics of Arithmetic: common and decimal fractions, denominate numbers, percentage, interest, and square root, and (2) in such essentials of formal English grammar as are treated in Kittredge and Farley's Concise English Grammar (Ginn & Co.). The examination in English grammar will be combined with a test in spelling and composition. It is strongly recommended that candidates for the Junior Class become familiar with the declensions and conjugations of either Latin or French or German before entrance to the Academy.

Lower Middle Class

For those who wish to enter as normal Lower Middlers the Academy sets papers on the work done in its Junior year as outlined on page 50. These examinations cover

- one year's work in Algebra, as described on page 59,
- one year's work in English, as described on page 57,
- one year's work in Latin, as described on page 53,
- one year's work in French or German, as described on pages 54-55,

Upper Middle Class

Those who wish to enter as normal Upper Middlers should take the following examinations which cover the work of the Academy's first two years, as outlined on page 51:

- (1) an examination set by the Academy on two years' work in English, described on page 57;
- (2) the College Board's French Cp. 2 or German Cp. 2 examination, which covers two years' work, described on pages 54-55;

- (3) the College Board's *Latin Cp. 2 examination, which covers two years' work in Latin, described on pages 53-54;
- (4) in courses B and C, the College Board's Mathematics A examination, which covers two years' work in Algebra, described on page 59; or in course A, examinations set by the Academy on one year's work in †Algebra, described on page 59, and one year's work in German or Greek, described on pages 55 and 53.

The Academy will accept credits already established by examination at the college for which the candidate is preparing. Incoming boys, who have completed a subject which they do not wish to continue, should take the corresponding college entrance examination.

Senior Class Candidates for admission to the Senior Class should obtain college entrance credits which cover the work of the Academy's three lower years or its equivalent. The credits should ordinarily be obtained by means of the preliminary examinations of the College Entrance Examination Board. If a candidate is preparing for a college that admits on the certificate plan, credits established at that institution by certificate may be accepted by the Academy, but only if they are based on distinctly superior work. In accepting applicants, preference must often be given to candidates whose credits are established by examination.

The Academy occasionally admits to its Senior Class candidates for admission to college by the so-called "new plan". No candidate will be accepted on this basis unless he has completed an approved equivalent of the three lower years in the Academy, and has made an especially good record in scholarship. He must pass entrance examinations set by the Academy in those subjects already studied which he will continue.

*The Academy also sets an examination covering two years' work in Latin, which may be taken in place of the College Board's Latin Cp. 2 paper by those who are to continue the study of Latin in the Academy.

†The College Board's Mathematics AI paper may be substituted for this examination.

Students are not admitted to the Senior Class later than the beginning of the winter term.

Classification Candidates who are admitted to the Academy and secure credits in the ways indicated in the preceding paragraphs are rated as

Juniors, if credited with fewer than 11 hours of the Academy's courses;

Lower Middlers, if credited with 11 to 28 hours;

Upper Middlers, if credited with 29 to 45 hours;

Seniors, if credited with 46 hours.

Procedure in applying In making application for admission to the Academy the form in the back of this catalogue should be used. It should be filled out carefully and completely and forwarded to the Principal of the Academy. Testimonial letters may either accompany it or be sent later.

Certificates of standing in schools formerly attended are required. At the close of the school year, in June, the Academy sends to these institutions for complete official records of the candidates' work.

Each candidate should take in June such examinations as the requirements outlined on pages 19-20 demand. Candidates should not count on qualifying by means of September examinations without definite assurance from the school authorities of the possibility of their admission in this way. The pressure for admission in recent years makes such procedure difficult. Those who take college examinations or secure certificate credits at college should forward official returns to the Academy as soon as they are received.

Present members of the school are allowed first choice in room reservations for the following year. Rooms are assigned to incoming students about August 1, and in the order in which their admission applications are filed. Space for indicating room preference is provided on the admission application form.

*Entrance Examinations
Dates and Places*

Phillips Academy entrance examinations for candidates for the Junior, Lower Middle, and Upper Middle classes, and "new plan" candidates for the Senior class will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 22 and 23, 1926. The schedule of hours is announced in May. The examinations will be given in Andover: Phillips Academy, Graves Hall.

New York: Room 309, School of Business Building, Columbia University.

Examinations will be held in other cities, in June only, if the number of candidates in any locality is sufficient.

For the Academy's examinations in Andover on these regular dates no fees are charged. For its examinations outside of Andover a fee of $5.00 is required; but, if College Board examinations are taken also, the fee for the Academy's examinations is $2.00.

The examinations of the College Entrance Examination Board are held each June in a large number of cities in the United States and abroad. They come in 1926 during the week of June 21-26. Application to take these examinations should be made to the Secretary of the College Entrance Examination Board, 431 West 117th Street, New York City, early in May.

The fee, which is $10.00 for the year 1926, should accompany this application.

On Tuesday, September 14, 1926, the Academy examinations will be held at 9.30 A.M., in Andover only, according to a schedule of rooms and hours announced at that time.

A pamphlet containing the Academy's 1925 examination papers will be supplied upon request. College Board examinations of former years are published by Ginn & Company.

Special Students No special students, except foreigners, are received in the Junior or Lower Middle year, and the Academy makes no provision for special students who are not candidates for graduation or for entrance to college or scientific school.

Special courses may be arranged in the Upper Middle and Senior years, only at the written request of parents and by special Faculty vote.

Diploma Requirements To receive the diploma of the Academy a student must have secured passing grades:

- (a) in all required subjects in the course selected,
- (b) in subjects which amount to at least 69 hours of the curriculum,
- (c) in a sufficient number of the subjects recognized by the College Entrance Examination Board to complete 15 units, and
- (d) in all subjects pursued in the Senior year.

Examinations and Promotions Written examinations are held in each study at least once a term, but the term grading is based on the results of both written examinations and daily work. A student who is guilty of dishonesty in an examination may be suspended or dismissed. At the close of each term, a report of the student's scholarship and attitude towards his work is sent to his parents or guardian. Mid-term reports are also sent for all students whose work is below the passing grade, 60%, and for those who obtain grades of 80% and above.

Class Officers Each student is assigned to the special care of a member of the faculty who is known as his Class Officer. This officer arranges the schedule of studies for each member of the class under his charge, and recommends such subsequent changes as seem desirable.

Division Officers The entire school is divided into groups of approximately twenty students each. Each group is assigned to the special charge of an instructor whose duty it is to familiarize himself with the previous history and present standing of the several members, and to serve as their counselor.

APPOINTMENTS

Daily Appointments 7.45 A.M. Morning chapel.
8.07 A.M. to 1.00 P.M. { Recitation
4.07 P.M. to 6.00 P.M. { and study hours.
8.00 P.M. Evening study hours begin.
10.30 A.M. and 5.15 P.M. Sunday chapel services.

Wednesday and Saturday afternoons are half-holidays.

Study Hours Students are expected to occupy themselves with their studies or other school work during all study hours.

Absences Every absence of the student from recitation, morning chapel, Sunday service, or from his room during study hours, must be accounted for. The accumulation of eight unexcused absences involves suspension from school. In all cases of illness, notice must be sent at once to the Medical Adviser, who investigates daily all cases reported.

Special importance is attached to meeting all appointments immediately preceding and following vacation and recess periods. A failure to meet such appointments must be regarded as a very serious offence and may necessitate withdrawal from school.

Out-of-Town Excuses All out-of-town excuses must be obtained from the Principal's office. On half-holidays and on special holidays such excuses are granted occasionally to those whose school standing is good. The student who goes out of town without permission forfeits his connection with the school.

Religious Exercises Students are required to be present at morning chapel. The Sunday services in the Chapel and the religious work of the school are conducted in connection with the Academy Church, an undenominational organization. Distinguished clergymen are frequently invited to preach to the school. Voluntary communion services are held in the Chapel during the year. The Society of Inquiry (the Christian Association of the school) holds a voluntary meeting on Sunday evening, which is often addressed by an invited speaker.

Upon written request from their parents, students may be excused to attend the morning services of the Protestant Episcopal, Baptist, or Roman Catholic churches.

EXPENSES

Parents can estimate approximately the expenses of their sons at the Academy, and they are particularly requested not to furnish money beyond what is necessary for modest expenditures. Pupils who are supplied with much spending money, or who are allowed to incur debts, often accomplish little in their studies, and are liable to form habits which require their withdrawal from the school. Parents are earnestly requested to refuse permission to their sons to contract debts.

The schedules below indicate the range of the school charges.

Tuition	$250.00	$250.00	$0 to 250.00

Board	230.00 to 420.00	280.00	0 to 280.00
Athletic fee	20.00	20.00	0 to 12.00

	$600.00 to 1040.00	$775.00	$0 to 592.00

Tuition Bills The tuition for the year is $250.00 divided as follows: three-fifths, or $150.00, payable October 1; two-fifths, or $100.00, payable on March 1. Each student is required to deposit with the Treasurer on entering the school the sum of $20.00 to cover breakage and other obligations which may be incurred during the school year. The balance remaining after such charges have been deducted will be returned, but not before the close of the fiscal year, June 30.

An additional charge of $10.00 is made to members of the Senior class to cover the expenses of Commencement. A rebate of $1.50 from this charge is made if the student fails to secure his diploma. Students in Chemistry and Physics are charged for the supplies which they use. All bills are mailed to parents or guardians, but may be paid in person by the students. Classroom privileges will be denied to students whose bills are not settled on or before the dates mentioned above. As instructors must be engaged and other provisions for education must be made by the school authorities for the entire year in advance, tuition charges will not be refunded when students are suspended, dismissed, or withdrawn during the school year. Checks should be drawn in favor of the Trustees of Phillips Academy.

Infirmary Service A charge of four dollars a day to each student is made for infirmary service which includes room and board. Extra charges are made for nurses employed in addition to the regular nursing staff. Local physicians render their bills for services directly to parents or guardians.

Athletic Fee A charge of $20.00 is made for the maintenance of athletics, but for scholarship boys this charge is $12.00 a year which may be paid wholly or in part by the performance of special work assigned by the Bureau of Self-Help. Three-fifths of the total amount of this charge is payable October 1st, and two-fifths on March 1st.

Students are not asked to contribute further to the financial support of the various school teams.

Room Rents Payments for student rooms in the school buildings are required as follows: three-fifths of the entire yearly rental on or before October 1; the remaining two-fifths on March 1. A deposit of $25.00 is required when the contract for the room assigned is filed. This deposit will be credited to the first regular school bill. When a room is assigned to a student, his parent or guardian agrees by contract to pay the entire rental of the room up to the close of the current school year, whether the student continues a member of the Academy or not. The right is reserved by the Trustees to transfer boys from room to room in the school buildings whenever changes seem desirable; such changes, however, do not relieve the original occupants from the obligation of meeting the entire year's rent, unless newcomers are secured to fill the vacancies.

Each room is furnished with a rug, desk, chiffonier, two chairs, bed, mattress, pillow, sheets, pillow cases, and one pair of blankets. Towels are not included.

Room Scholarships About twenty “room scholarships” amounting to approximately $50.00 each are available for deserving boys. These scholarships will be credited to the regular room charges on the recipients’ term bills and will be awarded by the Principal to boys whose circumstances compel them to keep their expenses at a low average.

Dining Hall The equipment of the Academy includes a well-appointed Dining Hall which accommodates two hundred and fifty boys. A fixed charge, payable one term in advance, is made to cover light, heat, service, and food such as soups, vegetables, cereals, bread, butter, milk, coffee, etc. This charge is subject to change at the beginning of any school term. It was $4.50 a week during the year 1925-1926. Meats, fish, eggs, and desserts are served a la carte at cost and are charged against meal-tickets which are sold at $5.00 each. The average cost has been about $8.00 a week.

Private Houses About eleven private houses in the vicinity of the Academy, under license from the Trustees, provide board and lodgings for students, and no student may occupy any house not thus licensed by the school. Some of the houses provide furnished rooms only; others provide rooms and board, and some furnish board for students rooming in neighboring houses. The price of table board is $10.00 and $12.00 a week. Students rooming in private families may, if they desire, board at the Dining Hall. The price of furnished rooms, including ordinary service, is from $5.00 to $7.50 a week.

Engagements for table board may, on suitable notice, be terminated at the close of any term. Arrangements and payments for room and board in private houses must be made with those in charge of the houses.

BUILDINGS AND EQUIPMENT

*Williams Hall
A Dormitory
for Young Boys* Through the generosity of Prof. Edward H. Williams, Jr., of the class of 1868, the school in 1910 secured possession of a valuable piece of property for the housing and care of younger boys. The property, comprising several acres, adjoins the Old Campus and is within a short distance of the other school buildings.

Williams Hall has attractive accommodations for forty-two boys. The rooms are spacious, light, and airy, and are heated with hot water and lighted with electricity. On the main floor is a common reading and recreation room. Table board is furnished in the building to all occupants of the house.

It is the aim of the Trustees to provide in this building surroundings as helpful as possible for the best development of young boys, and to this end they have placed it in charge of a married instructor. Boys whose work is below standard may be required to report at seven-thirty each evening, when they work under supervision and are free to consult the resident instructor and his assistants in regard to their studies.

Williams Hall supplies a stepping-stone between the natural restrictions of the home and the somewhat freer life of a large school. Although the boys who live here have all the advantages that Phillips Academy offers, they are under somewhat closer supervision than is customary throughout the rest of the school. For the school year 1926-1927 the charge for room and board in Williams Hall, not including the regular tuition charge, will be $750.00. A limited number of room scholarships are awarded annually in this hall. A special circular explaining in detail the equipment and arrangements of Williams Hall, and containing both interior and exterior views of this building, will be furnished on request.

Faculty Houses The school provides for dormitory purposes thirteen houses formerly occupied as private dwellings. These houses are suitable for younger boys, especially those who are members of the two lower classes. Each house is in charge of a resident instructor. The rooms are furnished, and the charges include heat, light, and care of the rooms.

The Abbot House provides accommodations for eighteen boys, the Blanchard House for eight, the Cheever House for twelve, the Churchill House for six, the Clement House for thirteen, the Farrar House for six, the Hardy House for five, the Hayward House for six, the Park House for eight, the Pease House for nine, the Tower House for four, the Tucker House for seven, and the Woods House for five.

The America House provides accommodations for twelve and the Berry House for six students and table board can be secured in them.

Dormitories Through the generous gifts of Mr. Melville C. Day of the class of 1858, Mr. Warren F. Draper of the class of 1843, and a number of citizens of Andover, and by the purchase of the property formerly belonging to the Andover Theological Seminary, the Academy now possesses thoroughly modern dormitories providing at reasonable rates attractive accommodations for almost the entire student body. Below is given a brief description of these various buildings, and a list of the prices of rooms in each will be found on pages 27-28. With the exception of some of the Faculty Houses and Williams Hall these buildings are of brick. All are furnished, heated by steam, lighted by electricity, and equipped with shower-baths and the modern sanitary conveniences. Most of the study rooms have open fireplaces. Each building or entry is in charge of a resident instructor.

PHILLIPS HALL, erected in 1808, was entirely remodeled in 1912. It is divided by a fire wall into two separate entries and provides accommodations for seventeen boys in each entry.

BARTLET HALL was erected in 1820 and entirely rebuilt in 1915. This building also is divided by a fire wall into two separate entries, and contains both double and single suites, accommodating twenty-one boys in each entry.

PEMBERTON COTTAGE, erected in 1891, contains five double suites.

ANDOVER COTTAGE, erected in 1892, contains four double suites, one single suite, and two single rooms.

DRAPER COTTAGE, erected in 1892, contains five double suites.

EATON COTTAGE, erected in 1892, contains four double suites and two single suites.

BANCROFT HALL, erected in 1900, contains sixteen double suites. The building is divided by fire walls into three separate entries, each entry accommodating ten boys.

DAY HALL, erected in 1911, contains twelve double suites, two single suites, and twenty single rooms. The building is divided by a fire wall into two separate entries, each entry accommodating twenty-three boys.

BISHOP HALL, erected in 1911, is similar in its arrangement and appointments to Day Hall and accommodates the same number of boys.

ADAMS HALL, erected in 1912, is divided into two separate entries, each of which, like the Faculty Houses, is in charge of a married instructor. Each entry accommodates twenty boys.

TAYLOR HALL, erected in 1913, accommodates twenty boys in each of its two entries and is in charge of two married instructors.

JOHNSON HALL, erected in 1922, is similar in its arrangement and appointments to Taylor Hall and accommodates the same number of boys.

(For prices of rooms see pages 27-28.)

*Samuel
Phillips
Hall*

This latest and largest addition to the school plant was completed in 1924. The building, which contains twenty-six recitation rooms and two examination rooms and is thoroughly modern in every respect, was made possible through the activity and interest of the alumni of the school who generously provided the funds required for its erection.

Graves Hall Graves Hall, devoted to Science, contains in addition to the large and well-equipped laboratories for Physics, Chemistry, and Biology, two recitation rooms, a lecture room, and a drafting room.

Pearson Hall Pearson Hall, erected in 1817 and remodeled in 1878, and again in 1922, is used for recitation purposes. It contains four large recitation rooms and three conference rooms.

Archaeology Building This building contains rooms for the collections of the Department of Archaeology.

Peabody House Peabody House bears the name of the founders of the Archaeological department, with the funds of which it was erected. The building carries out the expressed wishes of Mr. and Mrs. Peabody that their benefaction should promote the social interests of the student body as well as further the study of American Archaeology. Quarters are provided for the Phillips Union and include a well appointed grill, a large and attractive reading room, and a memorial room used as an assembly hall for receptions, lectures, and meetings of the various organizations of the school.

Administration Offices and Library Brechin Hall is used for administrative and library purposes. The lower floor contains the offices of the Principal, the Treasurer, and the Registrar. A large hall on the upper floor is devoted to the library of about sixteen thousand volumes, which is in charge of a trained librarian and is open daily for the use of students.

George Washington Hall George Washington Hall, now in process of construction, is expected to be ready for occupancy at the opening of the school year in September, 1926. The building, which will contain a large auditorium and the offices of administration, is the generous gift of an alumnus and commemorates the historic connection of President Washington with the school and his friendship with the founder.

The Chapel The Chapel, erected in 1875 and enlarged in 1920, provides accommodations for the religious exercises of the school. The daily morning chapel exercises and the Sunday preaching and vesper services are held in this building. The Chapel contains the William Couch Eggleston memorial organ.

*Borden
Gymnasium* The Academy has a large gymnasium, completely equipped with modern apparatus, and in charge of a Physical Director who is also the Medical Adviser. Students of all classes are required to take regular gymnasium work.

Swimming Pool The swimming pool, adjoining the gymnasium, is seventy-five feet long and thirty feet wide, and represents the most modern ideas in swimming pool construction. The elaborate filtration plant in the basement of the building assures the purity of the water used in the pool.

The swimming pool was constructed in 1910 with funds secured entirely by the efforts of the students themselves.

*The Case
Memorial
Building* The Case Memorial Building, erected in 1923, by Mr. and Mrs. George B. Case and family in memory of George B. Case, Jr., provides unusual facilities for all kinds of athletic activities and healthful recreation during the winter term and on stormy days when such activities are not possible on the regular playing fields.

Phillips Inn The school property includes a well-equipped hotel, situated near the centre of the grounds, under lease to a manager, and furnishing to parents and friends of the school quiet and comfortable accommodations.

*The Isham
Infirmary*

The Academy maintains an infirmary, the generous gift of Miss Flora E. Isham, whose name it bears. The infirmary was completed in 1912, is thoroughly modern in all its appointments, and was carefully planned under the direction of experts in hospital construction. In addition to the general wards, it contains single rooms for those requiring special treatment, and an operating room. The contagious wards are completely separated from the ordinary wards, and at each end of the building there is a large sun parlor entirely encased in glass. Boys who are sufficiently indisposed to be unable to attend classes are sent to the infirmary for proper care. Except when special arrangements have been made in advance by parents or guardians, the following regulations will be observed in the conduct of the infirmary. Patients at the infirmary requiring medical attention shall call in local physicians approved by the school authorities. In cases requiring the attendance of specialists, the best men available in Boston will be called in consultation. In special emergencies, when operations seem necessary and parents cannot be consulted in advance, the Principal of the school assumes responsibility for authorizing such operations. The Medical Adviser may at any time examine and report upon individual cases.

Athletic Grounds

Brothers' Field, comprising sixty acres, is in close proximity to the gymnasium and contains ample facilities for baseball, football, and track athletics. The Academy possesses other extensive grounds for various athletic sports, including baseball, football, soccer, and tennis.

Bulletin

The Bulletin, a magazine devoted to the interests and history of the school and its alumni, is published four times a year and sent to all former members of Phillips Academy whose addresses are known.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Scholarship Aid The sums granted as scholarships vary according to the excellence of the boys in their studies, a student of the highest rank receiving a sum equivalent to the full tuition fee and room rent. Every new applicant for a scholarship must pay on entering the Academy the sum of $50 toward his tuition. This sum is not remitted. At the close of each term scholarships are adjusted in accordance with the student's record in his studies during that term. Boys of limited means who possess scholarly ability and ambition are encouraged to apply for admission, and, if admitted, may be reasonably sure of financial assistance.

Special Provision for Scholarship Boys Furnished rooms are set apart in various dormitories for boys who are obliged to keep their expenses within the lowest possible limits. A rental of $40 to $50 is charged each occupant of these rooms. Choice of room is determined by the scholarship rank of the applicant.

Self Help Ample opportunities are afforded by the Academy to scholarship boys to earn a portion of their school charges. Service in the Dining Hall and boarding houses enables them to earn their board. Several agencies are assigned by the Bureau of Self Help and a number of students may earn a portion of the school charges by work in connection with the school offices. An energetic boy may find various other chances for remunerative work.

SYNOPSIS OF THE COURSES OF STUDY

As the subjects are taught with a view to the student's progressive development, it is desirable for him to take the entire course in the Academy. In recent years the Academy has been forced to limit rigidly the number admitted to the Senior class.

In order that the student may plan his work to the greatest advantage, it is important that he decide as early as possible upon the higher institution which he intends to enter. A proper choice of course and of elective subjects will furnish adequate preparation for any college or scientific school.

Physical Training (4 hours a week) is required of all students.

All Seniors must report to the Librarian for instruction in the use of the library.

In order to define the work of the pupil in his Senior year, Upper Middlers are required to take preliminary examinations for some college. June examinations, both preliminary and final, are held in Andover by the College Entrance Examination Board.

For references see footnotes on page 51.

G R E E K

The first year (Greek¹) is devoted mainly to forms and the most essential principles of syntax. Benner and Smyth's Beginner's Greek Book is used. To aid the memorizing of inflections and vocabularies there are daily exercises, both oral and written, enforced by incessant drill. During the second and third terms work in the grammar is supplemented by lessons from a very simple Greek Reader.

The second year (Greek²) is occupied with Xenophon's Anabasis, Books I-IV, or an equivalent, with sight reading, translation from English into Greek, and grammar reviews. Great effort is made to secure simple, idiomatic English in both oral and written work. Grammar and composition are studied throughout the year and occupy a part of every recitation period.

There is an elective course in the Greek Testament — one hour a week — open to both Upper Middlers and Seniors.

The third year (Greek³) is spent mainly in reading selected books of the Iliad and the Odyssey. After the dialect is mastered, more attention is given to the literary side of the poems and to the translation of Homer at sight, about 5000 verses being read during the year.

L A T I N

The first year (Latin¹) is occupied with the mastery of such vocabulary, inflexions, and syntax as the better manuals for beginners provide. There is constant practice in the reading and writing of simple prose, and in observing the relation of Latin to English words. The course aims at a thoroughly dependable foundation for subsequent reading and study. As the normal course is one of only four years, it is imperative that candidates should have a competent knowledge of the fundamentals of English grammar. It is desirable also that, before entering the Academy, they should be familiar with the ordinary forms of the Latin declensions and conjugations.

In the second year (Latin²), Books I-IV of the Gallic War of Caesar, or equivalent amounts of other authors, are studied, with emphasis upon subject-matter, syntax, and vocabulary. Twenty per cent of the total time allotted to the course is given to prose composition based upon the texts read. There is continual practice in sight translation and reading aloud.

In the third year (Latin³) the course aims chiefly to make the student familiar with the characteristics of Cicero's oratory. The work in Latin prose composition is devoted to connected narrative. The first and third orations against Catiline, for the poet Archias and Verres (The Plunder of Syracuse), and other speeches equivalent to the Marcellus or the Manilian Law are read. There is also sight reading and practice in reading aloud.

In the fourth year (Latin⁴) effort is made to cultivate a sympathetic appreciation of the essentials of good poetry. Books I, III, and VI of the Aeneid, with selections from the Metamorphoses of Ovid and sight reading, as required by the College Entrance Examination Board, form the basis of the work. Topics in the private life and customs of the Romans are studied and illustrated.

F R E N C H

The first year's work (French¹) comprises the principles of pronunciation, drill in the fundamentals of grammar including the inflections of the regular and the more common irregular verbs, of nouns, of adjectives, of participles, of pronouns; the uses of pronouns, the simple uses of the conditional and subjunctive, and the elementary rules of syntax; abundant easy exercises for oral translation into French, and the reading of about two hundred pages of easy French prose. The following texts have been used. Kuhn's Reader, Super's Reader, Aldrich and Foster's Reader, La Tulipe Noire, L'Eté de la Saint-Martin, Sans Famille, and Morrison and Gautier's French Grammar.

The second-year course (French²) of four hours completes the elementary work in French and prepares for the College Board examinations in Elementary French. It includes a review of elementary grammar and continued work in composition and translation. Such texts as Colomba, La Mère de la Marquise, Le Roi des Montagnes, Syntax of the French Verb, and Galland's Composition have been used.

The third year (French³) covers the requirement of the College Board in Intermediate French. Contes de Daudet, La Débâcle, Les Misérables, and similar texts furnish material for translation, and work in composition and grammar is done throughout the year.

The fourth-year work (French⁴) consists of easy conversation with reading. This course is for those who have passed the college examinations and who wish to continue their work in the language.

G E R M A N

The first year's work (German¹) includes a constant drill in pronunciation and a thorough course in elementary grammar. Abundant easy exercises are translated into German and used as the basis of oral and aural practice. A limited amount of memorizing of German idioms and poetry, and translation from German into English are required. Bacon's New German Grammar and various easy texts are used in this work.

The second-year course (German²) completes the preparation for the College Board examination in Elementary German. It comprises a thorough review of the grammar and a considerable amount of more advanced translation and composition. Conversational work is continued by the use of such helps as Ballard and Krause's Short Stories for Oral German. Wesselhoeft's Elementary German Grammar and Bacon's German Composition have been used in this course and various texts like Wildenbruch's Das edle Blut, Gerstäcker's Irrfahrten, and Baumbach's Der Schwiegersohn are read.

The third year's work (German³) prepares for the examination in Intermediate German as set by the College Entrance Examination Board. Grammar is rapidly reviewed and advanced composition written throughout the year. Ham and Leonard's German Grammar and Pope's German Composition have been used in this connection. Oral work is continued, and such texts as Freytag's Die Journalisten, Riehl's Der Fluch der Schönheit, Schurze's Lebenserinnerungen, Heine's Die Harzreise, Schiller's Wilhelm Tell, and Schiller's Der Dreissig-jährige Krieg III are studied.

The fourth-year course (German⁴) of two hours a week is open to those who have secured credit for three years of German, and, upon consultation with the instructor, to others who satisfy him of their ability. The course will be adapted to the maturity of the students and their proficiency in German. Half the time will be spent in conversational practice on everyday topics and German life and institutions, the remainder in rapid reading and interpretation of some phase of German literature. Prehn's Journalistic German, Wildenbruch's Die Rabensteinerin, Sudermann's Der Katzensteg, and Hauptmann's Die Weber have been used. Wagner's Tannhäuser has been studied and the original Middle High German poems of the old singers discussed and put into modern German. Students in this course are not recommended for additional college credits in German.

SPANISH

The first year's work (Spanish¹) is as follows:— (a) thorough drill in the principles of pronunciation; (b) rules of syntax and

essentials of Spanish grammar including the inflection of verbs (regular and irregular), nouns, adjectives, pronouns, the uses of the conditional and subjunctive; (c) abundant easy exercises for translation into Spanish; (d) the translation of two hundred or more pages of easy Spanish prose, such as is contained in Hills' Spanish Tales, Bergé-Soler and Hatheway's Reader, Morrison's Tres Comedias, Alarcón's Short Stories, Isaac's María, and Asensi's Victoria; grammars such as De Vitis', Hills and Ford's, Crawford's First Book in Spanish, and Moreno-Lacalle's Elementos de Español.

The second-year course (Spanish²) completes the elementary course in Spanish, and prepares for the College Board examination in this subject. It consists of a complete review of Spanish grammar and continued work in composition and translation. Such texts as El Capitán Veneno, José, Zaragüeta, Espinosa and Allen's Spanish Grammar, and Umphrey's Spanish Prose Composition have been used.

ENGLISH

The work of English¹ in composition is based on themes, — simple narratives and descriptions — written in the class-room. Attention is given to the correction of grammatical errors in speech and writing, with necessary consideration of formal grammar; to elementary matters of the structure and the punctuation of the sentence; to spelling; and to the acquisition of a vocabulary. The work in literature consists in reading aloud and discussing in the class-room a few short works in verse and prose. Considerable emphasis is placed on enunciation and pronunciation.

In the teaching of composition in English², the general plan of the preceding year is continued, with a somewhat higher standard of requirement, the chief object being to secure plenty of practice. Themes are written outside of the class-room as well as during the recitation period. The study of some elementary matters of rhetoric is begun.

The textbook used for the work in composition is Ward's Sentence and Theme. The study of literature comprises the careful reading of some books and the rapid reading of others. Particular attention is given to oral English, each student being required to deliver two carefully prepared speeches each term, and to read aloud in the class-room as frequently as possible.

In English³ the thorough study of formal rhetoric is begun. As many themes as possible are written outside of the class-room, and considerable writing is done in the class-room. The textbook used is Herrick and Damon's New Composition and Rhetoric. The course in literature includes the careful reading of six or seven books, selected in part from the list for reading (A) prescribed in the College Entrance Requirements; the lives of the authors; and the rapid reading, optional or required, of as many other books as possible.

In English⁴ the principles of composition-rhetoric studied in the preceding year are reviewed, with a higher standard of requirement in their application to writing. Leonard and Fuess's Good Writing is used in this year. Formal themes and writing in the class-room are required. The course in literature includes the rapid reading of some books and the careful study of others; the life and times of the chief authors; and as much supplementary reading as possible. The work of this year completes the preparation for the comprehensive examination offered by the College Entrance Examination Board.

PUBLIC SPEAKING

Public Speaking is taken up as part of the Lower Middle English course.

An elective course in Public Speaking comprises training in the preparation and delivery of expositions, argumentative speeches and debates. There is some work in declamation and a considerable amount of extemporaneous speaking.

ENGLISH BIBLE

A two-hour course in the English Bible is offered as a Senior elective. The course is primarily a course in the life of Christ with sufficient attention to the books of the Old Testament to familiarize the student somewhat with the historical and didactic background of this life. The text-books used are: The Old Testament Narrative by Sheffield; The Prophetic Books in "Everyman's Library" from the four volumes entitled Ancient Hebrew Literature; The New Testament; and His Life, edited by Barton, Soares, and Strong.

ALGEBRA

Algebra¹. The study of Algebra is begun in the Junior year in a course occupying five hours a week throughout the year. Durell and Arnold's First Book in Algebra (enlarged edition) is completed during the year.

Algebra². This course provides a review of Algebra¹ and continues the subject through all the topics of Elementary and Intermediate Algebra named in the recently revised statement of requirements of the College Entrance Examination Board. Candidates for entrance to the Academy desiring credit for this course must present a college entrance certificate giving credit for both Elementary and Intermediate Algebra.

Algebra³. This course covers the topics in Advanced Algebra specified by the College Entrance Examination Board and meets the entrance requirements of all colleges and scientific schools.

GEOMETRY

Demonstrative Plane Geometry is begun and completed in a single year. Four, or five, recitations a week are given to the subject. The chief aim of the instruction is to develop in each student the ability to reason clearly and logically. Accuracy, clearness, and completeness of statement are insisted upon. To develop originality and independence of thought, about two-thirds of the time is devoted to the solution of exercises of gradually increasing difficulty.

In the Senior year Solid Geometry is taught four hours a week during the winter term and two hours during the spring term. The course meets the entrance requirements of all colleges and scientific schools.

TRIGONOMETRY

A course in Plane Trigonometry meeting four hours a week during the fall term and two hours during the spring term, forms, with Solid Geometry, a full four-hour course for the Senior year. It meets the entrance requirements of all colleges and scientific schools.

MECHANICAL DRAWING

Six hours each week are given to this course. It includes the use of drawing instruments, lettering, geometric constructions, orthographic and isometric projections, developments, intersections, sectioning, and working drawings. Especial stress is laid on a thorough mastering of the fundamentals. The course meets the requirements of the College Entrance Examination Board and in many instances so prepares the student that he can obtain advance credit for the subject on his entrance to college. Students of exceptional ability are given an opportunity to do more advanced work or are given problems in keeping with the course to be pursued after entrance to college.

PHYSICS

panied with numerical examples and by qualitative experiments designed to illustrate physical laws and their application to practical life.

Forty or more quantitative laboratory experiments are required of each pupil. A careful record of the steps and results of these exercises is kept in a note-book which is submitted to the instructor for approval.

CHEMISTRY

BIOLOGY

The course in Biology covers the fundamental characteristics of living things; the nutrition, growth, and reproduction of plants and animals; the physiology and hygiene of the human body; the influence of bacteria, insects, trees, and birds on man's welfare; and the principles of heredity and evolution.

The class meets four times a week, twice for recitations and twice for two-hour laboratory periods. The work in the laboratory includes careful training in the use of the compound microscope and in the recording of observations made. The instruction meets the requirement of the College Entrance Board and counts one point for admission to college.

ARCHÆOLOGY

The work of the department is chiefly confined to the United States, and research in other subjects than American archæology is not extensively attempted.

At present the collections number about 120,000 specimens, all of which represent the stone age art.

The publications of the department number nine: — Bulletin No. 1, on the Exploration of Jacob's Cavern; No. 2, The Gorgets; No. 3, Field Work in Ohio, Tennessee, Kentucky, Arizona, and New Mexico; No. 4, The Exploration of Bushey Cavern and the Exploration of Fort Ancient; No. 5, A Study and Description of the Seven Prehistoric Earthworks found near Andover; No. 6, A Study of Hematite Implements found in the United States; No. 7, Archaeological Explorations in the State of Maine. Southwestern series, No. 1, An Introduction to the Study of Southwestern Archaeology. No. 2, The Potter's Art at San Ildefonso, New Mexico.

HISTORY

Courses are offered in Ancient History, English History, American History, and modern European History.

PHILOSOPHY

A two-hour Senior elective is offered in this subject, the object of the course being to present a general introduction to the field for those students who may wish to continue their philosophical studies at college or the university. The first term is devoted to talks on Greek Philosophy and the reading of Berkeley's Dialogues between Hylas and Philonous; the second to talks on Mediæval Philosophy and the reading of Hume's Enquiry Concerning Human Understanding; the third term to talks on Modern Philosophy and Psychology. The text-books used, in addition to those mentioned, are: Weber, History of Philosophy, and James, Shorter Course in Psychology.

PHYSICAL TRAINING

All students are required to take some form of exercise during the school year. Upon entering the school each boy receives a careful physical and medical examination, and a form of exercise suited to his peculiar needs is advised. Special attention is given to those who lack normal development. The school, club, and squad teams give all students an opportunity to compete in sports with those of their own relative ability. No student is allowed to compete on school teams unless permission indicating his fitness is received from the Physical Director.

MUSIC

Opportunity for the study of piano, organ, violin, and voice is offered by the Department of Music. The piano instruction is in charge of Messrs. Felix Fox and Harrison Potter of Boston; the organ lessons are given by the Director of Music, violin lessons by Mr. Linwood D. Scriven of Boston, and voice by Mr. Rulon Robison of Boston.

A two-hour course in Harmony is offered as an elective.

Students who sing in the choir, every member attending two rehearsals a week, are offered one of three forms of compensation: (a) financial; (b) one athletic or chapel cut a week; (c) permission to count the choir work as one schedule-hour.

Serious attention is given the school orchestra, which rehearses weekly and studies carefully both classical and modern compositions.

During the academic year 1925-1926 the following concerts were given: an organ recital by Mr. Alfred Hollins of Edinburgh; a recital by the Russian Symphonic Choir, Basil Kibalchich, conductor; a performance by the Harvard Glee Club; a piano recital by Mr. Percy Grainger; the usual Christmas, Easter, and Commencement recitals, and on the Sunday afternoons of the winter term a series of organ recitals by the Director of Music, many of them with piano accompaniment. There were also the joint concerts with Exeter and with Bradford Academy. On Sunday afternoons during the fall and spring terms carillon recitals are given by the Director of Music.

The carillon in the Memorial Tower consists of thirty-seven bells from the foundry of the John Taylor Company of Loughborough, England. It is planned to have a double quartette of trombones assist at the carillon recitals.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY

Phillips Academy is not a private school, but an endowed academy, controlled by a Board of Trustees and administered under the written constitution of its founders. By the terms of this Constitution, or Deed of Gift, signed April 21, 1778, Esquire Samuel Phillips (1715-1790) of North Andover and his brother, John Phillips (1719-1795) of Exeter, New Hampshire, set aside tracts of about 141 acres on Andover Hill and 200 acres in Jaffrey, New Hampshire, together with the sum of 1614 pounds, as a foundation for a school. This document, outlining the broad principles upon which the proposed institution was to be conducted, was composed by Esquire Phillips's son, Samuel Phillips, Jr. (1752-1802), with the advice and aid of his friend, Eliphalet Pearson (1752-1826). Samuel Phillips, Jr., was afterwards Judge of the Massachusetts Court of Common Pleas, President of the Senate, and Lieutenant-Governor of the Commonwealth.

Although Judge Phillips derived many of his educational theories from the writings of John Locke and from the English nonconformist schools with the scheme of which he was familiar, his plan was nevertheless highly original. The purpose of the academy was specifically stated in the following words: —

“And, in order to prevent the smallest subversion of the true intent of this Foundation, it is again declared, that the first and principal object of this Institution is the promotion of true Piety and Virtue; the second, instruction in English, Latin, and Greek languages, together with Writing, Arithmetic, Music, and the Art of Speaking; the third, practical Geometry, Logic, and Geography; and the fourth, such other of the liberal Arts and Sciences, or Languages, as opportunity and ability may hereafter admit, and as the Trustees shall direct.”

The chief emphasis was laid on the development of character, and the Master was to take pains "to regulate the tempers, to enlarge the minds, and form the Morals of the Youth committed to his care". It was stipulated, also, that the school "shall be ever equally open to youth, of requisite qualifications, from every quarter". The government was placed in the hands of a self-perpetuating Board of Trustees. In order to prevent sectarianism and provincialism, it was specified that a majority of the members should be laymen, and that more than half must not be residents of the town in which the academy is located. The Trustees were hampered by no vexatious or trivial restrictions, but were given sole authority over the institution. By the provisions of the Act of Incorporation, passed by the General Court, October 4, 1780, their number was fixed at never more than thirteen or less than seven, and they were permitted to possess real estate with an income not exceeding five hundred pounds and personal property with an income not greater than two thousand pounds. These holding powers have since been considerably enlarged by legislative enactments, as the school has grown.

The first meeting of the Board of Trustees was held on Tuesday, April 28, 1778. Of the twelve original members, four were members of the Phillips family: Esquire Samuel Phillips, John Phillips, William Phillips of Boston, and Samuel Phillips, Jr. These men became in turn the first four presidents of the Board. The other members, all relatives or close friends of the Phillips family, were John Lowell and Oliver Wendell of Boston, Rev. Josiah Stearns of Epping, Rev. Elias Smith of Middleton, Rev. William Symmes of North Andover, and Rev. Jonathan French, Nehemiah Abbot, Esq., and Eliphalet Pearson of Andover.

Phillips School, as it was called until its incorporation, was opened for instruction April 30, 1778, in a remodeled carpenter's shop on Andover Hill, thirteen pupils being present; before the year was over, fifty-two had registered. The first principal was Eliphalet Pearson, a stimulating teacher and stern disciplinarian, who established high standards of instruction and supervision. Shortly before he resigned in 1786 to become a professor at Harvard, a new wooden building was erected to meet the demands of the rapidly expanding school. Pearson was succeeded by Ebenezer Pemberton, a polite and scholarly master, who devoted much attention to the manners of his pupils. When he left in 1793, he was followed in office by Mark Newman, in whose administration the Andover Theological Seminary was founded, largely through the efforts of Dr. Pearson. This seminary, which was opened September 28, 1808, was placed under the jurisdiction of the Board of Trustees of Phillips Academy, and remained in Andover almost exactly a century.

The fourth principal, John Adams, who replaced Newman in 1810, raised the prestige of the school, increased the attendance, and enlarged the faculty. He published the first catalogue and made the first revision of the curriculum; but his primary interest was in the moral welfare of the boys. The second Academy building was burned on January 28, 1818, and a new brick, colonial edifice, designed by the famous architect Bulfinch, was erected within a year; this "classic hall", described in Oliver Wendell Holmes's poem, The School Boy, is now in use as the Dining Hall. In 1830 the Teachers' Seminary, a new institution made possible by a bequest of His Honor, William Phillips (1750-1827) of Boston, was opened in a massive square structure, commonly known as the Stone Academy, built for that purpose. This Teachers' Seminary, combining the aims of a normal school and a scientific school, was the second of its kind in the United States. After twelve years of existence with only moderate success it was finally, in 1842, merged with Phillips Academy as the "English Department", a name which was changed in 1892 to a more nearly accurate title, "Scientific Department".

In 1832 John Adams resigned at the age of sixty and Osgood Johnson was elected principal. Unfortunately he died in 1837, of consumption, in his thirty-fifth year. During his administration the "Commons", dormitories known to so many generations of Phillips boys, were built under the direction of Samuel Farrar, Esq., Treasurer of the Trustees.

Samuel H. Taylor, whose reign of thirty-four years was the longest in the school history, became principal in 1837. The word "reign" is used advisedly, for he was an autocrat, severe in his methods of government and prompt to punish offenders. "Uncle Sam", as he was familiarly called, was a relentless drill-master in the classics and gained a well-deserved reputation for thoroughness and accuracy. He was a strong and vigorous personality, who made an enduring impression on all who came under his influence. In 1864 the Stone Academy was destroyed by fire, and was replaced by the Main Building, which has since been twice reconstructed. In 1865 Mr. George Peabody gave $25,000 to found the Peabody Instructorship in Natural Sciences, first filled by the late William B. Graves. Dr. Taylor on January 29, 1871, dropped dead in the vestibule of the Main Building. For the next two years the office of principal was held by Frederic W. Tilton, who, however, could do little in that short period.

The modern era of development began in 1873 with the arrival of Cecil F. P. Bancroft, who was principal until his death in 1901. Dr. Bancroft, working in a quiet, tactful, but persistent way, brought about many needed reforms. He first made a complete revision of the curriculum, thus enabling the school to meet the entrance requirements of any college, classical or scientific, and greatly broadening the range of studies. In his effort to gather about himself a larger and more efficient body of teachers he was entirely successful. The attendance also increased: in 1873 there were 252 pupils; in 1895 this had grown to 524, and after 1892 it never again dropped below 400. Dr. Bancroft also strove to secure additions to the plant, especially by providing dormitories in which boys could live under the direct supervision of instructors. He was aided in this aim by Melville C. Day of the class of 1858, who, in 1892, gave $8000 for a new dormitory, Taylor Cottage (now Pemberton Cottage), which was the beginning of the present extensive system of houses for students. Mr. Day continued his gifts, providing in all six dormitories which to-day furnish rooms for 168 boys, besides the teachers in charge. At his death in 1913 Mr. Day made Phillips Academy his residuary legatee. His gifts to the school amount in all to over $800,000.

On June 5 and 6, 1878, Phillips Academy celebrated its centennial anniversary with elaborate exercises, including an historical paper by Rev. William E. Park, an oration by Rev. Alexander McKenzie, a poem by Oliver Wendell Holmes, and speeches by Phillips Brooks, Josiah Quincy, Gustavus V. Fox, and other distinguished men associated with the school. At this time a fund of $100,000 was raised, partly for the endowment of a principalship and a professorship in Latin.

Dr. Bancroft's period was marked by both progress and expansion. He was a man of clear vision and foresight, firm will, and shrewd discrimination, who had the good sense to be patient until circumstances were favorable for pressing his projects. His policy has been maintained by his successor, Alfred E. Stearns, during whose administration Phillips Academy has grown in material equipment, in numbers, and in efficiency. In 1908, when Andover Theological Seminary was moved to Cambridge, the Trustees acquired the entire Seminary plant on Andover Hill at a cost of $200,000, thus more than doubling its property in land and buildings. In 1901 two generous benefactors of the school, Mr. R. Singleton Peabody of the class of 1857, and his wife, Margaret Peabody, established the Archaeological Department and provided for it a large endowment for instruction, publication, and research, and for the care and housing of collections in American Archaeology.

The official installation of Principal Stearns into office happily coincided with the celebration of the 125th anniversary of the founding of the school, held on June 16, 1903. The guest of honor was His Excellency, Sir Chentung Liang Cheng, Minister Plenipotentiary from the Chinese Empire to the United States, who was a student at Phillips Academy in 1880 and 1881. At the exercises in the new Borden Gymnasium the speakers were Dr. Alexander McKenzie, Hon. Robert R. Bishop, Sir Chentung Liang Cheng, and Mr. Stearns. On the same day Brothers' Field was dedicated with an address from the principal donor, Mr. George B. Knapp.

Concerning the significant developments of recent years, important though they are, little need be said here. At his death in 1917, Colonel Oliver Hazard Payne, of the class of 1859, bequeathed to the academy the sum of $500,000, this being the largest single gift yet made to the Trustees. In 1919, at the instigation of an alumni committee, a nation-wide campaign for a Building and Endowment Fund of $1,500,000 was opened, and has resulted in the securing of about $1,600,000. The income of two-thirds of this amount was devoted to the salaries of teachers and officers.

In the World War, Phillips Academy played a distinguished part. Its Ambulance Unit, which sailed overseas in April 1917, was the first to be sent from any American school, and its battalion, formed in February, 1917, prepared many young men for the army. At least 2400 of its alumni were enrolled in the military or naval service of the United States or its Allies; and eighty-seven gave their lives in the cause of their country. A Memorial Bell Tower, erected on Andover Hill, commemorates their loyalty and sacrifice.

LOCATION

Andover is a town of ten thousand inhabitants, situated on the Portland Division of the Boston and Maine Railroad, twenty-three miles north of Boston.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY is national in its representation and democratic in its life and spirit, and is "equally open to youth of requisite qualifications from every quarter". It aims to attract students of serious educational purposes and high moral standards.

The Academy is not a suitable school for boys who are idle, insubordinate, or lacking in self-control; nor is it adapted for those who require the constant supervision of teachers in the preparation of school work. Students who are found to be unable or unwilling to meet the requirements, and those whose influence is injurious, must be withdrawn from the school. As maturity is not always to be measured by years, the school has no specific regulation as to the age of the candidate. In general, however, it has been found that boys of fourteen are able to meet the responsibilities of life in the Academy.

The school provides accommodations and surroundings for its students which enable them to pass by gradual and natural stages from the paternalism of home life to the freedom that awaits them in college. Williams Hall, with its close supervision, special hours, and home life, offers attractive and helpful surroundings to the young boy just leaving home for his school career. A natural and progressive development is provided for subsequent years in the houses and halls which are in charge of married instructors. The regulations which obtain in all dormitories are here in force, but there is in them the atmosphere of home. The later life of the dormitories is designed to develop a larger sense of responsibility and to prepare for the community life of college. Boys in the dormitories are under the supervision of instructors and are required to observe fully the regulations of the school. In the judgment of the school authorities the average boy will secure the best results intellectually and morally by following out this gradual change in residence.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

The requirements for admission to Phillips Academy consist in evidence of good character and of a satisfactory school record. The Academy being unable to receive all who apply for admission, even when they can meet its minimum requirements, is obliged to discriminate among the applicants on the basis of their school records. It asks each candidate for admission to take certain specified examinations, in part to enable it to discriminate fairly among the applicants, but chiefly to enable it to properly classify those who are admitted. The school record already made by an applicant — interpreted to some extent by these examinations — determines largely the Academy's decision on each applicant.

Students in the Academy arrange their work in accordance with the Course of Study as outlined on pages 50-52. This outline exhibits the work which is done each year by a student who is neither behind nor ahead of his class in any subject. It is not required that all the studies of the student shall be in the class in which he is rated; he is permitted to take individual subjects below or above that class, if his preparation in the prerequisites of those subjects justifies such action. But a student ordinarily is not permitted to take courses in one class to the exclusion of uncompleted courses in a lower class except in subjects continuing through successive years.

Applicants for admission to any of the three lower classes are asked to take entrance examinations set by the Academy, or by the College Entrance Examination Board, on the work of such courses in its curriculum as they have completed. Each candidate should take the examinations for which his previous work fits him, irrespective of the class groups in which the subjects are listed below.

*Junior
Class*

To enter as a normal Junior (first-year class) a candidate must have completed an approved grammar school course. He must pass satisfactorily examinations (1) in the following topics of Arithmetic: common and decimal fractions, denominate numbers, percentage, interest, and square root, and (2) in such essentials of formal English grammar as are treated in Kittredge and Farley's Concise English Grammar (Ginn & Co.). The examination in English grammar will be combined with a test in spelling and composition. It is strongly recommended that candidates for the Junior Class become familiar with the declensions and conjugations of either Latin or French or German before entrance to the Academy.

Lower Middle Class For those who wish to enter as normal Lower Middlers the Academy sets papers on the work done in its Junior year as outlined on page 50
These examinations cover

one year's work in Algebra, as described on page 59,
one year's work in English, as described on page 57,
one year's work in Latin, as described on page 53,
one year's work in French or German, as described on pages 54-55,

Upper Middle Class Those who wish to enter as normal Upper Middlers should take the following examinations which cover the work of the Academy's first two years, as outlined on page 51:

- (1) an examination set by the Academy on two years' work in English, described on page 57;
- (2) the College Board's French Cp. 2 or German Cp. 2 examination, which covers two years' work, described on pages 54-56;
- (3) the College Board's *Latin Cp. 2 examination, which covers two years' work in Latin, described on pages 53-54;
- (4) in courses B and C, the College Board's Mathematics A examination, which covers two years' work in

*The Academy also sets an examination covering two years' work in Latin, which may be taken in place of the College Board's Latin Cp. 2 paper by those who are to continue the study of Latin in the Academy.

Algebra, described on page 59; or in course A, examinations set by the Academy on one year's work in *Algebra, described on page 59, and one year's work in German or Greek, described on pages 55 and 53.

The Academy will accept credits already established by examination at the college for which the candidate is preparing. Incoming boys, who have completed a subject which they do not wish to continue, should take the corresponding college entrance examination.

Senior Class Candidates for admission to the Senior Class should obtain college entrance credits which cover the work of the Academy's three lower years or its equivalent. The credits should ordinarily be obtained by means of the preliminary examinations of the College Entrance Examination Board. If a candidate is preparing for a college that admits on the certificate plan, credits established at that institution by certificate may be accepted by the Academy, but only if they are based on distinctly superior work. In accepting applicants, preference must often be given to candidates whose credits are established by examination.

The Academy occasionally admits to its Senior Class candidates for admission to college by the so-called "new plan". No candidate will be accepted on this basis unless he has completed an approved equivalent of the three lower years in the Academy, and has made an especially good record in scholarship. He must pass entrance examinations set by the Academy in those subjects already studied which he will continue.

Students are not admitted to the Senior Class later than the beginning of the winter term.

Classification Candidates who are admitted to the Academy and secure credits in the ways indicated in the preceding paragraphs are rated as

*The College Board's Mathematics AI paper may be substituted for this examination.

Juniors, if credited with fewer than 11 hours of the Academy's courses;

Lower Middlers, if credited with 11 to 28 hours;

Upper Middlers, if credited with 29 to 45 hours;

Seniors, if credited with 46 hours.

Procedure in applying In making application for admission to the Academy the form in the back of this catalogue should be used. It should be filled out carefully and completely and forwarded to the Head Master of the Academy. Testimonial letters may either accompany it or be sent later.

Certificates of standing in schools formerly attended are required. At the close of the school year, in June, the Academy sends to these institutions for complete official records of the candidates' work.

Each candidate should take in June such examinations as the requirements outlined on pages 18-20 demand. Candidates should not count on qualifying by means of September examinations without definite assurance from the school authorities of the possibility of their admission in this way. The pressure for admission in recent years makes such procedure difficult. Those who take college examinations or secure certificate credits at college should forward official returns to the Academy as soon as they are received.

Present members of the school are allowed first choice in room reservations for the following year. Rooms are assigned to incoming students about August 1, and in the order in which their admission applications are filed. Space for indicating room preference is provided on the admission application form.

Entrance Examinations Phillips Academy entrance examinations for candidates for the Junior, Lower Middle, and Upper Middle classes, and "new plan" candidates for the Senior class will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 21 and 22, 1927. The schedule of hours is announced in May. The examinations will be given in Andover: Phillips Academy, Graves Hall.

Chicago: Wiebaldt Hall of Commerce, 339 East Chicago Avenue.

New York: Room 309, School of Business Building, Columbia University.

Examinations will be held in other cities, in June only, if the number of candidates in any locality is sufficient.

For the Academy's examinations in Andover on these regular dates no fee is charged. For its examinations outside of Andover a fee of $5.00 is required; but, if College Board examinations are taken also, the fee for the Academy's examinations is $2.00.

The examinations of the College Entrance Examination Board are held each June in a large number of cities in the United States and abroad. They come in 1927 during the week of June 20-25. Application to take these examinations should be made early in May to the Secretary of the College Entrance Examination Board, 431 West 117th Street, New York City. The fee, which is $10.00 for the year 1927, should accompany this application.

On Tuesday, September 13, 1927, the Academy examinations will be held at 9.30 A.M., in Andover only, according to a schedule of rooms and hours announced at that time.

A pamphlet containing the Academy's 1926 examination papers will be supplied upon request. College Board examinations of former years are published by Ginn & Company.

Special Students No special students, except foreigners, are received in the Junior or Lower Middle year, and the Academy makes no provision for special students who are not candidates for graduation or for entrance to college or scientific school.

Special courses may be arranged in the Upper Middle and Senior years, only at the written request of parents and by special Faculty vote.

Diploma Requirements To receive the diploma of the Academy a student must have secured passing grades:

- (a) in all required subjects in the course selected,
 - (b) in subjects which amount to at least 69 hours of the curriculum,
 - (c) in a sufficient number of the subjects recognized by the College Entrance Examination Board to complete 15 units,
- and (d) in all subjects pursued in the Senior year.

Examinations and Promotions Written examinations are held in each study at least once a term, but the term grading is based on the results of both written examinations and daily work. A student who is guilty of dishonesty in an examination may be suspended or dismissed. At the close of each term, a report of the student's scholarship and attitude towards his work is sent to his parents or guardian. Mid-term reports are also sent for all students whose work is below the passing grade, 60%, and for those who obtain grades of 80% and above.

Class Officers Each student is assigned to the special care of a member of the faculty who is known as his Class Officer. This officer arranges the schedule of studies for each member of the class under his charge, and recommends such subsequent changes as seem desirable.

Division Officers The entire school is divided into groups of approximately twenty students each. Each group is assigned to the special charge of an instructor whose duty it is to familiarize himself with the previous history and present standing of the several members, and to serve as their counselor.

Wednesday and Saturday afternoons are half-holidays.

Study Hours Students are expected to occupy themselves with their studies or other school work during all study hours.

Absences Every absence of the student from recitation, morning chapel, Sunday service, or from his room during study hours, must be accounted for. The accumulation of eight unexcused absences involves suspension from school. In all cases of illness, notice must be sent at once to the Medical Adviser, who investigates daily all cases reported.

Special importance is attached to meeting all appointments immediately preceding and following vacation and recess periods. A failure to meet such appointments must be regarded as a very serious offence and may necessitate withdrawal from school.

Out-of-Town All out-of-town excuses must be obtained from the Head Master's office. On half-holidays and Excuses on special holidays such excuses are granted occasionally to those whose school standing is good. The student who goes out of town without permission forfeits his connection with the school.

Religious Students are required to be present at morning
Exercises chapel. The Sunday services in the Chapel and the religious work of the school are conducted in connection with the Academy Church, an undenominational organization. Distinguished clergymen are frequently invited to preach to the school. Voluntary communion services are held in the Chapel during the year. The Society of Inquiry

(the Christian Association of the school) holds voluntary meetings, which are often addressed by an invited speaker.

Upon written request from their parents, students may be excused to attend the morning services of the Protestant Episcopal, Baptist, or Roman Catholic churches.

EXPENSES

Parents can estimate approximately the expenses of their sons at the Academy, and they are particularly requested not to furnish money beyond what is necessary for modest expenditures. Pupils who are supplied with much spending money, or who are allowed to incur debts, often accomplish little in their studies, and are liable to form habits which require their withdrawal from the school. Parents are earnestly requested to refuse permission to their sons to contract debts.

The schedules below indicate the range of the school charges.

Table 1 indicates the range of the Academy's regular charges. Table 2 shows an average charge. Table 3 indicates the charges to scholarship students.

Tuition Bills The tuition for the year is $350.00 divided as follows: three-fifths, or $210.00, payable October 1; two-fifths, or $140.00, payable on March 1. Each student is required to deposit with the Treasurer on entering the school the sum of $20.00 to cover breakage and other obligations which may be incurred during the school year. The balance remaining after such charges have been deducted will be returned, but not before the close of the fiscal year, June 30.

An additional charge of $10.00 is made to members of the Senior class to cover the expenses of Commencement. A rebate of $1.50 from this charge is made if the student fails to secure his diploma. Students in Chemistry and Physics are charged for the supplies which they use. All bills are mailed to parents or guardians, but may be paid in person by the students. Classroom privileges will be denied to students whose bills are not settled on or before the dates mentioned above. As instructors must be engaged and other provisions for education must be made by the school authorities for the entire year in advance, tuition charges will not be refunded when students are suspended, dismissed, or withdrawn during the school year. Checks should be drawn in favor of the Trustees of Phillips Academy.

Infirmary Service

A charge of four dollars a day to each student is made for infirmary service which includes room and board. Extra charges are made for nurses employed in addition to the regular nursing staff. Local physicians render their bills for services directly to parents or guardians.

Athletic Fee

A charge of $20.00 is made for the maintenance of athletics, but for scholarship boys this charge is $12.00 a year which may be paid wholly or in part by the performance of special work assigned by the Bureau of Self-Support. Three-fifths of the total amount of this charge is payable October 1st, and two-fifths on March 1st. Students are not asked to contribute further to the financial support of the various school teams.

Room Rents

Payments for student rooms in the school buildings are required as follows: three-fifths of the entire yearly rental on or before October 1; the remaining two-fifths on March 1. A deposit of $25.00 is required when the contract for the room assigned is filed. This deposit will be credited to the first regular school bill. When a room is assigned to a student, his parent or guardian agrees by contract to pay the entire rental of the room up to the close of the current school year, whether the student continues a member of the Academy or not. The right is reserved by the Trustees to transfer boys from room to room in the school buildings whenever changes seem desirable; such changes, however, do not relieve the original occupants from the obligation of meeting the entire year's rent, unless newcomers are secured to fill the vacancies.

Each room is furnished with a rug, desk, chiffonier, two chairs, bed, mattress, pillow, sheets, pillow cases, and one pair of blankets. Towels are not included.

Room Scholarships About twenty "room scholarships" amounting to approximately $50.00 each are available for deserving boys. These scholarships will be credited to the regular room charges on the recipients' term bills and will be awarded by the Head Master to boys whose circumstances compel them to keep their expenses at a low average.

Dining Hall The equipment of the Academy includes a well-appointed Dining Hall which accommodates two hundred and fifty boys. A fixed charge, payable one term in advance, is made to cover light, heat, service, and food such as soups, vegetables, cereals, bread, butter, milk, coffee, etc. This charge is subject to change at the beginning of any school term. It was $4.50 a week during the year 1926-1927. Meats, fish, eggs, and desserts are served a la carte at cost and are charged against meal-tickets which are sold at $5.00 each. The average cost has been about $8.00 a week.

Private Houses

About twelve private houses in the vicinity of the Academy, under license from the Trustees, provide board and lodgings for students, and no student may occupy any house not thus licensed by the school. Some of the houses provide furnished rooms only; others provide rooms and board, and some furnish board for students rooming in neighboring houses. The price of table board is $10.00 and $12.00 a week. These charges are subject to change at the beginning of any school term upon the approval of the Trustees. Students rooming in private families may, if they desire, board at the Dining Hall. The price of furnished rooms, including ordinary service, is from $5.00 to $7.50 a week.

Engagements for table board may, on suitable notice, be terminated at the close of any term. Arrangements and payments for room and board in private houses must be made with those in charge of the houses.

BUILDINGS AND EQUIPMENT

*Williams Hall
for Young Boys*

Through the generosity of Prof. Edward H. Williams, Jr., of the class of 1868, the school in 1910 secured possession of a valuable piece of property for the housing and care of younger boys. The property, comprising several acres, adjoins the Old Campus and is within a short distance of the other school buildings.

Williams Hall has attractive accommodations for forty-two boys. The rooms are spacious, light, and airy, and are heated with hot water and lighted with electricity. On the main floor is a common reading and recreation room. Table board is furnished in the building to all occupants of the house.

It is the aim of the Trustees to provide in this building surroundings as helpful as possible for the best development of young boys, and to this end they have placed it in charge of a married instructor. Boys whose work is below standard may be required to report at seven-thirty each evening, when they work under supervision and are free to consult the resident instructor and his assistants in regard to their studies.

Williams Hall supplies a stepping-stone between the natural restrictions of the home and the somewhat freer life of a large school. Although the boys who live here have all the advantages that Phillips Academy offers, they are under somewhat closer supervision this is customary throughout the rest of the school. For the school year 1927-1928 the charge for room and board in Williams Hall, not including the regular tuition charge, will be $750.00. A limited number of room scholarships are awarded annually in this hall. A special circular explaining in detail the equipment and arrangements of Williams Hall, and containing both interior and exterior views of this building, will be furnished on request.

Faculty Houses The school provides for dormitory purposes thirteen houses formerly occupied as private dwellings. These houses are suitable for younger boys, especially those who are members of the two lower classes. Each house is in charge of a resident instructor. The rooms are furnished, and the charges include heat, light, and care of the rooms.

The Abbot House provides accommodations for eighteen boys, the Blanchard House for eight, the Cheever House for twelve, the Churchill House for six, the Clement House for thirteen, the Farrar House for seven, the Hardy House for five, the Hayward House for six, the Park House for eight, the Pease House for nine, the Tower House for four, the Tucker House for seven, and the Woods House for five.

The America House provides accommodations for twelve students and the Berry House for six and table board can be secured in both houses.

Dormitories Through the generous gifts of Mr. Melville C.

Day of the class of 1858, Mr. Warren F. Draper of the class of 1843, and a number of citizens of Andover, and by the purchase of the property formerly belonging to the Andover Theological Seminary, the Academy now possesses thoroughly modern dormitories providing at reasonable rates attractive accommodations for almost the entire student body. Below is given a brief description of these various buildings, and a list of the prices of rooms in each will be found on pages 27-28. With the exception of some of the Faculty Houses and Williams Hall these buildings are of brick. All are furnished, heated by steam, lighted by electricity, and equipped with shower-baths and the modern sanitary conveniences. Most of the study rooms have open fireplaces. Each building or entry is in charge of a resident instructor.

PHILLIPS HALL, erected in 1808, was entirely remodeled in 1912. It is divided by a fire wall into two separate entries and provides accommodations for seventeen boys in each entry.

BARTLET HALL was erected in 1820 and entirely rebuilt in 1915. This building also is divided by a fire wall into two separate entries, and contains both double and single suites, accommodating twenty-one boys in each entry.

PEMBERTON COTTAGE, erected in 1891, contains five double suites.

ANDOVER COTTAGE, erected in 1892, contains four double suites, one single suite, and two single rooms.

DRAPER COTTAGE, erected in 1892, contains five double suites.

EATON COTTAGE, erected in 1892, contains four double suites and two single suites.

BANCROFT HALL, erected in 1900, contains sixteen double suites. The building is divided by fire walls into three separate entries, each entry accommodating ten boys.

DAY HALL, erected in 1911, contains twelve double suites, two single suites, and twenty single rooms. The building is divided by a fire wall into two separate entries, each entry accommodating twenty-three boys.

BISHOP HALL, erected in 1911, is similar in its arrangement and appointments to Day Hall and accommodates the same number of boys.

ADAMS HALL, erected in 1912, is divided into two separate entries, each of which, like the Faculty Houses, is in charge of a married instructor. Each entry accommodates twenty boys.

TAYLOR HALL, erected in 1913, accommodates twenty boys in each of its two entries and is in charge of two married instructors.

JOHNSON HALL, erected in 1922, is similar in its arrangement and appointments to Taylor Hall and accommodates the same number of boys.

(For prices of rooms see pages 27-28.)

Graves Hall Graves Hall, devoted to Science, contains in addition to the well-equipped laboratories for Physics, Chemistry, and Biology, two recitation rooms, a lecture room, and a drafting room.

Pearson Hall Pearson Hall, erected in 1817 and remodeled in 1878, and again in 1922, is used for recitation purposes. It contains four large recitation rooms and three conference rooms.

Archaeology Building

This building contains rooms for the collections of the Department of Archaeology and offices for the Directors.

Peabody House

Peabody House bears the name of the founders of the Archaeological department, with the funds of which it was erected. The building carries out the expressed wishes of Mr. and Mrs. Peabody that their benefaction should promote the social interests of the student body as well as further the study of American Archaeology. Quarters are provided for the Phillips Union and include a well appointed grill, a large and attractive reading room, and a memorial room used as an assembly hall for receptions, lectures, and meetings of the various organizations of the school.

Library

Brechin Hall is used for library purposes. A large hall on the upper floor is devoted to the library of about sixteen thousand volumes, which is in charge of a trained librarian and is open daily for the use of students.

*Samuel
Phillips
Hall*

This recent addition to the school plant was completed in 1924. The building, which contains twenty-six recitation rooms and two examination rooms and is thoroughly modern in every respect, was made possible through the activity and interest of the alumni of the school who generously provided the funds required for its erection.

*George Washington
Hall*

George Washington Hall, the latest building added to the school plant, was opened for occupancy in September, 1926. The building, which contains a large auditorium and the offices of administration, is the generous gift of an alumnus and commemorates the historic connection of President Washington with the school and his friendship with the founder.

The Chapel

The Chapel, erected in 1875 and enlarged in 1920, provides accommodations for the religious exercises of the school. The daily morning chapel exercises and the Sunday preaching and vesper services are held in this building. The Chapel contains the William Couch Egleston memorial organ.

*Borden
Gymnasium* The Academy has a large gymnasium, completely equipped with modern apparatus, and in charge of a Physical Director who is also the Medical Adviser. All students are required to take regular gymnasium work.

Swimming Pool The swimming pool, adjoining the gymnasium, is seventy-five feet long and thirty feet wide, and represents the most modern ideas in swimming pool construction. The elaborate filtration plant in the basement of the building assures the purity of the water used in the pool.

The swimming pool was constructed in 1910 with funds secured by the efforts of the students themselves.

*The Case
Memorial
Building* The Case Memorial Building, was erected in 1923, by Mr. and Mrs. George B. Case and family in memory of George B. Case, Jr., and provides unusual facilities for all kinds of athletic activities and healthful recreation during the winter term and on stormy days when such activities are not possible on the regular playing fields.

Phillips Inn The school property includes a well-equipped hotel, situated near the center of the grounds, under lease to a manager, and furnishing to parents and friends of the school quiet and comfortable accommodations.

*The Isham
Infirmary* The Academy maintains an infirmary, the generous gift of Miss Flora E. Isham, whose name it bears. The infirmary was completed in 1912, is thoroughly modern in all its appointments, and was carefully planned under the direction of experts in hospital construction. In addition to the general wards, it contains single rooms for those requiring special treatment, and an operating room. The contagious wards are completely separated from the ordinary wards, and at each end of the building there is a large sun parlor entirely encased in glass. Boys who are sufficiently indisposed to be unable to attend classes are sent to the infirmary for proper care. Except when special arrangements have been made in advance by parents or guardians, the following regulations will be observed in the conduct of the infirmary. Patients at the infirmary requiring medical attention shall call in local physicians approved by the school authorities. In cases requiring the attendance of specialists, the best men available in Boston will be called in consultation. In special emergencies, when operations seem necessary and parents cannot be consulted in advance, the Head Master of the school assumes responsibility for authorizing such operations. The Medical Adviser may at any time examine and report upon individual cases.

Athletic Grounds

Brothers' Field, comprising sixty acres, is in close proximity to the gymnasium and contains ample facilities for baseball, football, and track athletics. The Academy possesses other extensive grounds for various athletic sports, including baseball, football, soccer, and tennis.

Bulletin

The Bulletin, a magazine devoted to the interests and history of the school and its alumni, is published four times a year and sent to all former members of Phillips Academy whose addresses are known.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Scholarship Aid

The sums granted as scholarships vary according to the excellence of the boys in their studies, a student of the highest rank receiving a sum equivalent to the full tuition fee and room rent. Every new applicant for a scholarship must pay on entering the Academy the sum of $50 toward his tuition. This sum is not remitted. At the close of each term scholarships are adjusted in accordance with the student's record in his studies during that term. Boys of limited means who possess scholarly ability and ambition are encouraged to apply for admission, and, if admitted, may be reasonably sure of financial assistance.

Special Provision for Scholarship Boys Furnished rooms are reserved in various dormitories for boys who are obliged to keep their expenses within the lowest possible limits. A rental of $40 to $50 is charged each occupant of these rooms. Choice of room is determined by the scholarship rank of the applicant.

Self-Support Ample opportunities are afforded by the Academy to scholarship boys to earn a portion of their school charges. Service in the Dining Hall and boarding houses enables them to earn their board. Several agencies are assigned by the Bureau of Self-Support and a number of students may earn a portion of the school charges by work in connection with the school offices. An energetic boy may find various other chances for remunerative work.

SYNOPSIS OF THE COURSES OF STUDY

As the subjects are taught with a view to the student's progressive development, it is desirable for him to take the entire course in the Academy. In recent years the Academy has been forced to limit rigidly the number admitted to the Senior class.

In order that the student may plan his work to the greatest advantage, it is important that he decide as early as possible upon the higher institution which he intends to enter. A proper choice of course and of elective subjects will furnish adequate preparation for any college or scientific school.

All Seniors must report to the Librarian for instruction in the use of the library.

In order to define the work of the pupil in his Senior year, Upper Middlers are required to take preliminary examinations for some college. June examinations, both preliminary and final, are held in Andover by the College Entrance Examination Board.

†Mechanical Drawing takes six hours of the class-room time, but, not requiring home preparation, counts only three hours on the schedule.

STATEMENT OF COURSES

G R E E K

The first year (Greek¹) is devoted mainly to forms and the most essential principles of syntax. Benner and Smyth's Beginner's Greek Book is used. To aid the memorizing of inflections and vocabularies there are daily exercises, both oral and written, enforced by incessant drill. During the second and third terms work in the grammar is supplemented by lessons from a very simple Greek Reader.

The second year (Greek²) is occupied with Xenophon's Anabasis, Books I-IV, or an equivalent, with sight reading, translation from English into Greek, and grammar reviews. Great effort is made to secure simple, idiomatic English in both oral and written work. Grammar and composition are studied throughout the year and occupy a part of every recitation period.

There is an elective course in the Greek Testament — one hour a week — open to both Upper Middlers and Seniors.

The third year (Greek³) is spent mainly in reading selected books of the Iliad and the Odyssey. After the dialect is mastered, more attention is given to the literary side of the poems and to the translation of Homer at sight, about 5 000 verses being read during the year.

L A T I N

The first year (Latin¹) is occupied with the mastery of such vocabulary, inflexions, and syntax as the better manuals for beginners provide. There is constant practice in the reading and writing of simple prose, and in observing the relation of Latin to English words. The course aims at a thoroughly dependable foundation for subsequent reading and study. As the normal course is one of only four years, it is imperative that candidates should have a competent knowledge of the fundamentals of English grammar. It is desirable also that, before entering the Academy, they should be familiar with the ordinary forms of the Latin declensions and conjugations.

In the second year (Latin²), Books I-IV of the Gallic War of Caesar, or equivalent amounts from a "Second Year Book" are studied, with emphasis upon subject-matter, syntax, and vocabulary. Twenty per cent of the total time allotted to the course is given to prose composition based upon the texts read. There is continual practice in sight translation and reading aloud.

In the third year (Latin³) the course aims chiefly to make the student familiar with the characteristics of Cicero's oratory. The work in Latin prose composition is devoted to connected narrative. The first and third orations against Catiline, the poet Archias, Verres (The Plunder of Syracuse), and other speeches, such as the Marcellus or the Manilian Law, are read. There is also sight reading and practice in reading aloud.

In the fourth year (Latin⁴) effort is made to cultivate a sympathetic appreciation of the essentials of good poetry. Books I, III, and VI of the Aeneid, with selections from the Metamorphoses of Ovid, and sight reading, as required by the College Entrance Examination Board, form the basis of the work. Topics in the private life and customs of the Romans are studied and illustrated.

FRENCH

The first year's work (French¹) comprises the principles of pronunciation, drill in the fundamentals of grammar including the inflections of the regular and the more common irregular verbs, of nouns, of adjectives, of participles, of pronouns; the uses of pronouns, the simple uses of the conditional and subjunctive, and the elementary rules of syntax; abundant easy exercises for oral translation into French, and the reading of about two hundred pages of easy French prose. The following texts have been used. Kuhn's Reader, Super's Reader, Aldrich and Foster's Reader, La Tulipe Noire, L'Été de la Saint-Martin, Sans Famille, and Morrison and Gautier's French Grammar.

The second-year course (French²) of four hours completes the elementary work in French and prepares for the College Board examinations in Elementary French. It includes a review of elementary grammar and continued work in composition and translation. Such texts as Colomba, La Mère de la Marquise, Le Roi des Montagnes, Syntax of the French Verb, and Galland's Composition have been used.

The third year (French³) covers the requirement of the College Board in Intermediate French. Contes de Daudet, La Débâcle, Les Misérables, and similar texts furnish material for translation, and work in composition and grammar is done throughout the year.

The fourth-year work (French⁴) consists of easy conversation with reading. This course is for those who have passed the college examinations and who wish to continue their work in the language.

GERMAN

The first year's work (German¹) includes a constant drill in pronunciation and a thorough course in elementary grammar. Abundant easy exercises are translated into German and used as the basis of oral and aural practice. A limited amount of memorizing of German idioms and poetry, and translation from German into English are required. Bacon's New German Grammar and various easy texts are used in this work.

The second-year course (German²) completes the preparation for the College Board examination in Elementary German. It comprises a thorough review of the grammar and a considerable amount of more advanced translation and composition. Conversational work is continued by the use of such helps as Ballard and Krause's Short Stories for Oral German. Wesselhoeft's Elementary German Grammar and Bacon's German Composition have been used in this course and various texts like Wildenbruch's Das edle Blut, Gerstäcker's Irrfahrten, and Baumbach's Der Schwiegersohn are read.

The third year's work (German³) prepares for the examination in Intermediate German as set by the College Entrance Examination Board. Grammar is rapidly reviewed and advanced composition written throughout the year. Ham and Leonard's German Grammar and Pope's German Composition have been used in this connection. Oral work is continued, and such texts as Freytag's Die Journalisten, Riehl's Der Fluch der Schönheit, Schurz's Lebenserinnerungen, Heine's Die Harzreise, Schiller's Wilhelm Tell, and Schiller's Der Dreissig-jährige Krieg III are studied.

The fourth-year course (German⁴) of two hours a week is open to those who have secured credit for three years of German, and, upon consultation with the instructor, to others who satisfy him of their ability. The course will be adapted to the maturity of the students and their proficiency in German. Half the time will be spent in conversational practice on everyday topics and German life and institutions, the remainder in rapid reading and interpretation of some phase of German literature. Prehn's Journalistic German, Wildenbruch's Die Rabensteinerin, Sudermann's Der Katzensteg, and Hauptmann's Die Weber have been used. Wagner's Tannhäuser has been studied and the original Middle High German poems of the old singers discussed and put into modern German. Students in this course are not recommended for additional college credits in German.

SPANISH

The first year's work (Spanish¹) is as follows: — (a) thorough drill in the principles of pronunciation; (b) rules of syntax and

essentials of Spanish grammar including the inflection of verbs (regular and irregular), nouns, adjectives, pronouns, the uses of the conditional and subjunctive; (c) abundant easy exercises for translation into Spanish; (d) the translation of two hundred or more pages of easy Spanish prose, such as is contained in Hills' Spanish Tales, Bergé-Soler and Hatheway's Reader, Morrison's Tres Comedias, Alarcón's Short Stories, Isaac's María, and Asensi's Victoria; grammars such as De Vitis', Hills and Ford's, Crawford's First Book in Spanish, and Moreno-Lacalle's Elementos de Español.

The second-year course (Spanish²) completes the elementary course in Spanish, and prepares for the College Board examination in this subject. It consists of a complete review of Spanish grammar and continued work in composition and translation. Such texts as El Capitán Veneno, José, Zaragüeta, Espinosa and Allen's Spanish Grammar, and Umphrey's Spanish Prose Composition have been used.

ENGLISH

The work of English¹ in composition is based on themes, — simple narratives and descriptions — written in the class-room. Attention is given to the correction of grammatical errors in speech and writing, with necessary consideration of formal grammar; to elementary matters of the structure and the punctuation of the sentence; to spelling; and to the acquisition of a vocabulary. The work in literature consists in reading aloud and discussing in the class-room a few short works in verse and prose. Considerable emphasis is placed on enunciation and pronunciation.

In the teaching of composition in English², the general plan of the preceding year is continued, with a somewhat higher standard of requirement, the chief object being to secure plenty of practice. Themes are written outside of the class-room as well as during the recitation period. The study of some elementary matters of rhetoric is begun.

The textbook used for the work in composition is Ward's Sentence and Theme. The study of literature comprises the careful reading of some books and the rapid reading of others. Particular attention is given to oral English, each student being required to deliver two carefully prepared speeches each term, and to read aloud in the class-room as frequently as possible.

In English³ the thorough study of formal rhetoric is begun. As many themes as possible are written outside of the class-room, and considerable writing is done in the class-room. The textbook used is Herrick and Damon's New Composition and Rhetoric. The course in literature includes the careful reading of six or seven books, selected in part from the list for reading (A) prescribed in the College Entrance Requirements; the lives of the authors; and the rapid reading, optional or required, of as many other books as possible.

In English⁴ the principles of composition-rhetoric studied in the preceding year are reviewed, with a higher standard of requirement in their application to writing. Leonard and Fuess's Good Writing is used in this year. Formal themes and writing in the class-room are required. The course in literature includes the rapid reading of some books and the careful study of others; the life and times of the chief authors; and as much supplementary reading as possible. The work of this year completes the preparation for the comprehensive examination offered by the College Entrance Examination Board.

PUBLIC SPEAKING

Public Speaking is taken up as part of the Lower Middle English course.

An elective course in Public Speaking comprises training in the preparation and delivery of expositions, argumentative speeches, and debates. There is some work in declamation and a considerable amount of extemporaneous speaking.

ENGLISH BIBLE

A two-hour course in English Bible is offered as a Senior elective. The subject matter is as follows: First Term, the narrative portions of the Old Testament; Second Term, the life and teachings of Christ as found in the four Gospels; Third Term, the establishment of the early Christian Church. Text-books: The Old Testament Narrative by Sheffield; The New Testament; and His Life, edited by Barton, Soares, and Strong.

ALGEBRA

Algebra¹. The study of Algebra is begun in the Junior year in a course occupying five hours a week throughout the year. Durell and Arnold's First Book in Algebra (enlarged edition) is completed during the year.

Algebra². This course provides a review of Algebra¹ and continues the subject through all the topics of Elementary and Intermediate Algebra named in the recently revised statement of requirements of the College Entrance Examination Board. Candidates for entrance to the Academy desiring credit for this course must present a college entrance certificate giving credit for both Elementary and Intermediate Algebra.

Algebra³. This course covers the topics in Advanced Algebra specified by the College Entrance Examination Board and meets the entrance requirements of all colleges and scientific schools.

GEOMETRY

Demonstrative Plane Geometry is begun and completed in a single year. Four, or five, recitations a week are given to the subject. The chief aim of the instruction is to develop in each student the ability to reason clearly and logically. Accuracy, clearness, and completeness of statement are insisted upon. To develop originality and independence of thought, about two-thirds of the time is devoted to the solution of exercises of gradually increasing difficulty.

In the Senior year Solid Geometry is taught four hours a week during the winter term and two hours during the spring term. The course meets the entrance requirements of all colleges and scientific schools.

TRIGONOMETRY

A course in Plane Trigonometry meeting four hours a week during the fall term and two hours during the spring term, forms, with Solid Geometry, a full four-hour course for the Senior year. It meets the entrance requirements of all colleges and scientific schools.

MECHANICAL DRAWING

Six hours each week are given to this course. It includes the use of drawing instruments, lettering, geometric constructions, orthographic and isometric projections, developments, intersections, sectioning, and working drawings. Especial stress is laid on a thorough mastering of the fundamentals. The course meets the requirements of the College Entrance Examination Board and in many instances so prepares the student that he can obtain advance credit for the subject on his entrance to college. Students of exceptional ability are given an opportunity to do more advanced work or are given problems in keeping with the course to be pursued after entrance to college.

PHYSICS

panied with numerical examples and by qualitative experiments designed to illustrate physical laws and their application to practical life.

CHEMISTRY

BIOLOGY

The course in Biology covers the fundamental characteristics of living things; the nutrition, growth, and reproduction of plants and animals; the physiology and hygiene of the human body; the influence of bacteria, insects, trees, and birds on man's welfare; and the principles of heredity and evolution.

The class meets four times a week, twice for recitations and twice for two-hour laboratory periods. The work in the laboratory includes careful training in the use of the compound microscope and in the recording of observations made. The instruction meets the requirement of the College Entrance Board and counts one point for admission to college.

ARCHÆOLOGY

The work of the department is chiefly confined to the United States, and research in other subjects than American archæology is not extensively attempted.

At present the collections number about 220,000 specimens, all of which represent the stone age art.

The publications of the department number nine: — Bulletin No. 1, on the Exploration of Jacob's Cavern; No. 2, The Gorgets;

No. 3, Field Work in Ohio, Tennessee, Kentucky, Arizona, and New Mexico; No. 4, The Exploration of Bushey Cavern and the Exploration of Fort Ancient; No. 5, A Study and Description of the Seven Prehistoric Earthworks found near Andover; No. 6, A Study of Hematite Implements found in the United States; No. 7, Archaeological Explorations in the State of Maine. Southwestern series, No. 1, An Introduction to the Study of Southwestern Archaeology. No. 2, The Potter's Art at San Ildefonso, New Mexico. No. 3, The Pueblo of Jemez.

HISTORY

Courses are offered in Ancient History, English History, American History, and modern European History.

PHILOSOPHY

A two-hour Senior elective is offered in this subject, the object of the course being to present a general introduction to the field for those students who may wish to continue their philosophical studies at college or the university. The first term is devoted to talks on Greek Philosophy and the reading of Berkeley's Dialogues between Hylas and Philonous; the second to talks on Mediæval Philosophy and the reading of Hume's Enquiry Concerning Human Understanding; the third term to talks on Modern Philosophy and Psychology. The text-books used, in addition to those mentioned, are: Weber, History of Philosophy, and James, Shorter Course in Psychology.

PHYSICAL TRAINING

All students are required to take some form of exercise during the school year. Upon entering the school each boy receives a careful physical and medical examination, and a form of exercise suited to his peculiar needs is advised. Special attention is given to those who lack normal development. The school, club, and squad teams give all students an opportunity to compete in sports with those of their own relative ability. No student is allowed to compete on school teams unless permission indicating his fitness is received from the Physical Director.

MUSIC

Opportunity for the study of piano, organ, violin, and voice is offered by the Department of Music. The piano instruction is in charge of Messrs. Felix Fox and Harrison Potter of Boston; the organ lessons are given by the Director of Music, violin lessons by Mr. Linwood D. Scriven of Boston, and voice by Mr. Rulon Robison of Boston.

A two-hour course in Harmony is offered as an elective.

Students who sing in the choir, every member attending two rehearsals a week, are offered one of three forms of compensation: (a) financial; (b) one athletic or chapel cut a week; (c) permission to count the choir work as one schedule-hour.

Serious attention is given the school orchestra, which rehearses weekly and studies carefully both classical and modern compositions.

During the academic year 1926-1927 the following concerts were given: Russian Symphonic Choir, Basil Kibalchich, conductor; Fox-Burgin-Bedetti Trio; Humperdink's Opera "Hansel and Gretel"; a Debussy-Chopin Recital by M. Dumesnil with Chopin's piano; a dedicatory organ recital upon the new Casavant organ in the George Washington Auditorium by M. Louis Vierne, first organist at Notre Dame, Paris; the annual joint concerts with Exeter and Bradford Academies; the winter-term Sunday afternoon organ recitals, and a special series of six musicales on the Sunday afternoons of the spring term, beginning with the first Sunday in May, the musicales consisting of a Carillon recital upon the thirty-seven bells in the Memorial Tower at 2.30 P.M., and an organ recital upon the new organ in the George Washington Auditorium at 4 o'clock. At the latter recitals the Director of Music will play the complete preludes of the Mature Master-Period of Bach and the complete organ-works of Cesar Franck. With the addition of the new organ the Academy possesses a two-manual practice organ in the Peabody House, a three-manual, fifty-stop organ in the chapel, and a four-manual, one-hundred-stop organ in the George Washington Auditorium. A new player-Ampico piano has also been presented to the school by a friend. This will be used in connection with a series of Wednesday afternoon talks on the history and appreciation of music to be given in the new auditorium during the winter-term of the academic year 1927-1928.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY

Phillips Academy is not a private school, but an endowed academy, controlled by a Board of Trustees and administered under the written constitution of its founders. By the terms of this Constitution, or Deed of Gift, signed April 21, 1778, Esquire Samuel Phillips (1715-1790) of North Andover and his brother, John Phillips (1719-1795) of Exeter, New Hampshire, set aside tracts of about 141 acres on Andover Hill and 200 acres in Jaffrey, New Hampshire, together with the sum of 1614 pounds, as a foundation for a school. This document, outlining the broad principles upon which the proposed institution was to be conducted, was composed by Esquire Phillips's son, Samuel Phillips, Jr. (1752-1802), with the advice and aid of his friend, Eliphalet Pearson (1752-1826). Samuel Phillips, Jr., was afterwards Judge of the Massachusetts Court of Common Pleas, President of the Senate, and Lieutenant-Governor of the Commonwealth.

Although Judge Phillips derived many of his educational theories from the writings of John Locke and from the English nonconformist schools with the scheme of which he was familiar, his plan was nevertheless highly original. The purpose of the academy was specifically stated in the following words: —

“And, in order to prevent the smallest subversion of the true intent of this Foundation, it is again declared, that the first and principal object of this Institution is the promotion of true Piety and Virtue; the second, instruction in English, Latin, and Greek languages, together with Writing, Arithmetic, Music, and the Art of Speaking; the third, practical Geometry, Logic, and Geography; and the fourth, such other of the liberal Arts and Sciences, or Languages, as opportunity and ability may hereafter admit, and as the Trustees shall direct.”

The chief emphasis was laid on the development of character, and the Master was to take pains "to regulate the tempers, to enlarge the minds, and form the Morals of the Youth committed to his care". It was stipulated, also, that the school "shall be ever equally open to youth, of requisite qualifications, from every quarter". The government was placed in the hands of a self-perpetuating Board of Trustees. In order to prevent sectarianism and provincialism, it was specified that a majority of the members should be laymen, and that more than half must not be residents of the town in which the academy is located. The Trustees were hampered by no vexatious or trivial restrictions, but were given sole authority over the institution. By the provisions of the Act of Incorporation, passed by the General Court, October 4, 1780, their number was fixed at never more than thirteen or less than seven, and they were permitted to possess real estate with an income not exceeding five hundred pounds and personal property with an income not greater than two thousand pounds. These holding powers have since been considerably enlarged by legislative enactments, as the school has grown.

The first meeting of the Board of Trustees was held on Tuesday, April 28, 1778. Of the twelve original members, four were members of the Phillips family: Esquire Samuel Phillips, John Phillips, William Phillips of Boston, and Samuel Phillips, Jr. These men became in turn the first four presidents of the Board. The other members, all relatives or close friends of the Phillips family, were John Lowell and Oliver Wendell of Boston, Rev. Josiah Stearns of Epping, Rev. Elias Smith of Middleton, Rev. William Symmes of North Andover, and Rev. Jonathan French, Nehemiah Abbot, Esq., and Eliphalet Pearson of Andover.

Phillips School, as it was called until its incorporation, was opened for instruction April 30, 1778, in a remodeled carpenter's shop on Andover Hill, thirteen pupils being present; before the year was over, fifty-two had registered. The first principal was Eliphalet Pearson, a stimulating teacher and stern disciplinarian, who established high standards of instruction and supervision. Shortly before he resigned in 1786 to become a professor at Harvard, a new wooden building was erected to meet the demands of the rapidly expanding school. Pearson was succeeded by Ebenezer Pemberton, a polite and scholarly master, who devoted much attention to the manners of his pupils. When he left in 1793, he was followed in office by Mark Newman, in whose administration the Andover Theological Seminary was founded, largely through the efforts of Dr. Pearson. This seminary, which was opened September 28, 1808, was placed under the jurisdiction of the Board of Trustees of Phillips Academy, and remained in Andover almost exactly a century.

The fourth principal, John Adams, who replaced Newman in 1810, raised the prestige of the school, increased the attendance, and enlarged the faculty. He published the first catalogue and made the first revision of the curriculum; but his primary interest was in the moral welfare of the boys. The second Academy building was burned on January 28, 1818, and a new brick, colonial edifice, designed by the famous architect Bulfinch, was erected within a year; this "classic hall", described in Oliver Wendell Holmes's poem, The School Boy, is now in use as the Dining Hall. In 1830 the Teachers' Seminary, a new institution made possible by a bequest of His Honor, William Phillips (1750-1827) of Boston, was opened in a massive square structure, commonly known as the Stone Academy, built for that purpose. This Teachers' Seminary, combining the aims of a normal school and a scientific school, was the second of its kind in the United States. After twelve years of existence with only moderate success it was finally, in 1842, merged with Phillips Academy as the "English Department", a name which was changed in 1892 to a more nearly accurate title, "Scientific Department".

In 1832 John Adams resigned at the age of sixty and Osgood Johnson was elected principal. Unfortunately he died in 1837, of consumption, in his thirty-fifth year. During his administration the "Commons", dormitories known to so many generations of Phillips boys, were built under the direction of Samuel Farrar, Esq., Treasurer of the Trustees.

Samuel H. Taylor, whose reign of thirty-four years was the longest in the school history, became principal in 1837. The word "reign" is used advisedly, for he was an autocrat, severe in his methods of government and prompt to punish offenders. "Uncle Sam", as he was familiarly called, was a relentless drill-master in the classics and gained a well-deserved reputation for thoroughness and accuracy. He was a strong and vigorous personality, who made an enduring impression on all who came under his influence. In 1864 the Stone Academy was destroyed by fire, and was replaced by the Main Building which was twice reconstructed. In 1865 Mr. George Peabody gave $25,000 to found the Peabody Instructorship in Natural Sciences, first filled by the late William B. Graves. Dr. Taylor on January 29, 1871, dropped dead in the vestibule of the Main Building. For the next two years the office of principal was held by Frederic W. Tilton, who, however, could do little in that short period.

The modern era of development began in 1873 with the arrival of Cecil F. P. Bancroft, who was principal until his death in 1901. Dr. Bancroft, working in a quiet, tactful, but persistent way, brought about many needed reforms. He first made a complete revision of the curriculum, thus enabling the school to meet the entrance requirements of any college, classical or scientific, and greatly broadening the range of studies. In his effort to gather about himself a larger and more efficient body of teachers he was entirely successful. The attendance also increased: in 1873 there were 252 pupils; in 1895 this had grown to 524, and after 1892 it never again dropped below 400. Dr. Bancroft also strove to secure additions to the plant, especially by providing dormitories in which boys could live under the direct supervision of instructors. He was aided in this aim by Melville C. Day of the class of 1858, who, in 1892, gave $8000 for a new dormitory, Taylor Cottage (now Pemberton Cottage), which was the beginning of the present extensive system of houses for students. Mr. Day continued his gifts, providing in all six dormitories which to-day furnish rooms for 168 boys, besides the teachers in charge. At his death in 1913 Mr. Day made Phillips Academy his residuary legatee. His gifts to the school amount in all to over $800,000.

On June 5 and 6, 1878, Phillips Academy celebrated its centennial anniversary with elaborate exercises, including an historical paper by Rev. William E. Park, an oration by Rev. Alexander McKenzie, a poem by Oliver Wendell Holmes, and speeches by Phillips Brooks, Josiah Quincy, Gustavus V. Fox, and other distinguished men associated with the school. At this time a fund of $100,000 was raised, partly for the endowment of a principalship and a professorship in Latin.

Dr. Bancroft's period was marked by both progress and expansion. He was a man of clear vision and foresight, firm will, and shrewd discrimination, who had the good sense to be patient until circumstances were favorable for pressing his projects. His policy has been maintained by his successor, Alfred E. Stearns, during whose administration Phillips Academy has grown in material equipment, in numbers, and in efficiency. In 1908, when Andover Theological Seminary was moved to Cambridge, the Trustees acquired the entire Seminary plant on Andover Hill. In 1901 two generous benefactors of the school, Mr. R. Singleton Peabody of the class of 1857, and his wife, Margaret Peabody, established the Archaeological Department and provided for it a large endowment for instruction, publication, and research, and for the care and housing of collections in American Archaeology.

The official installation of Principal Stearns into office happily coincided with the celebration of the 125th anniversary of the founding of the school, held on June 16, 1903.

On the same day Brothers' Field was dedicated with an address from the principal donor, Mr. George B. Knapp.

In the World War, Phillips Academy played a distinguished part. Its Ambulance Unit, which sailed overseas in April 1917, was the first to be sent from any American school. Of its alumni 2278 were enrolled in the military or naval service of the United States or its Allies; and eighty-seven gave their lives in the cause of their country. A Memorial Bell Tower, erected on Andover Hill, commemorates their loyalty and sacrifice.

For the past year the Trustees of Phillips Academy have been engaged in the task of securing ten Teachers' Foundations amounting to $160,000 each in order that suitable salaries may be paid to the ablest teachers and the services of the best men available secured for the school. Two of these Foundations were announced at the close of the past school year and appointments on them made for the current year. They are designated THE ALFRED LAWRENCE RIPLEY FOUNDATION and THE JONATHAN FRENCH FOUNDATION. Three more have recently been completed and appointments on these made for the coming school year. These three are designated — THE EMILIE BELDEN COCHRAN FOUNDATION, THE MARTHA COCHRAN FOUNDATION, and THE ELIZABETH MILBANK ANDERSON FOUNDATION. Of the remaining five Foundations several are already assured and it is the expectation of the Trustees that all ten will soon have been completed. The Trustees expect that the establishment of these Foundations will be an incentive towards the improvement of teaching standards in the secondary schools throughout the United States.

Through the interest and generosity of an alumnus of the school the Academy has recently come into possession of a large and rapidly growing collection of American paintings representing the best work of the leading American artists. It is hoped that this collection will become in the not distant future one of the outstanding collections in this country of the works of the best American painters.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY is national in its representation and democratic in its life and spirit, and is "equally open to youth of requisite qualifications from every quarter". It aims to attract students of serious educational purposes and high moral standards.

The Academy is not a suitable school for boys who are idle, insubordinate, or lacking in self-control; nor is it adapted for those who require the constant supervision of teachers in the preparation of school work. Students who are found to be unable or unwilling to meet the requirements, and those whose influence is injurious, must be withdrawn from the school. As maturity is not always to be measured by years, the school has no specific regulation as to the age of the candidate. In general, however, it has been found that boys of fourteen are able to meet the responsibilities of life in the Academy.

The school provides accommodations and surroundings for its students which enable them to pass by gradual and natural stages from the paternalism of home life to the freedom that awaits them in college. Williams Hall, with its close supervision, special hours, and home life, offers attractive and helpful surroundings to the young boy just leaving home for his school career. A natural and progressive development is provided for subsequent years in the houses and halls which are in charge of married instructors. The regulations which obtain in all dormitories are here in force, but there is in them the atmosphere of home. The later life of the dormitories is designed to develop a larger sense of responsibility and to prepare for the community life of college. Boys in the dormitories are under the supervision of instructors and are required to observe fully the regulations of the school. In the judgment of the school authorities the average boy will secure the best results intellectually and morally by following out this gradual change in residence.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION IN 1928

Some changes in the requirements for entrance in 1929 are contemplated. They will be announced in a pamphlet which will be published in August 1928.

The requirements for admission to Phillips Academy consist in evidence of good character and of a satisfactory school record. The Academy being unable to receive all who apply for admission, even when they can meet its minimum requirements, is obliged to discriminate among the applicants on the basis of their school records. It asks each candidate for admission to take certain specified examinations, in part to enable it to discriminate fairly among the applicants, but chiefly to enable it to properly classify those who are admitted. The school record already made by an applicant — interpreted to some extent by these examinations — determines largely the Academy's decision on each applicant.

Boys who plan to enter the Academy are strongly advised to come for as much of the full course as possible. Only a small number can be received in the Senior Class and a slightly larger number in the Upper Middle Class. It is much easier, as well as more profitable, to enter a lower class at the appropriate age than to secure admission to a higher class later.

Students in the Academy arrange their work in accordance with the Course of Study as outlined on pages 51-53. This outline exhibits the work which is done each year by a student who is neither behind nor ahead of his class in any subject. It is not required that all the studies of the student shall be in the class in which he is rated; he is permitted to take individual subjects below or above that class, if his preparation in the prerequisites of those subjects justifies such action. But a student ordinarily is not permitted to take courses in one class to the exclusion of uncompleted courses in a lower class except in subjects continuing through successive years.

Applicants for admission to any of the three lower classes are asked to take entrance examinations set by the Academy, or by the College Entrance Examination Board, on the work of such courses in its curriculum as they have completed. Each candidate should take the examinations for which his previous work fits him, irrespective of the class groups in which the subjects are listed below.

Junior Class To enter as a normal Junior (first-year class) a candidate must have completed an approved grammar school course. He must pass satisfactorily examinations (1) in the following topics of Arithmetic: common and decimal fractions, denominate numbers, percentage, interest, and square root, and (2) in such essentials of formal English grammar as are treated in Kittredge and Farley's Concise English Grammar (Ginn & Co.). The examination in English grammar will be combined with a test in spelling and composition. It is strongly recommended that candidates for the Junior Class become familiar with the declensions and conjugations of either Latin or French or German before entrance to the Academy.

Lower Middle Class For those who wish to enter as normal Lower Middlers the Academy sets papers on the work done in its Junior year as outlined on page 51. These examinations cover
one year's work in Algebra, as described on page 60,
one year's work in English, as described on page 58,
one year's work in Latin, as described on page 54,
one year's work in French or German, as described on pages 55-56.

Upper Middle Class Those who wish to enter as normal Upper Middlers should take the following examinations which cover the work of the Academy's first two years, as outlined on page 51:

- (1) an examination set by the Academy on two years' work in English, described on page 58;
- (2) the College Board's French Cp. 2 or German Cp. 2 examination, which covers two years' work, described on pages 55-57;
- (3) the College Board's *Latin Cp. 2 examination, which covers two years' work in Latin, described on pages 54-55;
- (4) in courses B and C, the College Board's Mathematics A examination, which covers two years' work in Algebra, described on page 60; or in course A, examinations set by the Academy on one year's work in †Algebra, described on page 60, and one year's work in German or Greek, described on pages 56 and 54.

The Academy will accept credits already established by examination at the college for which the candidate is preparing. Incoming boys, who have completed a subject which they do not wish to continue, should take the corresponding college entrance examination.

Senior Class Candidates for admission to the Senior Class should obtain college entrance credits which cover the work of the Academy's three lower years (see pages 51-52) or its equivalent. The credits should ordinarily be obtained by means of the preliminary examinations of the College Entrance Examination Board. If a candidate is preparing for a college that admits on the certificate plans, credits established at that institution by certificate may be accepted by the Academy, but only if they are based on distinctly superior work. In accepting applicants, preference must often be given to candidates whose credits are established by examination.

*The Academy also sets an examination covering two years' work in Latin, which may be taken in place of the College Board's Latin Cp. 2 paper by those who are to continue the study of Latin in the Academy.

†The College Board's Mathematics AI paper may be substituted for this examination.

The Academy occasionally admits to its Senior Class candidates for admission to college by the so-called "new plan". No candidate will be accepted on this basis unless he has completed an approved equivalent of the three lower years in the Academy, and has made an especially good record in scholarship. He must pass entrance examinations in those subjects already studied which he will continue.

Students are not admitted to the Senior Class later than the beginning of the winter term.

Classification Candidates who are admitted to the Academy and secure credits in the ways indicated in the preceding paragraphs are rated as

 Juniors, if credited with fewer than 11 hours of the Academy's courses;

 Lower Middlers, if credited with 11 to 28 hours;

 Upper Middlers, if credited with 29 to 45 hours;

 Seniors, if credited with 46 hours.

Procedure in applying In making application for admission to the Academy the form in the back of this catalogue should be used. It should be filled out carefully and completely and forwarded to the Headmaster of the Academy. Testimonial letters may either accompany it or be sent later.

Certificates of standing in schools formerly attended are required. At the close of the school year, in June, the Academy sends to these institutions for complete official records of the candidates' work.

Each candidate should take in June such examinations as the requirements outlined on pages 19-20 demand. Candidates should not count on qualifying by means of September examinations without definite assurance from the school authorities of the possibility of their admission in this way. The pressure for admission in recent years makes such procedure difficult. Those who take college examinations or secure certificate credits at college should forward official returns to the Academy as soon as they are received.

Entrance	Phillips Academy entrance examinations for
Examinations	candidates for the Junior, Lower Middle, and
Dates and	Upper Middle classes, will be held on Tuesday
Places	and Wednesday, June 19 and 20, 1928. The schedule of hours is announced in May. The examinations will be given in

Andover: Phillips Academy, Graves Hall.

Chicago: Wiebaldt Hall of Commerce, 339 East Chicago Avenue.

New York: Room 309, School of Business Building, Columbia University.

Examinations will be held in other cities, in June only, if the number of candidates in any locality is sufficient.

For the Academy's examinations in Andover on these regular dates no fee is charged. For its examinations outside of Andover a fee of $5.00 is required; but, if College Board examinations are taken also, the fee for the Academy's examinations is $2.00.

The examinations of the College Entrance Examination Board are held each June in a large number of cities in the United States and abroad. They come in 1928 during the week of June 18-23. Application to take these examinations should be made early in May to the Secretary of the College Entrance Examination Board, 431 West 117th Street, New York City.

The fee, which is $10.00 for the year 1928, should accompany this application.

On Tuesday, September 18, 1928, the Academy examinations will be held at 9.30 A.M., in Andover only, according to a schedule of rooms and hours announced at that time.

A pamphlet containing the Academy's 1927 examination papers will be supplied upon request. College Board examinations of former years are published by Ginn & Company.

Special Students No special students, except foreigners, are received in the Junior or Lower Middle year, and the Academy makes no provision for special students who are not candidates for graduation or for entrance to college or scientific school.

Special courses may be arranged in the Upper Middle and Senior years, only at the written request of parents and by special Faculty vote.

Diploma Requirements To receive the diploma of the Academy a student must have secured passing grades:

- (a) in all required subjects in the course selected,
 - (b) in subjects which amount to at least 69 hours of the curriculum,
 - (c) in a sufficient number of the subjects recognized by the College Entrance Examination Board to complete 15 units,
- and (d) in all subjects pursued in the Senior year.

Examinations and Promotions Written examinations are held in each study at least once a term, but the term grading is based on the results of both written examinations and daily work. A student who is guilty of dishonesty in an examination may be suspended or dismissed. At the close of each term, a report of the student's scholarship and attitude towards his work is sent to his parents or guardian. Mid-term reports are also sent for all students whose work is below the passing grade, 60%, and for those who obtain grades of 80% and above.

Class Officers Each student is assigned to the special care of a member of the faculty who is known as his Class Officer. This officer arranges the schedule of studies for each member of the class under his charge, and recommends such subsequent changes as seem desirable.

Division Officers The entire school is divided into groups of approximately twenty students each. Each group is assigned to the special charge of an instructor whose duty it is to familiarize himself with the previous history and present standing of the several members, and to serve as their counselor.

10.30 A.M. and 5.15 P.M. Sunday chapel services.

Wednesday and Saturday afternoons are half-holidays.

Study Hours Students are expected to occupy themselves with their studies or other school work during all study hours.

Absences Every absence of the student from recitation, morning chapel, Sunday service, or from his room during study hours, must be accounted for. The accumulation of eight unexcused absences involves suspension from school. In all cases of illness, notice must be sent at once to the Medical Adviser, who investigates daily all cases reported.

Special importance is attached to meeting all appointments immediately preceding and following vacation and recess periods. A failure to meet such appointments must be regarded as a very serious offence and may necessitate withdrawal from school.

Out-of-Town Excuses

All out-of-town excuses must be obtained from the Headmaster's office. On half-holidays and on special holidays such excuses are granted occasionally to those whose school standing is good. The student who goes out of town without permission forfeits his connection with the school.

Religious Exercises

Students are required to be present at morning chapel. The Sunday services in the Chapel and the religious work of the school are conducted in connection with the Academy Church, an undenominational organization. Distinguished clergymen are frequently invited to preach to the school. Voluntary communion services are held in the Chapel during the year. The Society of Inquiry (the Christian Association of the school) holds voluntary meetings, which are often addressed by an invited speaker.

Upon written request from their parents, students may be excused to attend the morning services of the Protestant Episcopal, Baptist, or Roman Catholic churches.

EXPENSES

Parents can estimate approximately the expenses of their sons at the Academy, and they are particularly requested not to furnish money beyond what is necessary for modest expenditures. Pupils who are supplied with much spending money, or who are allowed to incur debts, often accomplish little in their studies, and are liable to form habits which require their withdrawal from the school. Parents are earnestly requested to refuse permission to their sons to contract debts.

The schedules below indicate the range of the school charges.

Table 1 indicates the range of the Academy's regular charges. Table 2 shows an average charge. Table 3 indicates the charges to scholarship students.

Tuition	$350.00	$350.00	$0 to 350.00

Tuition Bills The tuition for the year is $350.00 divided as follows: three-fifths, or $210.00, payable October 1; two-fifths, or $140.00, payable on March 1. Each student is required to make a deposit of $25.00 to cover breakage and other incidental obligations which may be incurred during the school year. This deposit is payable on October 1 and is billed with other items due on that date. The balance remaining after such charges have been deducted will be returned, but not before the close of the fiscal year, June 30.

An additional charge of $16.50 is made to members of the Senior class to cover the expenses of Commencement. A rebate of $1.50 from this charge is made if the student fails to secure his diploma. All bills are mailed to parents or guardians, but may be paid in person by the students. Classroom privileges will be denied to students whose bills are not settled on or before the dates mentioned above. As instructors must be engaged and other provisions for education must be made by the school authorities for the entire year in advance, tuition charges will not be refunded when students are suspended, dismissed, or withdrawn during the school year. Checks should be drawn in favor of the Trustees of Phillips Academy.

Infirmary Service A charge of five dollars a day to each student is made for infirmary service which includes room and board. Extra charges are made for nurses employed in addition to the regular nursing staff. Local physicians render their bills for services directly to parents or guardians.

*For explanation of the items in Table 3 see pages 26 and 35.

Athletic Fee

A charge of $25.00 is made for the maintenance of athletics, but for scholarship boys this charge is $15.00 a year which may be paid wholly or in part by the performance of special work assigned by the Bureau of Self-Support. Three-fifths of the total amount of this charge is payable October 1st, and two-fifths on March 1st. Students are not asked to contribute further to the financial support of the various school teams.

Room Rents

Payments for student rooms in the school buildings are required as follows: three-fifths of the entire yearly rental on or before October 1; the remaining two-fifths on March 1. A deposit of $25.00 is required when the contract for the room assigned is filed. This deposit will be credited to the first regular school bill. When a room is assigned to a student, his parent or guardian agrees by contract to pay the entire rental of the room up to the close of the current school year, whether the student continues a member of the Academy or not. The right is reserved by the Trustees to transfer boys from room to room in the school buildings whenever changes seem desirable; such changes, however, do not relieve the original occupants from the obligation of meeting the entire year's rent, unless newcomers are secured to fill the vacancies.

Each room is furnished with a rug, desk, chiffonier, two chairs, bed, mattress, pillow, sheets, pillow cases, and one pair of blankets. Towels are not included.

*Room
Scholarships*

About twenty "room scholarships" amounting to approximately $50.00 each are available for deserving boys. These scholarships will be credited to the regular room charges on the recipients' term bills and will be awarded by the Headmaster to boys whose circumstances compel them to keep their expenses at a low average.

Bulfinch Hall

The equipment of the Academy includes a well-appointed dining hall which accommodates two hundred and fifty boys. A fixed charge, payable one term in advance, is made to cover light, heat, service, and food such as soups, vegetables, cereals, bread, butter, milk, coffee, etc. This charge is subject to change at the beginning of any school term. It was $5.50 a week during the year 1927-1928. Meats, fish, eggs, and desserts are served a la carte at cost and are charged against meal-tickets which are sold at $5.00 each. The average cost has been about $8.75 a week.

Private Houses

About twelve private houses in the vicinity of the Academy, under license from the Trustees, provide lodgings for students, and no student may occupy any house not thus licensed by the school. Some of the houses provide both rooms and board, and some furnish board for students rooming in neighboring houses. The price of table board is $10.00 and $12.00 a week. These charges are subject to change at the beginning of any school term upon the approval of the Trustees. Students rooming in private families may, if they desire, board at Bulfinch Hall. The price of furnished rooms, including ordinary service, is from $5.00 to $7.50 a week.

Engagements for table board may, on suitable notice, be terminated at the close of any term. Arrangements and payments for room and board in private houses must be made with those in charge of the houses.

BUILDINGS AND EQUIPMENT

Williams Hall Through the generosity of Prof. Edward H. Williams, Jr., of the class of 1868, the school in 1910 secured possession of a valuable piece of property for the housing and care of younger boys. The property, comprising several acres, adjoins the Old Campus and is within a short distance of the other school buildings.

Williams Hall has attractive accommodations for forty-two boys. The rooms are spacious, light, and airy, and are heated with hot water and lighted with electricity. On the main floor is a common reading and recreation room. Table board is furnished in the building to all occupants of the house.

It is the aim of the Trustees to provide in this building surroundings as helpful as possible for the best development of young boys, and to this end they have placed it in charge of a married instructor. Boys whose work is below standard may be required to report at seven-thirty each evening, when they work under supervision and are free to consult the resident instructor and his assistants in regard to their studies.

Williams Hall supplies a stepping-stone between the natural restrictions of the home and the somewhat freer life of a large school. Although the boys who live here have all the advantages that Phillips Academy offers, they are under somewhat closer supervision than is customary throughout the rest of the school. For the school year 1928-1929 the charge for room and board in Williams Hall, not including the regular tuition charge, will be $750.00. A limited number of room scholarships are awarded annually in this hall. A special circular explaining in detail the equipment and arrangements of Williams Hall, and containing both interior and exterior views of this building, will be furnished on request.

Faculty Houses The school provides for dormitory purposes fifteen houses formerly occupied as private dwellings. These houses are suitable for younger boys, especially those who are members of the two lower classes. Each house is in charge of a resident instructor. The rooms are furnished, and the charges include heat, light, and care of the rooms.

The Abbot House provides accommodations for eighteen boys, the Blanchard House for eight, the Cheever House for twelve, the Churchill House for six, the Clement House for thirteen, the G. H. Eaton House for two, Farrar House for nine, the Hardy House for five, the Hayward House for six, the Park House for eight, the Pease House for nine, the Stott House for five, the Tower House for four, the Jewett Tucker House for seven, and the Woods House for five.

The America House provides accommodations for twelve students and the Berry House for six and table board can be secured in both houses.

Dormitories Through the generous gifts of Mr. Melville C. Day of the class of 1858, Mr. Warren F. Draper of the class of 1843, and a number of citizens of Andover, and by the purchase of the property formerly belonging to the Andover Theological Seminary, the Academy now possesses thoroughly modern dormitories providing at reasonable rates attractive accommodations for almost the entire student body. Below is given a brief description of these various buildings, and a list of the prices of rooms in each will be found on pages 27-28. With the exception of some of the Faculty Houses and Williams Hall these buildings are of brick. All are furnished, heated by steam, lighted by electricity, and equipped with shower-baths and the modern sanitary conveniences. Most of the study rooms have open fireplaces. Each building is in charge of one or more resident instructors.

FOXCROFT HALL, erected in 1808, was entirely remodeled in 1912. It is divided by a fire wall into two separate entries and provides accommodations for seventeen boys in each entry.

BARTLET HALL was erected in 1820 and entirely rebuilt in 1915. This building also is divided by a fire wall into two separate entries, and contains both double and single suites, accommodating twenty-one boys in each entry.

PEMBERTON COTTAGE, erected in 1891, contains five double suites.

ANDOVER COTTAGE, erected in 1892, contains four double suites, one single suite, and two single rooms.

DRAPER COTTAGE, erected in 1892, contains five double suites.

EATON COTTAGE, erected in 1892, contains four double suites and two single suites.

BANCROFT HALL, erected in 1900, contains sixteen double suites. The building is divided by fire walls into three separate entries, each entry accommodating ten boys.

DAY HALL, erected in 1911, contains twelve double suites, two single suites, and twenty single rooms. The building is divided by a fire wall into two separate entries, each entry accommodating twenty-three boys.

BISHOP HALL, erected in 1911, is similar in its arrangement and appointments to Day Hall and accommodates the same number of boys.

ADAMS HALL, erected in 1912, is divided into two separate entries, each of which, like the Faculty Houses, is in charge of a married instructor. Each entry accommodates twenty boys.

TAYLOR HALL, erected in 1913, accommodates twenty boys in each of its two entries and is in charge of two married instructors.

JOHNSON HALL, erected in 1922, is similar in its arrangement and appointments to Taylor Hall and accommodates the same number of boys.

(For prices of rooms see pages 27-28.)

Graves Hall Graves Hall, devoted to Science, contains in addition to the well-equipped laboratories for Physics, Chemistry, and Biology, two recitation rooms, a lecture room, and a drafting room.

Samuel F. B. Morse Hall Beginning with the next school year — September 1928 — the work in Physics, Chemistry, Biology and Mechanical Drawing will be transferred to the new science building now nearing completion and named in honor of one of the Academy's most famous sons, Samuel F. B. Morse, inventor of the telegraph.

Pearson Hall Pearson Hall, erected in 1817 and remodeled in 1878, and again in 1922, is used for recitation purposes. It contains four large recitation rooms and three conference rooms.

Archaeology Building This building contains rooms for the collections of the Department of Archaeology and offices for the Directors.

Peabody House Peabody House bears the name of the founders of the Archaeological department, with the funds of which it was erected. The building carries out the expressed wishes of Mr. and Mrs. Peabody that their benefaction should promote the social interests of the student body as well as further the study of American Archaeology. Quarters are provided for the Phillips Union and include a well appointed grill, a large and attractive reading room, and a memorial room used as an assembly hall for receptions, lectures, and meetings of the various organizations of the school.

Library Brechin Hall is used for library purposes. A large hall on the upper floor is devoted to the library of about twenty thousand volumes, which is in charge of trained librarians and is open daily for the use of students.

Samuel Phillips Hall This addition to the school plant was completed in 1924. The building, which contains twenty-six recitation rooms and two examination rooms and is thoroughly modern in every respect, was made possible through the activity and interest of the alumni of the school who generously provided the funds required for its erection.

George Washington Hall George Washington Hall, was opened for occupancy in September, 1926. The building, contains a large auditorium, the Martha Cochran Memorial Organ, a portrait of President Washington by Gilbert Stuart, and the offices of administration, and is the generous gift of an alumnus commemorating the historic connection of President Washington with the school and his friendship with the founder.

Swimming Pool The swimming pool, adjoining the gymnasium, is seventy-five feet long and thirty feet wide,

The Isham Infirmary The Academy maintains an infirmary, the generous gift of Miss Flora E. Isham, whose name it bears. The infirmary was completed in 1912, is thoroughly modern in all its appointments, and was carefully planned under the direction of experts in hospital construction. In addition to the general wards, it contains single rooms for those requiring special treatment, and an operating room. The contagious wards are completely separated from the ordinary wards, and at each end of the building there is a large sun parlor entirely encased in glass. Boys who are sufficiently indisposed to be unable to attend classes are sent to the infirmary for proper care. Except when special arrangements have been made in advance by parents or guardians, the following regulations will be observed in the conduct of the infirmary. Patients at the infirmary requiring medical attention shall call in local physicians approved by the school authorities. In cases requiring the attendance of specialists, the best men available in Boston will be called in consultation. In special emergencies, when operations seem necessary and parents cannot be consulted in advance, the Headmaster of the school assumes responsibility for authorizing such operations. The Medical Adviser may at any time examine and report upon individual cases.

Athletic Grounds Brothers' Field, comprising sixty acres, is in close proximity to the gymnasium and contains ample facilities for baseball, football, and track athletics. The Academy possesses other extensive grounds for various athletic sports, including baseball, football, soccer, and tennis.

Bulletin The Bulletin, a magazine devoted to the interests and history of the school and its alumni, is published five times a year and sent to all former members of Phillips Academy whose addresses are known.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Scholarship Aid The sums granted as scholarships vary according to the excellence of the boys in their studies, a student of the highest rank receiving a sum equivalent to the full tuition fee and room rent. Every new applicant for a scholarship must pay on entering the Academy the sum of $50 toward his tuition. This sum is not remitted. At the close of each term scholarships are adjusted in accordance with the student's record in his studies during that term. Boys of limited means who possess scholarly ability and ambition are encouraged to apply for admission, and, if admitted, may be reasonably sure of financial assistance.

Special Provision for Scholarship Boys Furnished rooms are reserved in various dormitories for boys who are obliged to keep their expenses within the lowest possible limits. A rental of $40 to $50 is charged each occupant of these rooms. Choice of room is determined by the scholarship rank of the applicant.

Self-Support Ample opportunities are afforded by the Academy to scholarship boys to earn a portion of their school charges. Service in Bulfinch Hall and boarding houses enables them to earn their board. Several agencies are assigned by the Bureau of Self-Support and a number of students may earn a portion of the school charges by work in connection with the school offices. An energetic boy may find various other chances for remunerative work.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY

Phillips Academy is an endowed academy, controlled by a Board of Trustees and administered under the written constitution of its founders. By the terms of this Constitution, or Deed of Gift, signed April 21, 1778, Esquire Samuel Phillips (1715-1790) of North Andover and his brother, John Phillips (1719-1795) of Exeter, New Hampshire, set aside tracts of about 141 acres on Andover Hill and 200 acres in Jaffrey, New Hampshire, together with the sum of one thousand six hundred fourteen pounds, as a foundation for a school. This document, outlining the broad principles upon which the proposed institution was to be conducted, was composed by Esquire Phillips's son, Samuel Phillips, Jr. (1752-1802), with the advice and aid of his friend, Eliphalet Pearson (1752-1826). Samuel Phillips, Jr., was afterwards Judge of the Massachusetts Court of Common Pleas, President of the Senate, and Lieutenant-Governor of the Commonwealth.

Although Judge Phillips derived many of his educational theories from the writings of John Locke and from the English nonconformist schools with the scheme of which he was familiar, his plan was nevertheless highly original. The purpose of the academy was specifically stated in the following words: —

“And, in order to prevent the smallest subversion of the true intent of this Foundation, it is again declared, that the first and principal object of this Institution is the promotion of true Piety and Virtue; the second, instruction in English, Latin, and Greek languages, together with Writing, Arithmetic, Music, and the Art of Speaking; the third, practical Geometry, Logic, and Geography; and the fourth, such other of the liberal Arts and Sciences, or Languages, as opportunity and ability may hereafter admit, and as the Trustees shall direct.”

The chief emphasis was laid on the development of character, and the Master was to take pains "to regulate the tempers, to enlarge the minds, and form the Morals of the Youth committed to his care". It was stipulated, also, that the school "shall be ever equally open to youth, of requisite qualifications, from every quarter". The government was placed in the hands of a self-perpetuating Board of Trustees. In order to prevent sectarianism and provincialism, it was specified that a majority of the members should be laymen, and that more than half must not be residents of the town in which the academy is located. The Trustees were hampered by no vexatious or trivial restrictions, but were given sole authority over the institution. By the provisions of the Act of Incorporation, passed by the General Court, October 4, 1780, their number was fixed at never more than thirteen or less than seven, and they were permitted to possess real estate with an income not exceeding five hundred pounds and personal property with an income not greater than two thousand pounds.

The first meeting of the Board of Trustees was held on Tuesday, April 28, 1778. Of the twelve original members, four were members of the Phillips family: Esquire Samuel Phillips, John Phillips, William Phillips of Boston, and Samuel Phillips, Jr. These men became in turn the first four presidents of the Board. The other members, all relatives or close friends of the Phillips family, were John Lowell and Oliver Wendell of Boston, Rev. Josiah Stearns of Epping, Rev. Elias Smith of Middleton, Rev. William Symmes of North Andover, and Rev. Jonathan French, Nehemiah Abbot, Esq., and Eliphalet Pearson of Andover.

Phillips School, as it was called until its incorporation, was opened for instruction April 30, 1778, in a remodeled carpenter's shop on Andover Hill, thirteen pupils being present; before the year was over, fifty-two had registered. The first principal was Eliphalet Pearson, a stimulating teacher and stern discipli-narian, who established high standards of instruction and supervision. Shortly before he resigned in 1786 to become a professor at Harvard, a new wooden building was erected to meet the demands of the rapidly expanding school. Pearson was succeeded by Ebenezer Pemberton, a polite and scholarly master, who devoted much attention to the manners of his pupils. When he left in 1793, he was followed in office by Mark Newman, in whose administration the Andover Theological Seminary was founded, largely through the efforts of Dr. Pearson. This seminary, which was opened September 28, 1808, was placed under the jurisdiction of the Board of Trustees of Phillips Academy, and remained in Andover almost exactly a century.

The fourth principal, John Adams, who replaced Newman in 1810, raised the prestige of the school, increased the attendance, and enlarged the faculty. He published the first catalogue and made the first revision of the curriculum; but his primary interest was in the moral welfare of the boys. The second Academy building was burned on January 28, 1818, and a new brick, colonial edifice, designed by the famous architect Bulfinch, was erected within a year; this "classic hall", described in Oliver Wendell Holmes's poem, The School Boy, is now in use as the Dining Hall. In 1830 the Teachers' Seminary, a new institution made possible by a bequest of His Honor, William Phillips (1750-1827) of Boston, was opened in a massive square structure, commonly known as the Stone Academy, built for that purpose. This Teachers' Seminary, combining the aims of a normal school and a scientific school, was the second of its kind in the United States. After twelve years of existence with only moderate success it was finally, in 1842, merged with Phillips Academy as the "English Department", a name which was changed in 1892 to a more nearly accurate title, "Scientific Department".

In 1832 John Adams resigned at the age of sixty and Osgood Johnson was elected principal. Unfortunately he died in 1837, of consumption, in his thirty-fifth year. During his administration the "Commons", dormitories known to so many generations of Phillips boys, were built under the direction of Samuel Farrar, Esq., Treasurer of the Trustees.

Samuel H. Taylor, whose reign of thirty-four years was the longest in the school history, became principal in 1837. The word "reign" is used advisedly, for he was an autocrat, severe in his methods of government and prompt to punish offenders. "Uncle Sam", as he was familiarly called, was a relentless drill-master in the classics and gained a well-deserved reputation for thoroughness and accuracy. He was a strong and vigorous personality, who made an enduring impression on all who came under his influence. In 1864 the Stone Academy was destroyed by fire, and was replaced by the Main Building which was twice reconstructed. In 1865 Mr. George Peabody gave $25,000 to found the Peabody Instructorship in Natural Sciences, first filled by the late William B. Graves. Dr. Taylor on January 29, 1871, dropped dead in the vestibule of the Main Building. For the next two years the office of principal was held by Frederic W. Tilton, who, however, could do little in that short period.

The modern era of development began in 1873 with the arrival of Cecil F. P. Bancroft, who was principal until his death in 1901. Dr. Bancroft, working in a quiet, tactful, but persistent way, brought about many needed reforms. He first made a complete revision of the curriculum, thus enabling the school to meet the entrance requirements of any college, classical or scientific, and greatly broadening the range of studies. In his effort to gather about himself a larger and more efficient body of teachers he was entirely successful. The attendance also increased: in 1873 there were 252 pupils; in 1895 this had grown to 524, and after 1892 it never again dropped below 400. Dr. Bancroft also strove to secure additions to the plant, especially by providing dormitories in which boys could live under the direct supervision of instructors.

On June 5 and 6, 1878, Phillips Academy celebrated its centennial anniversary with elaborate exercises, including an historical paper by Rev. William E. Park, an oration by Rev. Alexander McKenzie, a poem by Oliver Wendell Holmes, and speeches by Phillips Brooks, Josiah Quincy, Gustavus V. Fox, and other distinguished men associated with the school. At this time a fund of $100,000 was raised, partly for the endowment of a principalship and a professorship in Latin.

Dr. Bancroft's period was marked by both progress and expansion. He was a man of clear vision and foresight, firm will, shrewd discrimination, and patient until circumstances were favorable for pressing his projects. In 1901 two generous benefactors of the school, Mr. R. Singleton Peabody of the class of 1857, and his wife, Margaret Peabody, established the Archaeological Department and provided for it a large endowment for instruction, publication, and research, and for the care and housing of collections in American Archaeology.

In the World War, the Ambulance Unit of Phillips Academy, which sailed overseas in April 1917, was the first to be sent from any American school. Of the alumni 2278 were enrolled in the military or naval service of the United States or its Allies; and eighty-seven gave their lives in the cause of their country. A Memorial Bell Tower, erected on Andover Hill, commemorates their loyalty and sacrifice.

On May 18 and 19, 1928 the Academy celebrated its one-hundred-fiftieth anniversary. On the first day addresses were made by Headmaster Stearns; James Rowland Angell, President of Yale University; John Grier Hibben, President of Princeton University; Samuel Wesley Stratton, President of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. A poem, written for the occasion, was read by Walter Prichard Eaton, and an historical address was given by Arthur Stanley Pease, President of Amherst College. These addresses were followed by an organ recital on the Martha Cochran Memorial Organ, class reunion dinners, a reception and dinner for out of town guests, a torch-light parade and pageant, and by group singing on the steps of Samuel Phillips Hall.

On the second day of the celebration, after an Academic Procession of alumni and invited guests, addresses were made by Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States; Alvan T. Fuller, Governor of Massachusetts; James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor in the President's Cabinet; William Phillips, United States Minister to Canada; Huntley N. Spaulding, Governor of New Hampshire; A. Lawrence Lowell, President of Harvard College; Lewis Perry, Principal of Phillips Exeter Academy; Frederick Blagden Malim, Master of Wellington College, England; and Headmaster Stearns.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY is national in its representation and democratic in its life and spirit. It aims to attract students of serious educational purposes and high moral standards.

The Academy is not a suitable school for boys who are idle, insubordinate, or lacking in self-control; nor is it adapted for those who require the constant supervision of teachers in the preparation of school work. Students who are found to be unable or unwilling to meet the requirements, and those whose influence is injurious, must be withdrawn from the school. As maturity is not always to be measured by years, the school has no specific regulation as to the age of the candidate. In general, however, it has been found that boys of fourteen are able to meet the responsibilities of life in the Academy.

The school provides accommodations and surroundings for its students which enable them to pass by gradual and natural stages from the paternalism of home life to the freedom that awaits them in college. Williams Hall, with its close supervision, special hours, and home life, offers attractive and helpful surroundings to the young boy just leaving home for his school career. A natural and progressive development is provided for subsequent years in the houses and halls which are in charge of married instructors. The later life of the dormitories is designed to develop a larger sense of responsibility and to prepare for the community life of college. Boys in the dormitories are under the supervision of instructors and are required to observe fully the regulations of the school. In the judgment of the school authorities the average boy will secure the best results intellectually and morally by following out this gradual change in residence.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION IN 1929

The requirements for admission to Phillips Academy consist in evidence of good character and of a satisfactory school record. The Academy being unable to receive all who apply for admission, even when they can meet its minimum requirements, is obliged to discriminate among the applicants on the basis of their school records. Each candidate for admission will take certain specified examinations, in part to enable the school to discriminate fairly among the applicants, but chiefly to enable it to properly classify those who are admitted. The school record already made—interpreted to some extent by these examinations—determines largely the decision on each application.

Boys who plan to enter the Academy are strongly advised to enter as early in the course as possible. Only a small number can be received in the Senior Class and a slightly larger number in the Upper Middle Class. It is much easier, as well as more profitable, to enter a lower class at the appropriate age than to secure admission to a higher class later.

Students in the Academy arrange their work in accordance with the Course of Study as outlined on pages 51-53. This outline exhibits the work which is done each year by a student who is neither behind nor ahead of his class in any subject. It is not required that all the studies of the student shall be in the class in which he is rated; he is permitted to take individual subjects below or above that class, if his preparation in the prerequisites of those subjects justifies such action. But a student ordinarily is not permitted to take courses in one class to the exclusion of uncompleted courses in a lower class, except in subjects continuing through successive years.

The examinations ordinarily required for entrance to the different classes are specified below. Each candidate should take the examinations for which his previous work fits him, irrespective of the class groups in which the subjects are listed.

Class*

To enter in 1929 as a normal Junior (four years from college) a candidate must have completed an approved grammar school course. He must pass satisfactorily examinations (1) in the following topics of Arithmetic: common and decimal fractions, denominate numbers, percentage, interest, and square root, and (2) in such essentials of formal English grammar as are treated in Kittredge and Farley's Concise English Grammar (Ginn & Co.). The examination in English grammar will be combined with a test in spelling and composition.

In 1930 three examinations will be required for entrance to the Junior Class: (1) an examination in English as above, (2) an examination in Arithmetic and in Algebra through simultaneous linear equations, and (3) an examination in Latin. The examination in mathematics will be based on the topics of Arithmetic mentioned above and on the Mathematics III-B requirement of the Secondary Education Board. The Latin examination will cover the topics included in the Latin I requirement of the Secondary Education Board.

Sub-Junior Class

Many boys have completed satisfactorily the usual school work through the eighth grade but are not prepared to carry the full work of the Junior Class. Beginning in September, 1929, a five-year course will be provided for such boys. They will be examined in Arithmetic and in English. In 1929 the same examinations that are set for entrance to the Junior Class will be used for these boys.

Lower Middle Class

For those who wish to enter as normal Lower Middlers the Academy sets papers on the work done in its Junior year as outlined on page 51. These examinations cover

one year's work in Algebra, as described on page 60,
one year's work in English, as described on page 58,
one year's work in Latin, as described on page 54,
one year's work in French or German, as described on page 56.

Upper Middle Class

Those who wish to enter as normal Upper Middlers should take the following examinations which cover the work of the Junior and Lower Middle years, as outlined on page 51:

- (1) an examination set by the Academy on two years' work in English, described on page 58;
- (2) the College Board's French Cp. 2 or German Cp. 2 examination, which covers two years' work, described on pages 56-57;
- (3) the College Board's *Latin Cp. 2 examination, which covers two years' work in Latin, described on pages 54-55;
- (4) in courses B and C, the College Board's Mathematics A examination, which covers two years' work in Algebra, described on page 60; or, in course A, examinations set by the Academy on one year's work in †Algebra, described on page 60; and one year's work in German or Greek, described on pages 56 and 54.

The Academy will accept credits already established by examination at the college for which the candidate is preparing. Incoming boys, who have completed a subject which they do not wish to continue, should take the corresponding college entrance examination.

In place of its own examinations the Academy accepts certain examinations of the Secondary Education Board. The Board's Mathematics III-C, English III, and Latin I examinations will satisfy the 1930 requirements for entrance to the Junior Class. Its Mathematics IV, English IV, Latin III, and French III examinations are accepted for entrance to the Lower Middle Class.

* The Academy also sets an examination covering two years' work in Latin, which may be taken in place of the College Board's Latin Cp. 2 paper by those who are to continue the study of Latin in the Academy.

† The College Board's Mathematics AI paper may be substituted for this examination.

Senior Class Candidates for admission to the Senior Class must secure credits which cover the work of the Academy's three lower years (see pages 51-52) or its equivalent. These credits are obtained regularly by passing (1) an examination in *English set by the Academy, and (2) examinations of the College Entrance Examination Board in other subjects totaling 9 units. Credit for a single unit of French, German, Greek, or Latin may be obtained by one of the Academy's examinations.

Students are not admitted to the Senior Class later than the beginning of the winter term.

Classification Candidates who are admitted to the Academy and secure credits in the ways indicated in the preceding paragraphs are rated as

Juniors, if credited with fewer than 11 hours of the Academy's courses;

Lower Middlers, if credited with 11 to 28 hours;

Upper Middlers, if credited with 29 to 45 hours;

Seniors, if credited with 46 hours.

Procedure in applying In making application for admission to the Academy the form in the back of this catalogue should be used. It should be filled out carefully and completely and forwarded to the Headmaster of the Academy. Testimonial letters must either accompany it or be sent later.

Certificates of standing in schools formerly attended are required. At the close of the school year, in June, the Academy sends to these institutions for complete official records of the candidates' work.

* This examination admits to English 4. Boys who have completed college entrance requirements in English should take the College Entrance Examination Board's English Cp.

Each candidate should take in June such examinations as the requirements outlined on pages 19-20 demand. Candidates should not count on qualifying by means of September examinations without definite assurance from the school authorities of the possibility of their admission in this way. The pressure for admission in recent years makes such procedure difficult. Those who take college entrance examinations should forward official returns to the Academy as soon as they are received.

Present members of the school are allowed first choice in room reservations for the following year. Rooms are assigned to incoming students about August 1, and in the order in which their admission applications are filed. Space for indicating room preference is provided on the admission application form.

*Entrance Examinations
Dates and Places*

The Phillips Academy entrance examinations will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 18 and 19, 1929. The schedule of hours is announced in May. The examinations will be given in Andover: Phillips Academy, Samuel Phillips Hall.

Chicago: Room 103, Wiebaldt Hall of Commerce, 339 East Chicago Avenue.

New York: Room 309, School of Business Building, Columbia University.

Examinations will be held in other cities, in June only, if the number of candidates in any locality is sufficient.

For the Academy's examinations in Andover on these regular dates no fee is charged. For its examinations outside of Andover a fee of $5.00 is required; but, if College Board examinations are taken also, the fee for the Academy's examinations is $2.00.

The examinations of the College Entrance Examination Board are held each June in a large number of cities in the United States and abroad. They come in 1929 during the week of June 17-22. Application to take these examinations should be made early in May to the Secretary of the College Entrance Examination Board, 431 West 117th Street, New York City. The fee, which is $10.00 for the year 1929, should accompany this application.

On Tuesday, September 10, 1929, the Academy examinations will be held at 9.30 A.M., in Andover only, according to a schedule of rooms and hours announced at that time.

A pamphlet containing the Academy's 1928 examination papers will be supplied upon request. College Board examinations of former years are published by Ginn & Company.

Special Students No special students, except foreigners, are received in the Junior or Lower Middle year, and the Academy makes no provision for special students who are not candidates for graduation or for entrance to college or scientific school.

Special courses may be arranged in the Upper Middle and Senior years, only at the written request of parents and by special Faculty vote.

Diploma Requirements To receive the diploma of the Academy a student must have secured passing grades:

- (a) in all required subjects in the course selected,
- (b) in subjects which amount to at least 69 hours of the curriculum,
- (c) in a sufficient number of subjects, recognized by the College Entrance Examination Board, to complete the requirement of .15 units, and
- (d) in all subjects pursued in the Senior year.

Examinations and Promotions Written examinations are held in each study at least once a term, but the term grading is based on the results of both written examinations and daily work. A student who is guilty of dishonesty in an examination may be suspended or dismissed. At the close of each term, a report of the student's scholarship and attitude towards his work is sent to his parents or guardian. Mid-term reports are also sent for all students whose work is below the passing grade, 60%, and for those who obtain grades of 80% and above.

Class Officers Each student is assigned to the special care of a member of the faculty who is known as his Class Officer. This officer arranges the schedule of studies for each member of the class under his charge, and recommends such subsequent changes as seem desirable.

Division Officers The entire school is divided into groups of approximately twenty students each. Each group is assigned to the special charge of an instructor whose duty it is to familiarize himself with the previous history and present standing of the several members, and to serve as their counselor.

Study Hours	Students are expected to occupy themselves with their studies or other school work during all study hours.
Absences	Every absence of the student from recitation, morning chapel, Sunday service, or from his room during study hours, must be accounted for. The accumulation of eight unexcused absences involves suspension from school. In all cases of illness, notice must be sent at once to the Medical Adviser, who investigates daily all cases reported.

Special importance is attached to meeting all appointments immediately preceding and following vacation and recess periods. A failure to meet such appointments must be regarded as a very serious offence and may necessitate withdrawal from school.

*Out-of-Town
Excuses* All out-of-town excuses must be obtained from the Headmaster's office. On half-holidays and on special holidays such excuses are granted occasionally to those whose school standing is good. The student who goes out of town without permission forfeits his connection with the school.

*Religious
Exercises* Students are required to be present at morning chapel. The Sunday services in the Chapel and the religious work of the school are conducted by clergymen of various denominations, in connection with the Academy Church, an undenominational organization. Voluntary communion services are held in the Chapel during the year. The Society of Inquiry (the Christian Association of the school) holds voluntary meetings, which are often addressed by an invited speaker.

Upon written request from their parents, students may be excused to attend the morning services of the Protestant Episcopal, Baptist, or Roman Catholic churches.

EXPENSES

Parents can estimate approximately the expenses of their sons at the Academy, and they are particularly requested not to furnish money beyond what is necessary for modest expenditures. Pupils who are supplied with much spending money, or who are allowed to incur debts, often accomplish little in their studies, and are liable to form habits which require their withdrawal from the school. Parents are earnestly requested to refuse permission to their sons to contract debts.

Tuition Bills The tuition for the year is $350.00 divided as follows: three-fifths, or $210.00, payable October 1; two-fifths, or $140.00, payable on March 1. Each student is required to make a deposit of $25.00 to cover breakage and other incidental obligations which may be incurred during the school year. This deposit is payable on October 1 and is billed with other items due on that date. The balance remaining after such charges have been deducted will be returned, but not before the close of the fiscal year, June 30.

An additional charge of $16.50 is made to members of the Senior class to cover the expenses of Commencement. A rebate of $1.50 from this charge is made if the student fails to secure his diploma. All bills are mailed to parents or guardians, but may be paid in person by the students. Classroom privileges will be denied to students whose bills are not settled on or before the dates mentioned above. As instructors must be engaged and other provisions for education must be made by the school authorities for the entire year in advance, tuition charges will not be refunded when students are suspended, dismissed, or withdrawn during the school year. Checks should be drawn in favor of the Trustees of Phillips Academy.

Infirmary Service A charge of five dollars a day to each student is made for infirmary service which includes room and board. Extra charges are made for nurses employed in addition to the regular nursing staff. Local physicians render their bills for services directly to parents or guardians.

Athletic Fee A charge of $25.00 is made for the maintenance of athletics, but for scholarship boys this charge is $15.00 a year which may be paid wholly or in part by the performance of special work assigned by the Bureau of Self-Support. Three-fifths of the total amount of this charge is payable October 1st, and two-fifths on March 1st. Students are not asked to contribute further to the financial support of the various school teams.

Room Rents Payments for student rooms in the school buildings are required as follows: three-fifths of the entire yearly rental on or before October 1; the remaining two-fifths on March 1. A deposit of $25.00 is required when the contract for the room assigned is filed. This deposit will be credited to the first regular school bill. When a room is assigned to a student, his parent or guardian agrees by contract to pay the entire rental of the room up to the close of the current school year, whether the student continues a member of the Academy or not. The right is reserved by the Trustees to transfer boys from room to room in the school buildings whenever changes seem desirable; such changes, however, do not relieve the original occupants from the obligation of meeting the entire year's rent, unless newcomers are secured to fill the vacancies.

Each room is furnished with a rug, desk, chiffonier, two chairs, bed, mattress, pillow, sheets, pillow cases, and one pair of blankets. Towels are not included.

Room Scholarships About twenty "room scholarships" amounting to approximately $50.00 each are available for deserving boys. These scholarships will be credited to the regular room charges on the recipients' term bills and will be awarded by the Headmaster to boys whose circumstances compel them to keep their expenses at a low average.

Bulfinch Hall The equipment of the Academy includes a well-appointed dining hall which accommodates two hundred and fifty boys. A fixed charge, payable one term in advance, is made to cover light, heat, service, and food such as soups, vegetables, cereals, bread, butter, milk, coffee, etc. This charge is subject to change at the beginning of any school term. It was $5.50 a week during the year 1928-1929. Meats, fish, eggs, and desserts are served a la carte at cost and are charged against meal-tickets which are sold at $5.00 each. The average cost has been about $8.75 a week.

Private Houses About twelve private houses in the vicinity of the Academy, under license from the Trustees, provide lodgings for students, and no student may occupy any house not thus licensed by the school. Some of the houses provide both rooms and board, and some furnish board for students rooming in neighboring houses. The price of table board is $10.00 and $12.00 a week. These charges are subject to change at the beginning of any school term upon the approval of the Trustees. Students rooming in private families may, if they desire, board at Bulfinch Hall. The price of furnished rooms, including ordinary service, is from $5.00 to $7.50 a week.

BUILDINGS AND EQUIPMENT

Williams Hall Through the generosity of Prof. Edward H. Williams, Jr., of the class of 1868, the school
A Dormitory in 1910 secured possession of this dormitory for Young Boys for the housing and care of younger boys. The property adjoins the Old Campus and is within a short distance of the other school buildings.

It is the aim of the Trustees to provide in this building surroundings as helpful as possible for the best development of young boys, and to this end they have placed it in charge of a married instructor. Boys whose work is below standard may be required to report at seven-thirty each evening, when they work under supervision and are free to consult the resident instructor and his assistants in regard to their studies.

Williams Hall supplies a stepping-stone between the natural restrictions of the home and the somewhat freer life of a large school. Although the boys who live here have all the advantages that Phillips Academy offers, they are under somewhat closer supervision than is customary throughout the rest of the school. For the school year 1929-1930 the charge for room and board in Williams Hall, not including the regular tuition charge, will be $750.00.

Faculty Houses The school provides for dormitory purposes sixteen houses formerly occupied as private dwellings. These houses are suitable for younger boys, especially those who are members of the two lower classes. Each house is in charge of a resident instructor. The rooms are furnished, and the charges include heat, light, and care of the rooms.

The Abbot House provides accommodations for eighteen boys, the Blanchard House for seven, the Cheever House for twelve, the Churchill House for six, the Clement House for thirteen, the G. H. Eaton House for two, the Farrar House for nine, the Frost House for six, the Hardy House for five, the Hayward House for six, the Park House for eight, the Pease House for nine, the Sides House for five, the Tower House for four, the Jewett Tucker House for seven, and the Woods House for five.

The America House provides accommodations for twelve students and the Berry House for six. Table board can be secured in both of these houses.

Dormitories The Academy dormitories provide at reasonable rates attractive accommodations for almost the entire student body. Below is given a brief description of these various buildings, and a list of the prices of rooms in each will be found on pages 28-29. With the exception of some of the Faculty Houses and Williams Hall these buildings are of brick. All are furnished, heated by steam, lighted by electricity, and equipped with shower-baths and the modern sanitary conveniences. Most of the study rooms have open fireplaces. Each building is in charge of one or more resident instructors.

FOXCROFT HALL, erected in 1808, is divided by a fire wall into two separate entries and provides accommodations for seventeen boys in each entry.

BARTLET HALL, erected in 1820, is divided by a fire wall into two separate entries, and contains both double and single suites, accommodating twenty-one boys in each entry.

PEMBERTON COTTAGE, erected in 1891, contains five double suites.

ANDOVER COTTAGE, erected in 1892, contains four double suites, one single suite, and two single rooms.

DRAPER COTTAGE, erected in 1892, contains five double suites.

EATON COTTAGE, erected in 1892, contains four double suites and two single suites.

BANCROFT HALL, erected in 1900, contains sixteen double suites. The building is divided by fire walls into three separate entries, each entry accommodating ten boys.

DAY HALL, erected in 1911, contains twelve double suites, two single suites, and twenty single rooms. The building is divided by a fire wall into two separate entries, each entry accommodating twenty-three boys.

BISHOP HALL, erected in 1911, is similar in its arrangement and appointments to Day Hall and accommodates the same number of boys.

ADAMS HALL, erected in 1912, is divided into two separate entries, each of which, like the Faculty Houses, is in charge of a married instructor. Each entry accommodates twenty boys.

TAYLOR HALL, erected in 1913, accommodates twenty boys in each of its two entries and is in charge of two married instructors.

JOHNSON HALL, erected in 1922, is similar in its arrangement and appointments to Taylor Hall and accommodates the same number of boys.

PAUL REVERE HALL, erected in 1928, will provide accommodations for 26 boys in each of its two entries.

(For prices of rooms see pages 28-29.)

Pearson Hall Pearson Hall, erected in 1817 and remodeled in 1878, and again in 1922, is used for recitation purposes. It contains four large recitation rooms and three conference rooms.

Archaeology Building This building contains rooms for the collections of the Department of Archaeology and offices for the Directors.

Peabody House Peabody House bears the name of the founders of the Archaeological department, with the funds of which it was erected. Quarters are provided for the Phillips Union and include a well appointed grill, a large and attractive reading room, and a memorial room used as an assembly hall for receptions, lectures, and meetings of the various organizations of the school.

Library Brechin Hall is used for library purposes. A large hall on the upper floor is devoted to the library of about twenty thousand volumes, which is in charge of trained librarians and is open daily for the use of students. The Oliver Wendell Holmes Memorial Library, which is rapidly nearing completion, is expected to be in use at the opening of school in September. This library will have a capacity of one hundred thousand volumes.

Samuel Phillips Hall This addition to the school plant was completed in 1924. The building, which contains twenty-six recitation rooms and two examination rooms and is thoroughly modern in every respect, was made possible through the activity and interest of the alumni of the school who generously provided the funds for its erection.

George Washington Hall George Washington Hall, was opened for occupancy in September, 1926. The building, contains a large auditorium, the Martha Cochran Memorial Organ, and the offices of administration, and is the generous gift of an alumnus commemorating the historic connection of President Washington with the school and his friendship with the founder.

Samuel F. B. Morse Hall Named in honor of Samuel F. B. Morse, P. A. 1805. This new building contains the Physics, Chemistry and Biology Laboratories and a room for Mechanical Drawing. It is a large, well-lighted, fire-proof building and is fully equipped with modern apparatus.

The Chapel The Chapel, erected in 1875 and enlarged in 1920, provides accommodations for the religious exercises of the school. The daily morning chapel exercises and the Sunday preaching and vesper services are held in this building. The Chapel contains the William Couch Eggleston memorial organ.

Borden Gymnasium The Academy has a large gymnasium, equipped with modern apparatus, and in charge of a Physical Director who is also the Medical Adviser. All students are required to take regular gymnasium work.

Swimming Pool The swimming pool, adjoining the gymnasium, is seventy-five feet long and thirty feet wide, and represents the most modern ideas in swimming pool construction. The elaborate filtration plant in the basement of the building assures the purity of the water used in the pool.

The Case Memorial Building The Case Memorial Building was erected in 1923 by Mr. and Mrs. George B. Case and family in memory of George B. Case, Jr. and provides facilities for all kinds of athletic activities and healthful recreation during the winter term and on days when such activities are not possible on the regular playing fields.

Phillips Inn The school property includes a well-equipped hotel, situated near the center of the grounds, under lease to a manager, and furnishing to parents and friends of the school comfortable accommodations.

The Isham Infirmary The Academy maintains an infirmary, the generous gift of Miss Flora E. Isham, whose name it bears. The infirmary was completed in 1912, is thoroughly modern in all its appointments, and was carefully planned under the direction of experts in hospital construction. In addition to the general wards, it contains single rooms for those requiring special treatment, and an operating room. The contagious wards are completely separated from the ordinary wards, and at each end of the building there is a large sun parlor entirely encased in glass. Boys who are sufficiently indisposed to be unable to attend classes are sent to the infirmary for proper care. Except when special arrangements have been made in advance by parents or guardians, the following regulations will be observed in the conduct of the infirmary. Patients at the infirmary requiring medical attention shall call in local physicians approved by the school authorities. In cases requiring the attendance of specialists, the best men available in Boston will be called in consultation. In special emergencies, when operations seem necessary and parents cannot be consulted in advance, the Headmaster of the school assumes responsibility for authorizing such operations. The Medical Adviser may at any time examine and report upon individual cases.

Athletic Grounds Brothers' Field, comprising sixty acres, is in close proximity to the gymnasium and contains ample facilities for baseball, football, and track athletics. The Academy possesses other extensive grounds for various athletic sports, including baseball, football, soccer, and tennis.

Bulletin The Phillips Bulletin, a magazine devoted to the interests and history of the school and its alumni, is published five times a year and sent to all former members of Phillips Academy whose addresses are known.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Scholarship Aid Liberal provision is made for boys who possess scholarly ability and ambition but are not able to pay the regular charges of the school. By scholarships and opportunities for self-aid, such boys may reduce the money payments to the school for their first year to sums ranging from $82.00 to $212.00, and in succeeding years to even lower sums. The amounts awarded as scholarships vary with the excellence of the boys in their studies, and are adjusted each term in accordance with their records in the studies of the preceding term. A more detailed statement of the assistance granted is given on the scholarship application blank. One of these will be sent upon request.

Some especially generous scholarships are available for boys who have established themselves in the school, and have proved their need and worthiness of special assistance.

Special Provision for Scholarship Boys Furnished rooms are reserved in various dormitories for boys who are obliged to keep their expenses within the lowest possible limits. A rental of $40 to $50 is charged each occupant of these rooms. Choice of room is determined by the scholarship rank of the applicant.

Self-Support Ample opportunities are afforded by the Academy to scholarship boys to earn a portion of their school charges. Service in Bulfinch Hall and boarding houses enables them to earn their board. Several agencies are assigned by the Bureau of Self-Support and a number of students may earn a portion of the school charges by work in connection with the school offices. An energetic boy may find various other chances for remunerative work.

As the subjects are taught with a view to the student's progressive development, it is desirable for him to take the entire course in the Academy. In recent years the Academy has been forced to limit rigidly the number admitted to the Senior class.

In order that the student may plan his work to the greatest advantage, it is important that he decide as early as possible upon the higher institution which he intends to enter. A proper choice of course and of elective subjects will furnish adequate preparation for any college or scientific school.

STATEMENT OF COURSES

G R E E K

The first year (Greek¹) is devoted mainly to forms and the most essential principles of syntax. Benner and Smyth's Beginner's Greek Book is used. To aid the memorizing of inflections and vocabularies there are daily exercises, both oral and written, enforced by incessant drill. During the second and third terms, work in the grammar is supplemented by lessons from a very simple Greek Reader.

The second year (Greek²) is occupied with Xenophon's Anabasis, Books I-IV, or an equivalent, with sight reading, translation from English into Greek, and grammar reviews. An attempt is made to acquire a general survey of Xenophon's more important works. Grammar and simple composition are studied throughout the year and occupy a part of every recitation period.

There is an elective course in the Greek Testament (Greek⁴) — one hour a week — open to both Upper Middlers and Seniors.

The third year (Greek³) is spent mainly in reading selected books of the Iliad and the Odyssey. After the dialect is mastered, more attention is given to the literary side of the poems and to the translation of Homer at sight, about 5000 verses being read during the year.

In Latin¹ the time is occupied with the mastery of such vocabulary, inflexions, and syntax as the better manuals for beginners provide. There is constant practice in the reading and writing of simple prose, and in observing the relation of Latin to English words. The course aims at a thoroughly dependable foundation for subsequent reading and study. As the normal course is one of only four years, it is imperative that candidates should have a competent knowledge of the fundamentals of English grammar. It is desirable also that, before entering the Academy, they should be familiar with the ordinary forms of the Latin declensions and conjugations.

In the Latin², Books I-IV of the Gallic War of Caesar, or equivalent amounts from a "Second Year Book" are studied, with emphasis upon the comprehension of the subject-matter and syntax. The study of vocabulary includes the mastery of the word list recommended by the College Entrance Examination Board for Second Year. Ample time is allotted to prose composition. There is continual practice in sight translation and reading aloud.

In Latin³, the course aims chiefly at training in reading Latin prose writings with increasing ease and surety. The work in Latin prose composition is devoted to connected narrative. The first and third orations against Catiline, the poet Archias, Verres (The Plunder of Syracuse) and other speeches, such as the Marcellus or the Manilian Law, may be read, or the equivalent amounts of other authors may be substituted. Vocabulary study includes the entire list recommended by the College Entrance Examination Board.

In Latin⁴, effort is made to cultivate a sympathetic appreciation of the essentials of good poetry. Selections from the Aeneid, and from the Metamorphoses of Ovid and excerpts from other poets, form the basis of the work. The total amount of reading may be estimated as equivalent to six or seven books of the Aeneid. Vocabulary study includes the entire list recommended by the College Entrance Examination Board. Topics in the private life and customs of the Romans are studied and illustrated. The academy possesses more than a thousand photographs for this purpose.

FRENCH

The first year's work (French¹) comprises the principles of pronunciation, drill in the fundamentals of grammar including the inflections of the regular and the more common irregular verbs, of nouns, of adjectives, of participles, of pronouns; the uses of pronouns, the simple uses of the conditional and subjunctive, and the elementary rules of syntax; abundant easy exercises for oral translation into French, and the reading of about two hundred pages of easy French prose. The following texts have been used. Kuhn's Reader, Super's Reader, Aldrich and Foster's Reader, La Tulipe Noire, L'Été de la Saint-Martin, Sans Famille, and Morrison and Gautier's French Grammar.

The second-year course (French²) completes the elementary work in French and prepares for the College Board examinations in Elementary French. It includes a review of elementary grammar and continued work in composition and translation. Such texts as Colomba, La Mère de la Marquise, Le Roi des Montagnes, Syntax of the French Verb, and Galland's Composition have been used.

The third year (French³) covers the requirement of the College Board in Intermediate French. Contes de Daudet, La Débâcle, Les Misérables, and similar texts furnish material for translation, and work in composition and grammar is done throughout the year.

The fourth-year work (French⁴) consists of easy conversation with reading. This course is for those who have passed the college examinations and who wish to continue their work in the language.

GERMAN

The first year's work (German¹) includes a constant drill in pronunciation and a thorough course in elementary grammar. Abundant easy exercises are translated into German and used as the basis of oral and aural practice. A limited amount of memorizing of German idioms and poetry, and translation from German into English are required. Vos's Essentials of German and various easy texts are used in this course.

The second-year course (German²) completes the preparation for the College Board examination in Elementary German. It comprises a thorough review of the grammar and a considerable amount of more advanced translation and composition. Conversational work is continued by the use of such helps as Ballard and Krause's Short Stories for Oral German. Wesselhoeft's Elementary German Grammar and Whitney and Stroebe's Easy German Composition have been used in this course and various texts like Wildenbruch's Das edle Blut, Gerstäcker's Germelshausen, and Storm's Immensee are read.

The third year's work (German³) prepares for the examination in Intermediate German as set by the College Entrance Examination Board. Grammar is rapidly reviewed and advanced composition written throughout the year. Ham and Leonard's German Grammar and Pope's German Composition have been used in this connection. Oral work is continued, and such texts as Freytag's Die Journalisten, Riehl's Der Fluch der Schönheit, Schurz's Lebenserinnerungen, Heine's Die Harzreise, Schiller's Wilhelm Tell, and Schiller's Der Dreissig-jährige Krieg III are studied.

The fourth-year course (German⁴) of two hours a week is open to those who have secured credit for three years of German, and, upon consultation with the instructor, to others who satisfy him of their ability. The course will be adapted to the maturity of the students and their proficiency in German. Half the time will be spent in conversational practice on everyday topics and on German life and institutions, the remainder in rapid reading and interpretation of some phase of German literature. Prehn's Journalistic German, Wildenbruch's Die Rabensteinerin, Sudermann's Der Katzensteg, and Hauptmann's Die Weber have been used. Wagner's Tannhäuser has been studied and the original Middle High German poems of the old singers discussed and put into modern German. Students in this course are not recommended for additional college credits in German.

ENGLISH

The work of English¹ in composition is based on themes, — simple narratives and descriptions — written in the class-room. Attention is given to the correction of grammatical errors in speech and writing, with necessary consideration of formal grammar; to elementary matters of the structure and the punctuation of the sentence; to spelling; and to the acquisition of a vocabulary. The first book is Chapman's Using English. The work in literature is based on Adventures in Literature, No. 9. Considerable emphasis is placed on enunciation and pronunciation.

In the teaching of composition in English², the general plan of the preceding year is continued, with a somewhat higher standard of requirement, the chief object being to secure plenty of practice. Themes are written outside of the class-room as well as during the recitation period. The study of some elementary matters of rhetoric is begun.

The textbook used for the work in composition is Ward's Sentence and Theme. The study of literature comprises the careful reading of some books and the rapid reading of others. Particular attention is given to oral English, each student being required to deliver two carefully prepared speeches each term, and to read aloud in the class-room as frequently as possible.

In English³ the thorough study of formal rhetoric is begun. As many themes as possible are written outside of the class-room, and considerable writing is done in the class-room. The textbook used is Herrick and Damon's New Composition and Rhetoric. The course in literature includes the careful reading of six or seven books, selected in part from the list for reading (A) prescribed in the College Entrance Requirements; the lives of the authors; and the rapid reading, optional or required, of as many other books as possible, including the Odyssey with Gayley's Classic Myths.

In English⁴ the principles of composition-rhetoric studied in the preceding year are reviewed, with a higher standard of requirement in their application to writing. Leonard and Fuess's Good Writing is used in this year. Formal themes and writing in the class-room are required. The course in literature includes the rapid reading of some books and the careful study of others; the life and times of the chief authors; and as much supplementary reading as possible. The work of this year completes the preparation for the examination offered by the College Entrance Examination Board.

PUBLIC SPEAKING

Public Speaking is taken up as part of the Lower Middle English course.

An elective course in Public Speaking comprises training in the preparation and delivery of expositions, the theory of argument, argumentative speeches, and debates. There is some work in declamation and a considerable amount of extemporaneous speaking.

ENGLISH BIBLE

A two-hour course in English Bible is offered as a Senior elective. The subject matter is as follows: First Term, the narrative portions of the Old Testament; Second Term, the life and teachings of Christ as found in the four Gospels; Third Term, the establishment of the early Christian Church. Text-books: The Old Testament Narrative by Sheffield; The New Testament; and His Life, edited by Barton, Soares, and Strong.

ALGEBRA

Algebra¹. The study of Algebra is begun in the Junior year in a course occupying five hours a week throughout the year. Durell and Arnold's First Book in Algebra (enlarged edition) is completed during the year.

Algebra². This course provides a review of Algebra¹ and continues the subject through all the topics of Elementary and Intermediate Algebra named in the recently revised statement of requirements of the College Entrance Examination Board. Candidates for entrance to the Academy desiring credit for this course must present a college entrance certificate giving credit for both Elementary and Intermediate Algebra.

Algebra³. This course covers the topics in Advanced Algebra specified by the College Entrance Examination Board and meets the entrance requirements of all colleges and scientific schools.

GEOMETRY

Demonstrative Plane Geometry is begun and completed in a single year. Four, or five, recitations a week are given to the subject. The chief aim of the instruction is to develop in each student the ability to reason clearly and logically. Accuracy, clearness, and completeness of statement are insisted upon. To develop originality and independence of thought, about two-thirds of the time is devoted to the solution of exercises of gradually increasing difficulty.

In the Senior year Solid Geometry is taught four hours a week during the winter term and two hours during the spring term. The course meets the entrance requirements of all colleges and scientific schools.

TRIGONOMETRY

A course in Plane Trigonometry, meeting four hours a week during the fall term and two hours during the spring term, forms, with Solid Geometry, a full four-hour course for the Senior year. It meets the entrance requirements of all colleges and scientific schools.

MECHANICAL DRAWING

Six hours each week are given to this course. It includes the use of drawing instruments, lettering, geometric constructions, orthographic and isometric projections, developments, intersections, sectioning, and working drawings. Especial stress is laid on a thorough mastering of the fundamentals. The course meets the requirements of the College Entrance Examination Board and in many instances so prepares the student that he can obtain advance credit for the subject on his entrance to college. Students of exceptional ability are given an opportunity to do more advanced work or are given problems in keeping with the course to be pursued after entrance to college.

PHYSICS

The instruction in Physics is given by the use of a text-book and by practical work in the laboratory. The text is accompanied with numerical examples and by qualitative experiments designed to illustrate physical laws and their application to practical life.

Forty or more quantitative laboratory experiments are required of each pupil. A careful record of the steps and results of these exercises is kept in a note-book which is submitted to the instructor for approval.

CHEMISTRY

BIOLOGY

The course in Biology covers the fundamental characteristics of living things; the nutrition, growth, and reproduction of plants and animals; the physiology and hygiene of the human body; the influence of bacteria, insects, trees, and birds on man's welfare; and the principles of heredity and evolution.

The class meets four times a week, twice for recitations and twice for two-hour laboratory periods. The work in the laboratory includes careful training in the use of the compound microscope and in the recording of observations made. The instruction meets the requirement of the College Entrance Examination Board and counts one point for admission to college.

ARCHÆOLOGY

The work of the department is chiefly confined to the United States, and research in other subjects than American archæology is not attempted.

There have been extensive explorations at the Pecos Pueblo, New Mexico, the Etowah mound site in Georgia, and cooperative work with the University of Illinois in Illinois; also additional explorations in Mississippi, Maine, Arkansas and Texas.

At present the collections number about 220,000 specimens, all of which represent stone age art.

The publications of the department number ten: — Bulletin No. 1, on the Exploration of Jacob's Cavern; No. 2, The Gorgets; No. 3, Field Work in Ohio, Tennessee, Kentucky, Arizona, and New Mexico; No. 4, The Exploration of Bushey Cavern and the Exploration of Fort Ancient; No. 5, A Study and Description of the Seven Prehistoric Earthworks found near Andover; No. 6, A Study of Hematite Implements found in the United States; No. 7, The Archaeology of Maine.

Southwestern series, No. 1, An Introduction to the Study of Southwestern Archaeology. No. 2, The Potter's Art at San Ildefonso, New Mexico. No. 3, The Pueblo of Jemez.

In preparation — Explorations at Pecos Pueblo, New Mexico; Etowah Mound, Georgia; and Cutting Tools of the American Indians.

HISTORY

Courses are offered in Ancient History, English History, and American History.

PHILOSOPHY

A two-hour Senior elective is offered in this subject, the object of the course being to present a general introduction to the field for those students who may wish to continue their philosophical studies at college or the university.

The subject is presented from the point of view of the philosophical problems rather than from that of the historical development. Text-books used are: Berkeley's Dialogues between Hylas and Philonous, Weber's History of Philosophy, and Hoernle's Idealism as a Philosophy.

PHYSICAL TRAINING

All students are required to take some form of exercise during the school year. Upon entering the school each boy receives a careful physical and medical examination, and a form of exercise suited to his peculiar needs is advised. Special attention is given to those who lack normal development. The school, club, and squad teams give all students an opportunity to compete in sports with those of their own relative ability. No student is allowed to compete on school teams unless permission indicating his fitness is received from the Physical Director.

MUSIC

Opportunity for the study of piano, organ, violin, and voice is offered by the Department of Music. The piano instruction is in charge of Mr. Felix Fox of Boston; the organ lessons are given by the Director of Music, violin lessons by Mr. Linwood D. Scriven of Boston, and voice by Mr. James Gray McCloskey of Boston.

A two-hour course in Harmony is offered as an elective.

Students who sing in the choir, every member attending two rehearsals a week, are offered one of three forms of compensation: (a) financial; (b) one athletic or chapel cut a week; (c) permission to count the choir work as one schedule-hour.

Serious attention is given the school orchestra, which rehearses weekly and studies carefully both classical and modern compositions.

During the academic year 1928-1929 the following concerts were given: Geraldine Farrar, soprano; Vladimir Horowitz, piano; Fernando Germani, organ; Ernestine Schumann-Heink, contralto; Gordon and Johnson, negro spirituals; the London string-quartette; the joint concert by the Andover-Exeter musical clubs; the joint concert with Bradford Academy, with Miss Mildred Dilling, harpist, as soloist. On the Wednesday afternoons of the winter term the Director of Music gave a series of illustrated talks in the George Washington Auditorium on "The Music Dramas of Richard Wagner". He also gave informal organ recitals upon the Martha Cochran Memorial Organ in the George Washington Auditorium after the morning services during the fall and spring terms. On the Sunday evenings of the spring term there were Carillon recitals upon the thirty-seven bells of the Memorial Tower.

The department is equipped with three organs, and, in addition to practice pianos, with a Steinway concert grand and an Ampico Chickering grand.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY

PHILLIPS ACADEMY is situated at Andover, in the County of Essex, Massachusetts. The Constitution and original deed of gift of the Academy was signed April 21, 1778, by Esquire Samuel Phillips, of the north parish of Andover, and his brother, John Phillips, LL.D., of Exeter, New Hampshire, in the presence, and largely at the instance, of Samuel Phillips, Jr. (then but twenty-six years old), afterward judge of the Court of Common Pleas for Essex County, president of the Massachusetts Senate, and lieutenant governor of the Commonwealth. By this act the Trustees of Phillips Academy became owners of the land in the south parish of Andover on which the chief buildings of the school now stand, together with other endowment comprising further lands in Andover, two hundred acres in Jaffrey, New Hampshire, and the sum of one thousand six hundred and fourteen pounds.

The Constitution, which sets forth in detail the plan for the School and the obligations of the Trustees and Master, was written by Samuel Phillips, Jr., with the advice and aid of his friend, Eliphalet Pearson, who became first Master. The following passages are characteristic:

A serious consideration of the premises, and an observation of the growing neglect of youth, have excited in us a painful anxiety for the event, and determined us to make, in the following Conveyance, a humble dedication to our Heavenly Benefactor of the ability, wherewith he hath blessed us, to lay the foundation of a public free School or Academy for the purpose of instructing Youth, not only in English and Latin Grammar, Writing, Arithmetic, and those Sciences, wherein they are commonly taught; but more especially to learn them the great end and real business of living.

This Seminary shall be ever equally open to youth of requisite qualifications from every quarter.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY

And, in order to prevent the smallest perversion of the true intent of this Foundation, it is again declared, that the first and principal object of this Institution is the promotion of true Piety and Virtue; the second, instruction in the English, Latin, and Greek languages, together with Writing, Arithmetic, Music and the Art of Speaking; the third, practical Geometry, Logic and Geography; and the fourth, such other of the Liberal Arts and Sciences or Languages as opportunity and ability may hereafter admit, and as the Trustees shall direct.

The Master is to give special attention to the health of the scholars, and ever to urge the importance of a habit of industry.

By the Act of Incorporation, passed by the General Court, October 4, 1780, the Trustees were authorized to hold real estate to an annual value of five hundred pounds and personal estate to an annual value of two thousand pounds, "both sums to be valued in silver at the rate of six shillings and eight pence by the ounce."

The School was opened for instruction April 30, 1778, in a building which had earlier been used as a joiner's shop. The first preceptor was Eliphalet Pearson (1778-1786), a stimulating teacher and stern disciplinarian who established high standards of instruction. Shortly before he resigned to become professor at Harvard College a new and larger wooden school-house was built. Ebenezer Pemberton (1786-1793) was a polite and scholarly master, who devoted much attention to the manners of his pupils. He was followed by Mark Newman (1795-1809). In 1808 Andover Theological Seminary for the professional training of Congregational ministers was established, largely through the efforts of the Phillips family and Dr. Pearson, and this new foundation was committed to the Trustees of Phillips Academy. In 1907 the theological trusts were transferred to a newly created independent board of trustees, and in 1908 Andover Theological Seminary was removed to Cambridge.

The fourth principal, John Adams (1810-1833), raised the repute of the school, increased the attendance, and enlarged the number of teachers. He published the first catalogue and made the first revision of the curriculum; his primary interest was in the moral welfare of the boys. The second school-house was burned on January 28, 1818, and a new brick Academy designed by the famous architect Bulfinch was erected within a year. This "classic hall", described in Oliver Wendell Holmes's centennial poem, The School Boy, is still in use.

Next as principal came Osgood Johnson (1833-1837), beloved and respected, who died of consumption in his thirty-fourth year. In that period the dormitories known to so many generations of Phillips boys as "Latin Commons" and "English Commons" were built under the direction of Samuel Farrar, treasurer of the Academy.

Samuel H. Taylor, whose reign of thirty-four years is as yet the longest in the school history, became principal in 1837. He was a strong and vigorous personality who made an enduring impression on all who came under his influence. In 1866 a new Academy Building was erected through the gifts of many friends; it was afterward twice reconstructed, and finally razed in 1928. Dr. Taylor died on January 29, 1871, in the vestibule of the Academy, and for the next two years the office of principal was held by Frederic W. Tilton (1871-1873).

The modern period of the School's history began in 1873 with the arrival of Cecil F. P. Bancroft, a man of foresight and clear vision, patience and shrewd discrimination, who was principal until his death in 1901. Dr. Bancroft, working quietly but persistently, brought about many reforms. He made a complete revision of the curriculum, enabling the school to meet the entrance requirements of any college or scientific school, and greatly broadening the range of studies. In gathering about himself a larger and more efficient body of teachers he was eminently successful. The attendance increased: in 1873 there were 252 pupils; in 1895, 524; and after 1892 the number never dropped below 400. Dr. Bancroft also strove to secure additions to the equipment; and dormitories, a good laboratory, and the Borden Gymnasium were built through his efforts.

On June 5 and 6, 1878, Phillips Academy celebrated its centennial anniversary with elaborate exercises. At this time a fund of one hundred thousand dollars was raised, partly for the endowment of the principal's chair and for one in Latin.

In 1901 the Trustees accepted a museum and large foundation for research in American Archaeology, the gift and legacy of Robert Singleton Peabody and his wife, Margaret Augusta Peabody.

Dr. Bancroft was succeeded in 1901 by Alfred E. Stearns, whose title was changed to headmaster in 1928. The purchase in 1908 of the lands and buildings of Andover Theological Seminary greatly increased the resources of the Academy and made possible a development which has not yet ceased. During the World War the ambulance unit of Phillips Academy, which sailed overseas in April 1917, was the first to be organized by any American school. Of the alumni twenty-three hundred were enrolled in the military or naval service of the United States or its allies. A Memorial Tower, with a carillon of bells, commemorates the loyalty of the eighty-seven who gave their lives for their country. In 1920 more than one and a half million dollars was contributed by alumni and friends of the school, and from one-third of this fund Samuel Phillips Hall was built and the centre of the School permanently fixed in a new site. In the later years before that event, and in those succeeding, the gift of many other important buildings has brought the Academy near to the completion of its material equipment, and the devotion of its alumni and friends has greatly enlarged its endowment.

On May 18 and 19, 1928, Phillips Academy observed its sesquicentennial anniversary, at which the principal address was made by Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY has long aimed to train boys through the cultivation of responsibility in freedom. It is not adapted for those who require the constant supervision of teachers in the preparation of school work. As maturity is not always to be measured by years, the school has no specific age for entrance, but in general, it has been found, boys of fourteen are able to meet the responsibilities of life in the Academy. Students who are found to be unable or unwilling to fulfil the requirements, and those whose influence is injurious, must be withdrawn from the school.

The Academy provides accommodations and surroundings which enable its students to pass by gradual and natural stages from home life to the freedom that awaits them in college. Williams Hall, with close supervision, special hours, and home life, offers attractive and helpful surroundings to the young boy just entering on his school career. A natural and progressive development is provided for subsequent years in the houses and halls which are in charge of married instructors. The later life of the dormitories, under supervision by instructors and with obligations to observe all school regulations, is designed to develop a larger sense of responsibility and to prepare for the community life of the college. In the judgment of the School, the average boy will secure the best results, intellectually and morally, by following out this plan of gradual change in residence.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

The requirements for admission to Phillips Academy consist of evidence of good character and a satisfactory school record. Since the Academy is unable to receive all who apply for admission even when they can meet its minimum requirements, it is obliged to discriminate among the applicants on the basis of their school records. Each candidate for admission will take certain specified examinations, in part to enable the school to distinguish fairly among the applicants, but chiefly in order to classify properly those who are admitted. The school record already made—interpreted to some extent by these examinations—determines largely the decision on each application.

Boys who plan to enter the Academy are strongly advised to enter as early in the course as possible. Only a small number can be received in the Senior Class and a slightly larger number in the Upper Middle Class. It is much easier, as well as more profitable, to enter a lower class at the appropriate age than to secure admission to a higher class later.

Students in the Academy arrange their work in accordance with the Course of Study as outlined on pages 51-53. This outline exhibits the work which is done each year by a student who is neither behind nor ahead of his class in any subject. It is not required that all the studies of the student shall be in the class in which he is rated; he is permitted to take individual subjects below or above that class if his preparation in the prerequisites of those subjects justifies such action. But a student is not ordinarily permitted to take courses in one class to the exclusion of uncompleted courses in a lower class, except in subjects continuing through successive years.

The examinations ordinarily required for entrance to the different classes are specified below. Each candidate should take the examinations for which his previous work fits him, irrespective of the class groups in which the subjects are listed.

JUNIOR CLASS

To enter as a normal Junior (four years from college), a candidate must have completed an approved grammar-school course. He must pass satisfactorily: (1) an examination in English; (2) an examination in Arithmetic and Algebra; and (3) an examination in Latin. The examination in English covers such essentials of formal English grammar as are treated in Kittredge and Farley's Concise English Grammar (Ginn & Co.). This examination will be combined with a test in spelling and composition. The examination in Arithmetic covers the following topics: common and decimal fractions, square root, denominate numbers, percentage and interest. In Algebra, the examination will be based upon the topics covered in Parts I of Chapters I-XI of Durell and Arnold's First Book in Algebra (enlarged edition). The examination in Latin is based upon a knowledge of the typical forms in the declensions and conjugations.

Grammar-school graduates who can present unusually strong records but have had no opportunity to study Algebra and Latin, may be admitted to the Junior Class without taking examinations in these two subjects. Special beginners' divisions in Algebra and Latin will be provided for these boys in the expectation that by the end of the year they will be able to reach the same degree of advancement as the other members of the class.

In order to meet the needs of a few promising but immature candidates, who have completed satisfactorily the work of the eighth grade, a special program is provided. These candidates will take the examinations in English and Arithmetic for admission to the Junior Class. Such students will require five years to complete the course.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY

LOWER MIDDLE CLASS

For those who wish to enter as normal Lower Middlers the Academy sets papers on the work done in its Junior year as outlined on page 51.

These examinations cover:

one year's work in Algebra, as described on page 60,
one year's work in English, as described on page 58,
one year's work in Latin, as described on pages 54-55, one year's work in French or German, as described on pages 56 and 57.

In place of its own examinations the Academy accepts certain examinations of the Secondary Education Board. The Board's Mathematics III-C, English III, and Latin I examinations will satisfy the requirements for entrance to the Junior Class. Its Mathematics IV, English IV, Latin III, and French III examinations are accepted for entrance to the Lower Middle Class.

UPPER MIDDLE CLASS

Those who wish to enter as normal Upper Middlers should take the following examinations, which cover the work of the Junior and Lower Middle years, as outlined on pages 51-52:

- (1) an examination set by the Academy on two years' work in English, described on page 58;
- (2) the College Board's French Cp. 2 or German Cp. 2 examination, which covers two years' work, described on pages 56-57;
- (3) the College Board's Latin Cp. 2 examination,* which covers two years' work in Latin, described on pages 54-55;
- (4) in courses B and C, the College Board's Mathematics A examination, which covers two years' work in Algebra, described on page 60; or, in course A, examinations set by the

*The Academy also sets an examination covering two years' work in Latin, which may be taken in place of the College Board's Latin Cp. 2 paper by those who are to continue the study of Latin in the Academy.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY

Academy on one year's work in Algebra,* described on page 60; and one year's work in German or Greek, described on pages 57 and 54.

The Academy will accept credits already established by examination at the college for which the candidate is preparing. Incoming boys who have completed a subject which they do not wish to continue, should take the corresponding college entrance examination.

SENIOR CLASS

Candidates for admission to the Senior Class must secure credits which cover the work of the Academy's three lower years (see pages 51-52) or its equivalent. These credits are obtained regularly by passing (1) an examination in English† set by the Academy, and (2) examinations of the College Entrance Examination Board in other subjects totaling 9 units. Credit for a single unit of French, German, Greek, or Latin may be obtained by one of the Academy's examinations.

Students are not admitted to the Senior Class later than the beginning of the winter term.

CLASSIFICATION

Candidates who are admitted to the Academy and secure credits in the ways indicated in the preceding paragraphs are rated as

Juniors, if credited with fewer than 13 hours of the Academy's courses;

Lower Middlers, if credited with 13 to 30 hours;

Upper Middlers, if credited with 31 to 47 hours;

Seniors, if credited with 48 hours.

*The College Board's Mathematics A 1 paper may be substituted for this examination.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY

PROCEDURE IN APPLYING

In making application for admission to the Academy the form in the back of this catalogue should be used. It should be filled out carefully and completely and forwarded to the Headmaster of the Academy. Testimonial letters must either accompany it or be sent later.

Certificates of standing in schools formerly attended are required. At the close of the school year, in June, the Academy sends to these institutions for complete official records of the candidates' work.

Each candidate should take in June such examinations as the requirements outlined on pages 20-22 demand. Candidates should not count on qualifying by means of September examinations without definite assurance from the school authorities of the possibility of their admission in this way. The pressure for admission in recent years makes such procedure difficult. Those who take college entrance examinations should forward official returns to the Academy as soon as they are received.

Present members of the school are allowed first choice in room reservations for the following year. Rooms are assigned to incoming students about August 1, and in the order in which their admission applications are filed. Space for indicating room preference is provided on the admission application form.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS

The Phillips Academy entrance examinations will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 17 and 18, 1930. The schedule of hours is announced in May. The examinations will be given as follows:

PHILLIPS ACADEMY

Andover: Phillips Academy, Samuel Phillips Hall.

Chicago: Room 103, Wiebaldt Hall of Commerce, 339 East Chicago Avenue.

New York: Room 309, School of Business Building, Columbia University.

Examinations will be held in other cities, in June only, if the number of candidates in any locality is sufficient.

For the Academy's examinations in Andover on these regular dates no fee is charged. For its examinations outside of Andover a fee of $5.00 is required; but if College Board examinations are taken also, the fee for the Academy's examinations is $2.00.

The examinations of the College Entrance Examination Board are held each June in a large number of cities in the United States and abroad. They come in 1930 during the week of June 16-21. Application to take these examinations should be made early in May to the Secretary of the College Entrance Examination Board, 431 West 117th Street, New York City. The fee, which is $10.00 for the year 1930, should accompany this application.

On Tuesday, September 16, 1930, the Academy examinations will be held in Andover only, at 9.30 A.M., according to a schedule of rooms and hours announced at that time.

A pamphlet containing the Academy's 1929 examination papers will be supplied upon request. College Board examinations of former years are published by Ginn & Company.

SPECIAL STUDENTS

No special students, except foreigners, are received in the Junior or Lower Middle year, and the Academy makes no provision for special students who are not candidates for graduation or for entrance to college or scientific school.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY

Special courses may be arranged in the Upper Middle and Senior years, but only at the written request of parents and by special faculty vote.

DIPLOMA REQUIREMENTS

To receive the diploma of the Academy a student must have secured passing grades:

- (a) in all required subjects in the course selected,
- (b) in subjects which amount to at least 71 hours of the curriculum,
- (c) in a sufficient number of subjects, recognized by the College Entrance Examination Board, to complete the requirement of 15 units,
- (d) in all subjects pursued in the Senior year.

EXAMINATIONS AND PROMOTIONS

Written examinations are held in each study at least once a term, but the term grading is based on the results of both written examinations and daily work. A student who is guilty of dishonesty in an examination may be suspended or dismissed. At the close of each term a report of the student's scholarship and attitude towards his work is sent to his parents or guardian. Mid-term reports are also sent for all students whose work is below the passing grade, 60%, and for those who obtain grades of 80% and above.

CLASS OFFICERS

Each student is assigned to the special care of a member of the faculty who is known as his Class Officer. This officer arranges the schedule of studies for each member of the class under his charge, and recommends such subsequent changes as seem desirable.

DIVISION OFFICERS

The entire school is divided into groups of approximately twenty students each. Each group is assigned to the special charge of an instructor whose duty it is to familiarize himself with the previous history and present standing of the several members, and to serve as their counselor.

APPOINTMENTS

DAILY APPOINTMENTS

7.45 A.M. Morning chapel.

8.07 A.M. to 1.00 P.M. }
4.07 P.M. to 6.00 P.M. } Recitation and study hours.

8.00 P.M. Evening study hours begin.

Sunday, 10.30 A.M. and 5.15 P.M. Chapel services.

Wednesday and Saturday afternoons are half-holidays.

STUDY HOURS

Students are expected to occupy themselves with their studies or other school work during all study hours.

ABSENCES

Every absence of the student from recitation, morning chapel, Sunday service, or from his room during study hours, must be accounted for. The accumulation of eight unexcused absences involves suspension from school. In all cases of illness, notice must be sent at once to the Medical Adviser.

Special importance is attached to meeting all appointments immediately preceding and following vacation and recess periods. A failure to meet such appointments will be regarded as a very serious offence and may necessitate withdrawal from school.

OUT-OF-TOWN EXCUSES

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES

Students are required to be present at morning chapel. The Sunday services in the Chapel and the religious work of the school are conducted by clergymen of various denominations, in connection with the Academy Church, an undenominational organization. Voluntary communion services are held in the Chapel during the year. The Society of Inquiry (the Christian Association of the school) holds voluntary meetings, which are often addressed by an invited speaker.

Upon written request from their parents, students may be excused to attend the morning services of the Protestant Episcopal, Baptist, or Roman Catholic church.

PHYSICAL TRAINING

All students are required to take some form of exercise during the school year. Upon entering the school each boy receives a careful physical and medical examination, and a form of exercise suited to his peculiar needs is advised. Special attention is given to those who lack normal development. The school, club, and squad teams give all students an opportunity to compete in sports with those of their own relative ability. No student is allowed to compete on school teams unless permission indicating his fitness is received from the Physical Director.

MEDICAL CARE AND INFIRMARY

All absences from class due to illness are at once reported to the Medical Adviser, and investigated by him.

The Infirmary contains general wards, private rooms, operating room, and isolated contagious wards. Any boy not well enough to attend classes is sent to the infirmary for proper care. Whenever necessary a physician or surgeon from Boston will be called. In emergencies requiring an immediate operation, when parents can not be consulted in advance, the Headmaster will assume authority for authorizing the operation.

EXPENSES

Parents can estimate approximately the expenses of their sons at the Academy, and they are particularly requested not to furnish money beyond what is necessary for modest expenditure. Pupils who are supplied with much spending money, or who are allowed to incur debts, often accomplish little in their studies, and are liable to form habits which require their withdrawal from the school. Parents are earnestly requested to refuse permission to their sons to contract debts.

The schedules below indicate the range of the school charges.

on October 1 and is billed with other items due on that date. The balance remaining after such charges have been deducted will be returned, but not before the close of the fiscal year, June 30.

An additional charge of $16.50 is made to members of the Senior class to cover the expenses of Commencement. A rebate of $1.50 from this charge is made if the student fails to secure his diploma. All bills are mailed to parents or guardians, but may be paid in person by the students. Classroom privileges will be denied to students whose bills are not settled on or before the dates mentioned above. As instructors must be engaged and other provisions for education must be made by the school authorities for the entire year in advance, tuition charges will not be refunded when students are suspended, dismissed, or withdrawn during the school year. Checks should be drawn in favor of the Trustees of Phillips Academy.

INFIRMARY CHARGES

An Infirmary Fee of $20.00 is charged each boarding pupil, payable on the first term-bill, and entitling him to bed, board and ordinary nursing for a period not exceeding four days in the school year. Beyond these four days the regular charge is $5.00 a day.

ATHLETIC FEE

A charge of $25.00 is made for the maintenance of athletics, but for scholarship boys this charge is $15.00 a year and may be paid wholly or in part by the performance of special work assigned by the Bureau of Self-Support. Three-fifths of the total amount of this charge is payable October 1 and two-fifths on March 1. Students are not asked to contribute further to the financial support of the various school teams.

ROOM RENTS

Payments for student rooms in the school buildings are required as follows: three-fifths of the entire yearly rental on or before

PHILLIPS ACADEMY

October 1; the remaining two-fifths on March 1. A deposit of $25.00 is required when the contract is filed for the room assigned. This deposit will be credited on the first regular school bill. When a room is assigned to a student, his parent or guardian agrees by contract to pay the entire rental of the room up to the close of the current school year, whether the student continues a member of the Academy or not. The right is reserved by the Trustees to transfer boys from room to room in the school buildings whenever changes seem desirable; such changes, however, do not relieve the original occupants from the obligation of meeting the entire year's rent, unless newcomers are secured to fill the vacancies.

Each room is furnished with a rug, desk, chiffonier, two chairs, bed, mattress, pillow, sheets, pillow cases, and one pair of blankets. Towels are not included.

BUILDINGS AND EQUIPMENT

WILLIAMS HALL

Williams Hall, for forty-one boys, acquired (1910) through the aid of Edward H. Williams, Jr., class of 1868, is situated within a short distance of the other school buildings, and is intended for younger boys. It is in charge of a married instructor. With its common study, recreation, and dining rooms, the Hall provides an intermediate stage between the natural restrictions of the home and the freer life of a large school. The boys are in more homelike surroundings and receive somewhat closer supervision than the rest of the school, but share with the other boys in the same classes and sports and in all the other privileges of school life.

For the school year 1930-31 the charge for room and board in Williams Hall, not including the regular tuition charge, will be $750. A limited number of room scholarships are awarded in this Hall. A special circular explaining in detail the equipment and arrangements of the Hall, and containing both interior and exterior views of the building, will be sent on request.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Liberal provision is made for aiding boys of ability, ambition, and industry to pay the charges of the school. By scholarships and opportunities for self-aid, such boys may reduce the money payments to the school for their first year to sums ranging from $82.00 to $212.00, and in succeeding years even lower. The amounts awarded as scholarships vary with the excellence of the boys in their studies, and are adjusted each term in accordance with the record of the preceding term. A more detailed statement of the assistance granted is given on the scholarship application blank, which will be sent on request. The total amount of income from scholarship funds and annual gifts for scholarships is about $13,000.00, to which the Trustees make large additions from other income. Certain larger scholarships are available for boys needing aid who have established themselves in the school and have proved their worthiness of special assistance.

SCHOLARSHIP ROOMS

Furnished rooms are reserved in various dormitories for boys who are obliged to keep their expenses within the lowest possible limits. A rental of $40 to $50 is charged each occupant of these rooms. Choice of room is determined by the scholarship rank of the applicant.

SELF-SUPPORT

Ample opportunities are afforded by the Academy to scholarship boys to earn a portion of their school charges. Service in the Dining Halls enables them to earn their board. Several agencies are assigned by the Bureau of Self-Support, and a number of students can earn a portion of the school charges by work in connection with the school offices. An energetic boy may find various other chances for remunerative work.

COURSES OF STUDY

1929-1930

SYNOPSIS OF COURSES

As the subjects are taught with a view to the student's progressive development, it is desirable for him to take the entire course in the Academy. In recent years the Academy has been forced to limit rigidly the number admitted to the Senior class.

In order that the student may plan his work to the greatest advantage, it is important that he decide as early as possible upon the higher institution which he intends to enter. A proper choice of course and of elective subjects will furnish adequate preparation for any college or scientific school.

Physical Training (4 hours a week) is required of all students.

The numbers immediately following each subject indicate successive courses in that subject. The courses are described on pages 54-64.

DESCRIPTION OF COURSES

GREEK

The first year (Greek 1) is devoted mainly to forms and the most essential principles of syntax. Benner and Smyth's Beginner's Greek Book is used. To aid the memorizing of inflections and vocabularies there are daily exercises, both oral and written, enforced by incessant drill. During the second and third terms, work in the grammar is supplemented by lessons from a very simple Greek Reader.

The second year (Greek 2) is occupied with Xenophon's Anabasis, Books I-IV, or an equivalent, with sight reading, translation from English into Greek, and grammar reviews. An attempt is made to acquire a general survey of Xenophon's more important works. Grammar and simple composition are studied throughout the year and occupy a part of every recitation period.

There is an elective course in the Greek Testament (Greek 4)—one hour a week—open to both Upper Middlers and Seniors.

The third year (Greek 3) is spent mainly in reading selected books of the Iliad and the Odyssey. After the dialect is mastered, more attention is given to the literary side of the poems and to the translation of Homer at sight, about 5000 verses being read during the year.

In Latin 1 the time is occupied with the mastery of such vocabulary, inflexions, and syntax as the better manuals for beginners provide. There is constant practice in the reading and writing of simple prose, and in observing the relation of Latin to English words. The course aims at a thoroughly dependable foundation for subsequent reading and study. As the normal course is one of only four years, it is imperative that candidates should have a competent knowledge of the fundamentals of English grammar. It is desirable also that before entering the Academy they should be familiar with the ordinary forms of the Latin declensions and conjugations.

In Latin 2, Books I-IV of the Gallic War of Caesar, or equivalent amounts from a "Second Year Book," are studied, with emphasis upon the comprehension of the subject-matter and syntax. The study of vocabulary includes the mastery of the word list recommended by the College Entrance Examination Board for Second Year. Ample time is allotted to prose composition. There is continual practice in sight translation and reading aloud.

In Latin 3, the course aims chiefly at training in reading Latin prose writings with increasing ease and surety. The work in Latin prose composition is devoted to connected narrative. The first and third orations against Catiline, the poet Archias, Verres (the Plunder of Syracuse), and other speeches, such as the Marcellus or the Manilian Law, may be read, or the equivalent amounts of other authors may be substituted. Vocabulary study includes the entire list recommended by the College Entrance Examination Board.

In Latin 4, effort is made to cultivate a sympathetic appreciation of the essentials of good poetry. Selections from the Aeneid and from the Metamorphoses of Ovid and excerpts from other poets form the basis of the work. The total amount of reading may be estimated as equivalent to six or seven books of the Aeneid. Vocabulary study includes the entire list recommended by the College Entrance Examination Board. Topics in the private life and customs of the Romans are studied and illustrated. The Academy possesses more than a thousand photographs for this purpose.

FRENCH

The first year's work (French 1) comprises the principles of pronunciation, drill in the fundamentals of grammar, including the inflections of the regular and the more common irregular verbs, of adjectives, of nouns, of participles, of pronouns; the uses of pronouns, the simple uses of the conditional and subjunctive, and the elementary rules of syntax; with abundant easy exercises for oral and written translation into French and the reading of about two hundred pages of easy French prose. The following texts have been used in this course: Fraser and Square's Shorter French Course, Dondo's Modern French Course, Kuhn's Reader, Super's Reader, Aldrich and Foster's Reader, La Tulipe Noire, L'Eté de la Saint Martin, and Sans Famille.

The second-year course (French 2) completes the elementary work in French and prepares for the College Entrance Board examinations in Elementary French (French Cp. 2). It includes a review of elementary grammar, with continued work in composition and translation. Such texts as Colomba, La Mère de la Marquise, Le Roi des Montagnes, and Aldrich, Foster and Roule's Elementary French, form the basis of the work of the second year.

The third year (French 3) covers the requirements of the College Entrance Examination Board in Intermediate French (French Cp. 3). Contes de Daudet, La Débâcle, Les Misérables, and similar texts furnish material for translation, and more advanced work in composition and grammar is done throughout the year.

The fourth year of French (French 4) consists of easy conversation with reading. This course is for those students who have passed the College Entrance examination in French Cp. 3 and who wish to continue their work in the language. The course does not prepare for additional college credits in French.

GERMAN

The first year's work (German 1) includes a constant drill in pronunciation and a thorough course in elementary grammar. Abundant easy exercises are translated into German and used as the basis of oral and aural practice. A limited amount of memorizing of German idioms and poetry and also translation from German into English are required. Vos's Essentials of German and various easy reading texts are used in this course.

The second-year course (German 2) completes the preparation for the College Board examination in Elementary German. It comprises a thorough review of the grammar and a considerable amount of more advanced translation and composition. Conversational work is continued by the use of such helps as Ballard and Krause's Short Stories for Oral German. Wesselhoeft's Elementary German Grammar and Whitney and Stroebe's Easy German Composition have been used in this course, and various texts like Wildenbruch's Das edle Blut, Gerstäcker's Germelshausen, and Storm's Immensee are read.

The third year's work (German 3) prepares for the examination in Intermediate German as set by the College Entrance Examination Board. Grammar is rapidly reviewed and advanced composition written throughout the year. Ham and Leonard's German Grammar and Pope's German Composition have been used in this connection. Oral work is continued, and such texts as Freytag's Die Journalisten, Riehl's Der Fluch der Schönheit, Schurz's Lebenserinnerungen, Heine's Die Harzreise, Schiller's Wilhelm Tell, and Schiller's Der Dreissigjährige Krieg III are studied.

The fourth-year course (German 4) of two hours a week is open to those who have secured credit for three years of German, and, upon consultation with the instructor, to others who satisfy him of their competence for it. The course will be adapted to the maturity of the students and their proficiency in German. Half the time will be spent in conversational practice on everyday topics and on German life and institutions, the remainder in rapid reading and interpretation of some phase of German literature. Text-books containing modern German plays and stories form the basis for oral work. Only works of recognized literary merit, such as Sudermann's Der Katzensteg and Wildenbruch's Die Rabensteinerin are used for rapid reading. Students in this course are not recommended for additional college credits in German.

ENGLISH

The work of English 1 in composition is based on themes—simple narratives and descriptions—written in the class-room. Attention is given to the correction of grammatical errors in speech and writing, with necessary consideration of formal grammar; to elementary matters of the structure and the punctuation of the sentence; to spelling; and to the acquisition of a vocabulary. The first book is Chapman's Using English. The work in literature is based on Adventures in Literature, No. 9. Considerable emphasis is placed on enunciation and pronunciation.

In the teaching of composition in English 2, the general plan of the preceding year is continued, with a somewhat higher standard of requirement, the chief object being to secure plenty of practice. Themes are written outside of the class-room as well as during the recitation period. The study of some elementary matters of rhetoric is begun.

The textbook used for the work in composition is Ward's Sentence and Theme. The study of literature comprises the careful reading of some books and the rapid reading of others. Particular attention is given to oral English, each student being required to deliver two carefully prepared speeches each term, and to read aloud in the class-room as frequently as possible.

In English 3 the thorough study of formal rhetoric is begun.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY

As many themes as possible are written outside of the class-room, and considerable writing is done in the class-room. The textbook used is Herrick and Damon's New Composition and Rhetoric. The course in literature includes the careful reading of six or seven books, selected in part from the list for reading (A) prescribed in the College Entrance Requirements; the lives of the authors; and the rapid reading, optional or required, of as many other books as possible, including the Odyssey with Gayley's Classic Myths.

In English 4 the principles of composition-rhetoric studied in the preceding year are reviewed, with a higher standard of requirement in their application to writing. Leonard and Fuess's Good Writing is used in this year. Formal themes and writing in the class-room are required. The course in literature includes the rapid reading of some books and the careful study of others; the life and times of the chief authors; and as much supplementary reading as possible. The work of this year completes the preparation for the examination offered by the College Entrance Examination Board.

PUBLIC SPEAKING

Public Speaking is taken up as part of the Lower Middle English course.

An elective course in Public Speaking comprises training in the preparation and delivery of expositions, the theory of argument, argumentative speeches, and debates. There is some work in declamation and a considerable amount of extemporaneous speaking.

ENGLISH BIBLE

A two-hour course in English Bible is offered as a Senior elective. The subject matter is as follows: First Term, the narrative portions of the Old Testament; Second Term, the life and teachings of Christ as found in the four Gospels; Third Term, the establishment of the early Christian Church. Textbooks: The Old Testament Narrative by Sheffield; The New Testament; and His Life, edited by Barton, Soares, and Strong.

ALGEBRA

Algebra 1A. This course assumes an elementary knowledge of Algebra through simultaneous linear equations and continues the study of the subject in a course occupying five hours a week throughout the year. Durell and Arnold's First Book in Algebra (enlarged edition) is completed.

Algebra 1B. A course beginning the subject is provided for those not prepared for Algebra 1A. Students passing this course are admitted to Algebra 2.

Algebra 2. This course includes a review of Algebra 1 and continues the subject through all the topics of Elementary and Intermediate Algebra required by the College Entrance Examination Board. Candidates for entrance to the Academy desiring credit for this course must present a college entrance certificate for both Elementary and Intermediate Algebra.

Algebra 3. This course covers the topics in Advanced Algebra specified by the College Entrance Examination Board and meets the entrance requirements of all colleges and scientific schools.

GEOMETRY

Demonstrative Plane Geometry is begun and completed in a single year. Four, or five, recitations a week are given to the subject. The chief aim of the instruction is to develop in each student the ability to reason clearly and logically. Accuracy, clearness, and completeness of statement are insisted upon. To develop originality and independence of thought, about two-thirds of the time is devoted to the solution of exercises of gradually increasing difficulty.

In the Senior year Solid Geometry is taught four hours a week during the winter term and two hours during the spring term. The course meets the entrance requirements of all colleges and scientific schools.

TRIGONOMETRY

A course in Plane Trigonometry, meeting four hours a week during the fall term and two hours during the spring term, forms, with Solid Geometry, a full four-hour course for the Senior year. It meets the entrance requirements of all colleges and scientific schools.

MECHANICAL DRAWING

Six hours each week are given to this course. It includes the use of drawing instruments, lettering, geometric constructions, orthographic and isometric projections, developments, intersections, sectioning, and working drawings. Especial stress is laid on a thorough mastering of the fundamentals. The course meets the requirements of the College Entrance Examination Board and in many instances so prepares the student that he can obtain advanced credit for the subject on his entrance to college. Students of exceptional ability are given an opportunity to do more advanced work or are given problems in keeping with the course to be pursued after entrance to college.

PHYSICS

The instruction in Physics is given by the use of a text-book and by practical work in the laboratory. The text is accompanied with numerical examples and by qualitative experiments designed to illustrate physical laws and their application to practical life.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY

Forty or more quantitative laboratory experiments are required of each pupil. A careful record of the steps and results of these exercises is kept in a note-book which is submitted to the instructor for approval.

CHEMISTRY

BIOLOGY

The course in Biology covers the fundamental characteristics of living things; the nutrition, growth, and reproduction of plants and animals; the physiology and hygiene of the human body; the influence of bacteria, insects, trees, and birds on man's welfare; and the principles of heredity and evolution.

The class meets four times a week, twice for recitations and twice for two-hour laboratory periods. The work in the laboratory includes careful training in the use of the compound microscope and in the recording of observations made. The instruction meets the requirement of the College Entrance Examination Board and counts one point for admission to college.

HISTORY

Courses are offered in Ancient History, English History, and American History.

PHILOSOPHY

A two-hour Senior elective is offered in this subject, the object being a general introduction preparatory to philosophical studies at college.

The subject is presented through philosophical problems rather than by tracing the historical development. Text-books used are: Berkeley's Dialogues between Hylas and Philonous, and Weber's History of Philosophy.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY

SCIENCE AND RELIGION

This course runs through three years, and includes elementary study and observation in various fields of natural science, tracing the process up to the emergence of human life.

A review of the progress of religious ideas about God and man in the Old Testament leads to a study of the life and teachings of Jesus.

Discussions, reading, reports, seeking to find the purpose in life, values, and meanings, and to deal with personal problems of adjustment, future vocation, and relationships with other people.

The aim is to help students to work out an adequate, sound, and meaningful religion appropriate to their age, which will advance in succeeding years with increasing maturity.

MUSIC

Opportunity for the study of piano, organ, violin, and voice is offered. The piano instruction is in charge of Mr. Felix Fox of Boston; the organ lessons are given by the Director of Music of the Academy, violin lessons by Mr. Linwood D. Scriven of Boston, and voice by Mr. James Gray McCloskey of Boston.

A two-hour course in Harmony is offered as an elective.

Students who sing in the choir, every member attending two rehearsals a week, are offered one of three forms of compensation: (a) financial; (b) one athletic or chapel cut a week; (c) permission to count the choir work as one schedule-hour.

Serious attention is given to the school orchestra, which rehearses weekly and studies carefully both classical and modern compositions.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY

took place: Fritz Kreisler, violin; Maier and Pattison, pianos; Russian Symphonic Choir; Roland Hayes, tenor; Cleveland Symphony Orchestra; Sada Schucari, violin; Isabelle Yalkovsky, piano; Phillips Academy Combined Musical Clubs; Combined Choirs of Bradford and Phillips Academies in Mendelssohn's Walpurgis Night and Bach's Cantata, "Sleepers Wake! for Night is Flying". On Wednesday afternoons of the winter term there are weekly organ, piano, or violin recitals. Informal organ recitals are frequently given on the Martha Cochran Memorial Organ in George Washington Hall immediately following the Sunday morning service. On the Sunday evenings of the fall and spring terms there are carillon recitals upon the thirty-seven bells in the Memorial Tower.

The department is equipped with three organs, and, in addition to practice pianos, with a Steinway concert grand piano and an Ampico Chickering grand piano.

ROBERT SINGLETON PEABODY FOUNDATION FOR ARCHAEOLOGY

ALFRED VINCENT KIDDER, PH.D., Research Associate in Southwestern Archaeology

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Singleton Peabody of Philadelphia established in Phillips Academy, in 1901, an Archaeological Department, and gave to the Trustees a collection of archaeological specimens from various districts in the United States, together with a fund for the erection and maintenance of a museum, for the salary of a curator, and for research. Under the will of Mr. Peabody, who died in 1904, a further large addition to the foundation was received by the Trustees.

From the income of the Robert S. Peabody Foundation the Director and other officers of the Department have carried on extensive archaeological explorations in New England, at the Pecos Pueblo in New Mexico, the Etowah mound site in Georgia, and elsewhere in the United States.
